A careful examination of the paragraphs of sub-section 6 of section 3 of the bill will not I think show any real ground for difficulty nor yet will these paragraphs of the bill offer grounds for fear that the Jewish people will be discriminated against. I think it is recognized everyhwere that Jewish people living under free institutions are law-abiding and anxious to support the enforcement of law and order in the country of their adoption. The persons whose entry to Canada is prohibited by the paragraphs of sub-section 6 of section 3 of the Bill, are those whose revolutionary tendencies would make them dangerous in this country. The United States Government has for some time had in effect very similar clauses and I think you will not find that Jewish people have been discriminated against by the application of the United States law.

The law as it stands does not differentiate between nationalities or races, but provides authority under which the Governor in Council may exclude immigrants on the ground of nationality or race. I think it would be advisable for you to write me somewhat fully what clauses and in what way you think the Bill should be amended providing for special consideration of the Jewish people.

Section 13 of the Bill has already been adopted but not exactly as it stands in the printed Bill. The words "or religious sect" on line 15 have been eliminated and some additional words have been added. It is considered necessary that the Governor in Council shall have authority at a time like this to exclude or otherwise on the ground of nationality, race, occupation, etc. The law as it stands contains a very similar provision in that it mentions "race, class, occupation or character." Unless we have some such provision it would be impossible to exclude enemy aliens. It is well to remember that section 13 does not in itself prohibit the entry to Canada of any person, but provides machinery under which regulations may be passed from time to time. These regulations will necessarily be drawn with a view to meeting conditions as they arise.

Under the existing law domicile is lost, not after five years, but on leaving Canada with the intention of making one's permanent home outside of Canada. The amendment provides that one who has obtained citizenship in Canada may by registering with a British consul from year to year, retain the right of domicile while living outside of Canada. It is surely not unreasonable to hold that a person who remains out of Canada for five years, not for a mere

AN ATTACK ON THE CANTEENS

Canadians Riot at Seaford Camp—Beer Was Taken.

DAMAGE HEAVY

LONDON, May 12.—The reports of disturbances on Friday night last in the Canadian Camp at Seaford turn out to be not so serious as those at Kinmel Camp, and so far as is known no grave injury or loss of life has occurred, but there has been considerable damage.

The affair arose over minor camp grievances chiefly in connection with the prohibition of week-end travel by a rule enforced eighteen months ago in response to the Government's urgent request to restrict railway traffic. There was apparently irritation also over other unimpotant regulations which culminated in disorder, the principal phase of which was an attack on the canteens and seizure of beer. The non-commissioned officers' mess was wrecked but order was soon restored.

Headquarters officers are now visiting the camp and an inquiry is being held.

Reports from the Canadian camp at Seaford state there have been riotous outbreaks there during the last few days, with damage to military property. The men's grievances included the fact that they were not allowed to travel even short distances without special permits and various other restrictions. The rioting started over the arrest of a popular coloured soldier, who was rescued by his comrades, who then wrecked three canteens, four sergeants' messes, burned old railway carriages, and broached barrels of beer. Only one soldier was injured during the rioting and the camp is now quiet.

KINDNESS THAT PAYS.

On Saturday attention was called in these columns to the intention of the firm of Richard Hall and Son to close their store at 5 o'clock each week day except Saturday, during the summer months, and it was remarked that this policy would result in better service and in greater comfort among the employees. This is surprisingly exemplified to-day in the full page advertisement inserted in to-day's issue by the employees of Richard Hall and Sons, in which they take this method of expressing their deep gratitude to the firm for the consideration shown in adopting shorter hours. The firm themselves have had no intimation that the employees were going to adopt this way of showing their appreciation and the advertisement appearing to-night will be a surprise. The incident shows that consideration for the welfare of employees in any line of business will bring back dividends in the shape of a better spirit of co-operation and in a desire to do better work as a return for the kindness shown.

THE UNEMPLOYMENT ISSUE.

The Board of Trade having referred the War Veterans' request for the formation of a Repatriation Committee in Peterborough to assist in securing employment for ex-service men to a committee of the Board, no time should be lost in considering and in coming to a decision in this important matter. The unemployment issue which has already loomed as serious is bound to grow worse if some systematic and earnest effort is not made to solve the problem. Not only is the situation aggravated by the fact that each week sees a large addition to the number of discharged soldiers who arrive home, but a new factor will soon be felt in the fact that a large number of returned men will shortly be in receipt of their last instalment of war service gratuity, and after their position will be a serious one if they are not able to find employment in the meantime. Scores of Peterborough soldiers who were discharged before the Armistice was signed will not be drawing any gratuity after next month, even if they were entitled to the maximum amount, inasmuch as all gratuities which were granted on or before the first of January last began in that month, so the last of them will expire in June. It makes it imperative that these men should be assimilated into civil life in a position with the least possible delay, and every effort that can be made towards that end should be put forth. A strong Repatriation Committee, gathered by the Board of Trade and with the new energy and enthusiasm that has been engendered that body might prove of material assistance in the solution of the problem. At all events, the experiment is well worth trying. There is room for all the enthusiasm and initiative that can be aroused in dealing with the matter, and if the Board of Trade can lend its support to the movement for finding employment for the men who fought, it will be giving an object demonstration of its usefulness.

"IT NOT BE FORGOTTEN."

A paragraph from a recent despatch to the Toronto Star by Thomas Langton, one of its correspondents overseas, is particularly appropriate at the time which will be held next Monday on behalf of Peterborough's returned Veterans. The paragraph...

...one thing be remembered. Four years ago the men of the Canadian Division muttered through set teeth, "Those devils must pass." They did not. Canada! Over the sodden ground, through the blood stained And the tears of her widows and orphans, because of the inevitable heritage of her sons, passed into the consciousness of the great nations of earth. . . Not her financiers helped this, not her politicians, not her clergy, not her newspapers. It was done by simple men and women for the most part. They have made Canada a nation. Let it not be forgotten that the men of whose be-

Hunter Street Bridge May Be Discussed

The Hunter street bridge tenders will likely be exhumed by the Board of Works to-night and another attempt made to let the contract ex-Ald. Murray insisted he had practically sealed so long ago. It is futile to attempt to forecast of what action will ensue from the latest proposals, but it is expected that something material will be realized from to-night's meeting. Unemployed men are hoping that this meeting of work will not suffer the blight that has fallen upon the Government's plans for extensive construction of public buildings which had loomed as probabilities last winter when the politicians were conjuring with the word "reconstruction."

SPECIAL SERVICES IN MARK STREET

Sermons Appropriate to Mother's Day Preached by the Pastor.

Two very interesting and instructive sermons were delivered on Sunday at the Mark Street Methodist Church by the Rev. R. A. Whattam. The morning theme was "Jesus' Mother," while the evening service was on "Mother's Daughter." A choir of young ladies added greatly to the services.

A combined meeting of the Ladies' Aid and Missionary Societies will be held at the parsonage on Thursday, 15th May, at 3 p.m. All ladies are cordially invited to be present.

Create a Board of Trade For a Peterboro of 50,000 People

President J. J. Turner's Address to the Members Last Night Emphasized the Need of Determined, Persevering Effort and Confidence in the City's Future.

EVERY MEMBER A WORKER

President J. J. Turner's address at last night's meeting of the Board of Trade, indicated its aims and aspirations, the methods of eliciting the support of the citizens and of securing members, and embodied an earnest plea for whole-hearted cooperation for the advancement of Peterboro. It was as follows:

"The members of the Board have doubtless noticed the full page advertisement that appeared in our daily newspapers on Wednesday and Thursday of this week. The suggestion came through your Committee on Civic Education, composed of Chairman Fred L. Roy, P. P. Westbye, A. Mowat, R. M. Glover, and Alex. McGregor. The object of these advertisements is to arouse an interest in what a comparatively few of us are trying to do, and get the work together spirit into real action in Peterboro. We are trying to get enough men to take hold with you, and they must do that, otherwise it is not worth while for us to bother about it. But I believe, and I think you believe, that we shall get together and pull together sincerely, vigorously.

"Sometimes I wonder if we are tending towards an emotional age, for it often seems that if we are to do anything in a public way we must stimulate our enthusiasm, indulge in flamboyant displays, and have whirlwind campaigns. One thing must be clear to you, we cannot build up Peterboro by sensation. We must think about and devise ways to that end, and we must work as we never have worked in Peterboro before for results. Its motto steady, persistent effort. And this work cannot rest upon one man or a hundred men, for it is the rightful duty of everyone to assume his or her share. The theory upon which we are entering this work is that if we 'play the game,' others will join, and thus more and more will intelligent and helpful cooperation come to us.

Every Member a Worker.

"Much of the fault—if fault there be—is due to the fact that we have not been attending to our business as citizens. Just now we have a bit of business to attend to—of extraordinary importance. I refer to the business of putting the Board of Trade into action. Let me say to you in all earnestness that it is within the power of those of us who are here to-night to put the Board of Trade 'over the top' before noon to-morrow. All that would be necessary is for you to form yourselves into teams of two, leave your business for one hour, and get your immediate neighbors into line. Will you do it? If you do not do it you are simply holding the Board back. Since we met on the first day of May what you call the 'Canvass' has dragged because with few exceptions we were thinking of what the other fellow was doing, or not doing. Some of your members who have stood by and tackled the job deserve your deep gratitude. They surely have mine. What do you say to getting through with your business quickly, and then form a Committee of the Whole, and organize for just one big day's work for the Board of Trade, say Monday?

"A friend said the other day that we were trying to organize a Board of Trade for a city twice as big as Peterboro, and I said that is exactly what we are trying to do—create a Board of Trade for a city of 50,000, and if we do that we shall rise to the job of making the city to fit the Board. If we go at it right, and stick to it right, Peterboro will be a city of a hundred thousand people within twenty years, and though some of us may drop by the way, pray God we shall all live to see that day.

Made Material at Hand.

"But to have a big city is a small part of the job—mere bulk isn't much to work for if it isn't valuable. God has put the materials in our hands out of which we can mould a great city. We can easily master the technique or art of City Building. All the conditions that affect our commercial, industrial or social developments are known, and we can set our own tendencies and activities at work. The work then being these rooms of the Board of Trade. These committees, agents and workmen are put upon our Committees. What's everybody's business is nobody's business, consequently we appoint Committees on the promise that each Committee shall function and make a good report of itself. We shall all take our turn on the Committees.

"In choosing our Committees for this first year of Initiative work, we have tried to select men fit for the jobs assigned them. No man has been appointed out of mere compliment or courtesy. And with few exceptions the committeemen are asked to do just one thing, and to do that one thing well.

Let me now name all the Committees, and give you briefly an outline of their functions."

Why It Is a Mistake to Delay Your Purchase of

The NEW EDISON

Most everything you buy wears out eventually. An automobile, for example—or a suit of clothes. So the longer you delay its purchase the longer you'll have it to enjoy.

Not so with a New Edison. It will outlive you anyway. Every month you delay is just one more month gone from your life—another month in which you might have had your life enriched by music—but didn't.

Under our new plan by which payment can be made so much a month, there's no reason why you shouldn't be enjoying your New Edison right now.

The New Edison cost $3,000,000 to perfect. It is the only instrument which successfully meets the test of direct comparison with the living artiste's voice or instrument. It will bring into your home the world's best music, sung or played by the world's great artistes.

Call to-morrow for a demonstration. "Send it out to the house" will be your verdict.

If you desire it, we will make easy terms of payment.

special or temporary purposes, has lost domicile. Amendment is much more favorable to the British subject who has been naturalized in Canada or to the British subject not born in Canada, than the existing law.

Your reference to paragraph "K" sub-section 6 of section 3 will be dealt with when the bill has become law by a carefully prepared circular of instructions to our agents. The clause does not refer to specific diseases so much as to a combination of mental and physical conditions which will interfere with an immigrant making his way to this country.

Section 23 of the Bill does not assign officers for duty on vessels but provides authority by which the Minister may place officers on vessels. I do not think that having an officer on duty with the object of observing travellers during the week or more of their ocean voyage can be regarded as contrary to British fair play. Such officers would not have the power of exclusion. The fact that we have had to deport a considerable number of immigrants in recent years within a short time after their arrival, leaves room to doubt whether the examination of passengers at Canadian ports has been as thorough as it should be. No doubt observation covering a longer period than the few hours an immigrant may stay at an ocean port, would be useful in weeding out some of the undesirable element that succeeds in passing even the most careful inspection we are now able to make.

PREPARING TO ATTACK PETROGRAD

Entente Forces Are Planning Military Operations.

(Canadian Press.)

STOCKHOLM, May 12. — Entente forces are preparing military operations, with Helsingfors as a base for an attack upon Petrograd, according to a Helsingfors despatch to "Aftonbladet." Fifty thousand troops are expected to take part in the operation according to the despatch, which says French cruisers are now lying in the Gulf of Finland off Helsingfors. Despatches last week reported that Finnish Red Guards and Finnish White Guards were fighting for the possession of Petrograd.

KEEPING THEM GASSED

(By H. F. GADSBY.)

Sir Edward Kemp is speeding home to tell Parliament all he knows about Argyle House and one hundred and nineteen million dollars, "vouchers for which," as the Auditor-General's report states, "have not been received."

Sir Edward will create a welcome diversion, for the Government has about run out of subjects to stave off that dread spectre which is at the back of everybody's mind—to wit, the tariff. Sir Edward will tell about the audit of Argyle House accounts which has been going on for the last year—an audit which the late Auditor-General, Mr. Fraser, confessed bewildered him, but an audit of sorts and something, at least, for Sir Edward to hang a story on.

With reasonable success Sir Edward ought to be able to use a week or two explaining the Canadian overseas Military administration. The general line of defence will probably be that things cost a lot of money because they had to be done in a hurry; but when that tale has been told over and over again, what next? There is still a big gap between the order paper and Premier Borden's return with the five cents on the dollar which is to becloud every other issue. Sir Robert and his distinguished but inferior associates (as Foxy Quiller would say) will no doubt stay to the bitter end for the great privilege which has been accorded us of signing on the dotted line. As the Germans are not expected to make up their minds to eat the leek until the end of May, it follows that Premier Borden and his little band will not sail for home before that time, if they are to justify their long visit to Paris. In other words, they will look like damphools if they are not in at the finish.

The robins' return, as I guess it, is about the tenth of June; and that means to mid-July before Parliament breaks up. The only way to end it sooner is to jettison a number of bills which are doing good service just now in the way of using up time that might be dangerously employed in discussing the tariff. The railroad bill has been a serviceable time-killer; so has the bankruptcy bill; and so can Mr. Nickle's divorce bill be if it is strung out judiciously.

Mr. Nickle's divorce bill, by the way, is an artful time-waster. Nobody has any idea that it will go through, because it carries the germs of defeat on the face of it. No divorce bill which essays to force divorce courts on Quebec has a chance of success in the Canadian Parliament. The influences against it are too strong. But a divorce bill which should ask for divorce courts for Ontario would have a fair chance of success; and what has always puzzled me is why the divorce reformers have never tackled the matter along that line. Let Quebec act according to the dictates of her conscience, and let Ontario do likewise, and if she wants divorce courts let her have them on her own merits. It never seems to have occurred either to Mr Nickle or to Mr. Northrup, who was his predecessor on this burning question, that a bill to place Ontario on the same footing with regard to divorce as British Columbia, or New Brunswick or Nova Scotia, would enlist the support of the House. I hate as a bill to impose it on Quebec also would meet with strenuous opposition. The conclusion is inevitable that Mr. Nickle's bill is a time-waster—a straw man put up to be knocked down after it has served its purpose of delaying the day of wrath, namely, the tariff debate.

* * * * * * * * *

It's a long time till the end of May and I really don't know what the House is going to do when the paper is cleared. Knight has been a good procrastinator, so has the novitiate at Guelph and the railway bill, and several others that I could mention; but an end comes to all things. Some day or other Parliament must get round to the tariff. Meanwhile all eyes strain eastward to Premier Borden. "Sister Anne, Sister Anne, is there anybody coming?" There is somebody coming, of course, some time, but not yet.

When the House runs out of airy irrelevancies to talk about, I would suggest a series of academic topics, such as "Resolved, that Sir Sam Hughes is a greater general than Napoleon Bonaparte"; "Why is Mr. Rowell, and, if so, why?" and others which will readily occur to the ingenious minds that frame the daily menu for the House of Commons.

The one thing that must be avoided is a head-on collision with the tariff before Premier Borden gets back with the trophies of his diplomacy—if any. If he has trophies, so much the better—if he hasn't then so much the worse for the tariff. Moderate philosophers—and there are some in Parliament—say that the tariff is a victim of two groups of extremists, one group that would keep it as high as the Tower of Babel, the other group that would leave only a furrow in the ground where the tariff was before—in other words, the Eastern manufacturers and the Western farmers. Our moderate friends are inclined to say "a curse on both your houses!" and look for the middle course which is to reduce the tariff and somehow or other by a toll on his capital investment, make the farmer, in return for freer markets, pay a greater share of the national taxes than he has done in the past.

This is one gospel. Another gospel is that the tariff is a bully and a robber, and that it never will behave until Parliament takes it by the throat and shakes the life out of it. Once upon a time, Dr. Carmichael Clark contended that the tariff was the great original dragon that St. George overthrew and for which he received the Cobden medal. Now, though as strong a free trader as ever, he seems to chastise the tariff more in sorrow than in anger, and says as little about it as can be helped. Other doughty champions from the West complain mildly that the tariff should not be a political question—as if it could ever be anything else—while others again treat it as a sort of interdicted religion — something too awful to be talked about.

These valiant gentlemen have not gone back on their free trade convictions. Not at all. They are simply content to let the matter lie until the time comes to give battle. They still believe that there is a high tariff, and that it is worth fighting.

Not so Colonel John Currie, who makes barbed wire or nails or some other such useful article. As a manufacturer, Colonel John argues that practically speaking there is no tariff at all—or if there is, it is so small as to be hardly worth mentioning. I had the pleasure of hearing Colonel Currie speak for an hour, during which time, slice by slice, he carved the tariff down from the Globe's extreme hypothesis of forty-two per cent. down to his own modest computation of fifteen. He did it, as I recollect, by subtracting the tariff on raw materials imported from other countries. If the Colonel had spoken another half-hour the poor manufacturer would have had no protection at all—would indeed have been paying the consumer to buy his goods.

In short, Colonel Currie and his friends handle the tariff as you would one of those collapsible opera hats. When you see it first it is fully extended and proudly worn on the top of the head. When you see it next it is as flat as a pancake and modestly hidden under the wearer's arm. The quickness of the hand may deceive the eye with regard to opera hats, but the covering is there just the same, and cannot be denied.

My own opinion is that statesmen who may think to use tariff are talking through their opera hats, but the question cannot be fully discussed until Premier Borden comes home.

GERMANS WRITHE BENEATH WEIGHT OF ALLIED TERMS

Outcry Loud and Vehement as Huns Come to Realization of Who Won the War.

NEW YORK, May 12.—A London cable says:

Writhing beneath a full realisation of the weight of the Allies' terms, Germany at last appreciates who won the war. From both political wings and from all quarters of the country the outcry is loud and vehement.

Among the newspapers of the extreme right there are several open threats against France. The Berlin Post, for instance, says:

"The time will come when the whole world will no longer be France's shield, when an honest duel is conceivable. The French people tremble in the face of this possibility. Germany must therefore be dismembered.

"When France, in 1807, dictated its will it was as mighty a state as ever was seen. Prussia seemed crushed for ever. Seven years later Friedrich Wilhelm III. rode into Paris. We will tolerate no chains that have already been broken."

INDUSTRIAL RELATIONS COMMISSION FINDS MUCH UNREST IN WINNIPEG

Soldiers Opposed to Aliens—Speakers Attack the Bolsheviki—Labour Conditions Unsettled.

COMMISSION IGNORED

(By Main Johnson.)

WINNIPEG, May 12. — Winnipeg has lots to think about these days. It is an exciting period for the western capital. It looks now as if a general strike, following the trouble between the building and metal trades and employers, is inevitable, and simultaneously the returned soldiers are growing more and more restless in their antagonism to alien enemies. Outdoor demonstrations attended by great crowds of ex-service men, are being held almost daily, and a note of determination is entering into the soldiers' demands.

At the same time, army men's leaders are counselling moderation and constitutional action ,and this seems to coincide with their desires in the men themselves.

The relation of the soldiers to the labor organizations is a live issue. On the whole there is a sympathy between them, but the great majority of the soldiers who express themselves are opposed to what they regard as indications of Bolshevism.

Attack Bolshevism.

Practically every speaker at these soldiers' gatherings attack the "Bolsheviki" and warn labor not to have anything to do with such people. The soldiers also do not sympathize with the attitude of certain sections of labor which declare that it draws no line between races, and that its only enemy is capitalism. Army men in their speeches and in their published articles regard this view as heretical, and are calling upon labor to fall in line against undesirable alien enemies.

As for the strike situation the votes reported so far appear to be overwhelmingly in favour of a general strike. The police union (for there is one here) not recognized by the Police Commission, but affiliated with the Trades and Labor Council, is said to have voted to cooperate with the others, and among the innumerable trades affected will be the bakers and other men engaged in the most important lines of production.

Where Trouble Started.

In the building and metal trades, where the trouble started, wages and hours of labor were matters of controversy, but the chief issue now appears to be recognition of the union. Into this atmosphere of unrest and tense expectancy has come the Industrial Commission. Even the most drastic theories held by groups of workers here can hardly startle them for they have come in contact with the same views, held a little more bitterly and decisively in British Columbia.

Strangely enough, there were practically no strikes actually in progress either in Victoria or Vancouver when they were there, but even with this absence of specific trouble the atmosphere at the coast was more surcharged with potential danger of a really serious kind than it seems to be here.

The Commission can scarcely feel strange at being ignored by the Trades and Labour Council of Winnipeg, for they had some experience on the coast, and have been called by organized labor in a good many places, although there ... some close arguing at the opening session of the commission especially between the representatives of the manufacturers and Tom Moore, yet the council chamber of the City Hall, where the Board was sitting, was probably the most peaceful public spot in the city.

Outside in the streets large groups of men were standing about discussing the strikes and the possibilities for this week.

Just behind the City Hall, a crowd of several thousand returned soldiers were discussing both labor and aliens. Compared with all this vital, first-hand activity, much of the work before the commission seemed academic and flat, and emphasized the misfortune that the commission by reason of its ultra-hasty schedule, can do nothing but listen to talk, and can not take the time to visit industrial plants, nor the workmen at their work or in their homes.

Free Speech Allowed.

Absolutely free speech is allowed before the board, a freedom which has been exercised to the full by men witnesses, with at least a salutory, informative effect, but it is doubted if the commission,with all its personal good-will, is getting right to the heart of things.

The employers have not ignored the Commission in Winnipeg, as they were developing a tendency to do in the prairie provinces. The plan of the joint councils presented by a majority group of manufacturers, is carefully elaborated, and based on the American rather than the Whitley model, but with modifications aimed at fitting in with the Canadian provincial and federal systems.

The plan includes a joint council in each plant or shop, and in case of disagreement there, a single right of appeal, either to the Provincial or Federal council, including representatives of the public appointed by the government, as well as of employers and employees.

The plan also provides for annual conferences between employers and employees, first for the provinces and next for the dominion, to be called by the government appointees on provincial and dominion councils respectively.

Music & Drama

MACUSHLA.

"Macushla," the Irish comedy-drama by Reda Johnson Young, which appeared at the Grand Friday evening, proved a pretty little play, which was none the less enjoyable because the plot and action were along conventional and familiar lines. It served to introduce to a Peterboro audience a young Irish actor in George Barry McCormack, who made a very favorable impression and who will be always welcome in the city. Mr. McCormack is convincing and ingratiating in his acting and possesses a pleasing, if not specially powerful voice which was heard to much advantage in four delightful songs.

"Macushla," contrary to general expectations, was not the sweetheart of the hero of the play. She was the racing mare, whose fleetness of foot saved the family estate at a critical stage in the drama. The plot was logical and the interest well sustained until the end, although the audience had little difficulty in anticipating the finale. Mr. McCormack was assisted by a capable and well balanced company. Miss Olive Moore was charming as an Irish colleen and Mr. R. Henry Harden did excellent work in the comedy part of Sandy McNab.

MUTT AND JEFF

That funny pair from the newspaper cartoon strip, "Mutt and Jeff," who never fail to produce a gust of laughter by their antics, paid a return visit to the Grand on Saturday, and were greeted by large audiences in spite of the inclement weather. The company was the same as that seen here earlier in the season with Richard Freeman and Jerry Sullivan scoring heavily as Mutt and Jeff respectively. The two were as amusing as ever and were assisted by a capable company. The singing of Virginia Wilson and specialties by Mona Wynn and Ed. Hayes and by Effie Pearson and Fred Roberts were features of the programme. The comedy dancing of the first-named pair provided the hit of the show.

To-night, Tuesday, and Wednesday, with matinees each day, there is a high-class programme of pictures and vaudeville. There are three big vaudeville acts and the film feature shows Fanny Ward in the Harvard prize play, "Common Clay," which is proving as big a hit on the screen as it was on the stage.

On the last three days of the week the Grand will have Major Rupert Hughes' film sensation, "The Unpardonable Sin," a most remarkable picture version of one of the most striking novels of recent years. Blanche Sweet is starred in this production, and the film has been seen by record crowds in the cities where it has been shown.

THE BOY SCOUTS IN PETERBORO

This spring the Boy Scout Movement in Peterborough has been developed in the city to an encouraging degree and among the different organized troops of the city there are now about 300 boys enrolled. Every week two rallies are called and the movement promises to spread so that no church society or boys' organization will be complete without a troop of Boy Scouts.

The aim of the Boy Scout movement is to develop good citizenship among boys by forming their character, training them in habits of observation, obedience and self reliance, inculcating loyalty and thoughtfulness for others, teaching them services useful to the public and handicrafts useful to themselves and promoting their moral and physical development, and hygiene.

Sir Robert Baden Powell, the hero of Mafeking in the Boer War, and leader of the Boy Scout movement in the British Isles has already landed on this side of the Atlantic to get a close up view of the movement in this country and in the United States. On May 26th and 27th it is planned to have a big rally of Boy Scouts from all over the province. Patrols from all over the province are invited to be present.

Pass Examinations

A large number of local boys have passed examinations in the various tests and have received their badges. These proficiency badges are worn on the arm and are circular in shape bearing on them illustrations of the test for which the badge has been issued. For instance the ambulance badge(which test must be passed annually) is the Red Cross, the bee farmer badge is a bee hive, the blacksmith, an anvil: and the boatman test, a pair of sculls. Besides these tests there are many others, including the airman test, the basket worker, the bugler, carpenter, clerk, cook, cyclist, dairyman, electrician, engineer, entertainer, farmer, fireman (to be passed annually) forestry, gardener, handyman, horseman, interpreter, marksman, missioner and mason; besides many others. The illustration on the proficiency badge of a stalker is that of a reindeer.

"WHAT ARE TITLES?" ASKS THE REV. S. W. DYKE AT THE SUNDAY SERVICE IN ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH

Eighty-Sixth Anniversary of the Church Was Observed Yesterday Addresses by the Principal of Queen's Theological College.

EVENING SERVICE

"Titles, what are titles?" asked Rev. S. W. Dyke D.D., Principal of Queen's Theological College at the evening service in St. Andrews' Church yesterday. It was the 86th anniversary of the church and the building was crowded at both services. An organ recital was given by Mr. H. Treneer, the organist, from 6:40 to 7:00 p.m.

Dr. Dyke showed how Jesus taught an important lesson in democracy in that great epoch in the Messiah's life, his last journey when he made the trip from Galilee to the Feast of the Passover at Jerusalem. The speaker showed what a difficult and perplexing question Christ had to decide. True it was a chance to declare his message before the great dignitaries who would attend the Feast but on the other hand he knew the great danger and also he was drawing large crowds in Galilee. But he thrust the temptation aside and "set his face' toward Jerusalem.

And it came to pass, when the time was come that He should be received up. He steadfastly set His face toward Jerusalem."—St. Luke 9-51.

Circumstances of Journey.

This journey of His to the Feast of the Passover was His last and He knew that it was, and because of this the things that He said and did have a kind of solemnity, or more so than other times if that is possible. Going south He came to the land ruled over by Herod. Herod was a reactionary and because Christ said, "look forward". He had Herod as an enemy. Herod wanted to capture Jesus but His time had not yet come. Christ dubbed Herod the fox, and ever since he is known in history as the fox. At last the journey nears its end and Christ comes in sight of Jerusalem, the great centre of culture in those days. The great thought that came in Christ's mind as He looked down on the city was the way in which it had treated the messengers of God. The prophets as messengers were unwelcome. The prophet betrayed the narrowness and impishness of the people. He doesn't say smooth things but tells them to come up out of the cellar of life. Many of us love to wallow in the mud in the cellar.

A Disturbance.

A disturbance occurs as Christ stands overlooking the city. James and John come forward for a request and ask that one stand on the right hand and the other on the left in His glory. They believed that Christ was wearing a mask. They didn't know why He didn't put on the Crown and assume the Sovereignty but they thought He would do this now that He was making His entry into the capital city. They thought He would throw the disguise aside and enter as King of the Jews and they wanted a place in the triumphal procession and the subsequent glory. This was in their minds. The rest of the disciples listen but they are not overjoyed because they thought that James and John should not have any more privileges than they. Jesus turned to them but He did not exactly rebuke them and His answer not only included James and John but it included all the disciples: Christ would not rebuke the prophets because as in all great men criticism was a subordinate faculty. There is a false view of greatness abroad and as a consequence men abuse the words rule, authority.

"The mailed fist is authority," stated Dr. Dyke. "It draws great lines between man and man and raises barriers. It is the Gentiles view of authority. There is no God where this view prevails because God is the Father of us all and where God is recognized as such all barriers are swept away.I am afraid that there are a great many good people who will have a terrable time in Heaven. They will say that we belong to a different "set." We should try to get some sort of Heaven on earth. We shouldn't get the wrong idea of rule and authority because every man is potentially a child of Christ. Titles, what are titles. There is not a title in the world to compare with the claim that he is a child of God. We have associated such a view in recent years with Germany when we talk of the mailed fist and "sets" and it is an idea that is not established in any other country in the world but it is established in many a heart that isn't German. We are all in one great boat. Jesus said, "Whichever one of you would be greatest shall be the servant of all." Revise your hopes and ambitions and come up out of the cellar into the light", admonished Dr. Dyke.

Jesus turned once more toward Jerusalem and "set his face" to the danger ahead.

OLYMPIC SAILED ON SATURDAY

Carries Over Five Thousand Canadian Troops on Board.

Canadian Press:

LONDON, May 12.—The 'Olympic' sailed from Southampton on Saturday evening with 5,000 Canadian soldiers on board. General Burstall, commander of the departing Second Division, arrived early and was long busy bidding everyone a cheery good-bye. Brig.-Gen. Tremblay was in command of the troops on the ship. Among them was the famous 22nd French-Canadian, 24th, 25th, 28th, 29th Battalions, 5th Engineers, 5th Field Ambulance and other drafts. The Scandinavian sailed on Saturday from Liverpool for Quebec with various troops from Buxton, Bramshott and London, with their dependents, 416 wives and 150 children. The Olympic had quite a dramatic departure, for, in addition to the civic farewell by the Lord Mayor and a great crowd of cheering people in the gathering twilight, the huge steamer had to clear without the aid of tugs on account of the strike of their crew, which had led us the expectation that the liner might not sail. The captain declared boldly that no question of tugs was going to prevent his getting the Canadian boys home, and at 8 o'clock the Olympic cleared under her own steam and started on her voyage amid a scene of the greatest enthusiasm.

Canadian Press:

OTTAWA, May 12.—The Olympic carries 327 officers, 5,289 other ranks, and 11 dependents. She will dock at Halifax on or about May 15.

THE MOTHERS' DAY SERVICE IN MURRAY STREET BAPTIST CHURCH

Twenty Cars Brought the Old Folks to Church—"A Woman of Religious Instinct," Inspiring Sermon by the Rev. J. R. Webb.

At the Mother's Day service of Murray Street Baptist Church yesterday, the men of the church vied with each other in doing honour to "motherhood." More than twenty cars were at work from half-past ten bringing to the service those who, without this kindly assistance, would have been unable to be present. The choir had arranged its day in view of the subject, and all its music was most appropriate and inspiring. The duet by Miss Lillian Eastwood and Mr. J. Graham, with full choir chorus, "Hush, My Dear, Lie Still and Slumber," was particularly enjoyed.

Rev. J. R. Webb preached on the subject, "A Great Woman," taking his text from 2nd Kings, 4th chapter, 8th verse: "Elisha passed to Shunem where was a great woman."

An Aristocrat.

"Elisha was something of an aristocrat compared with his predecessor Elijah," said the speaker. "Elijah was a desert whirlwind—Elisha was the well-bred son of a successful farmer. This new kind of minister must render a new kind of ministry, and thus it comes to pass in God's providence that early in his career as a prophet he meets this 'great woman.' That is God's way of making great men—He gives to ordinary specimens of masculinity the companionship of great women.

"In four of these chapters there are sentences concerning this woman, and as we examine them and consider them we see wherein her greatness lay, for we must remember that with women, and with mothers as with men, we may be such, and being such be 'great' or 'petty.' This was a great woman, and her greatness is explained in the instincts that she possessed and cultivated. She was

A Woman of Religious Instincts.

The very first time we hear her speak in chapter 4, she is saying to her husband, 'I perceive that this man is a holy man of God.' She is speaking of Elisha, and when she said that, her husband believed her, and the whole household trusted her judgment and acted on it. When the woman of the home says 'I perceive,' she is sure to get a following whether she deserves it or not. But let the encouraged instinct be a righteous one, a religious one, and what the womanhood of the home perceives to be duty the manhood of the house will perform. And the woman in this case said, 'I perceive that he is a man of God.' Let us relate ourselves to him. 'And they made a little room for him and a bed and a table and a chair and a candlestick.'

Queen of Sheba.

The story of the Queen of Sheba tells of what she possessed. The story of Herodias tells what she coveted. The story of Delilah tells whom she ruined. But the story of this woman of Shunem tells us that above all personal profit, and before all schemes of saving and preceding all pride of place was this woman's grasp of God. In the mists of that early date, knowing little compared with what we are permitted to know, she decided that God being in His heaven all could not be well with her world if she failed to live as under His eye. A woman who is capable of such a primary decision has no difficulty in getting the ear, and the heart, and finally the will of her husband. She is 'The perfect woman nobly planned,

To warn, to comfort and command;
And yet a spirit still and bright,
With something of an angel light.'

The woman who says 'I perceive God, and I recognize that my first and largest obligation is to Him,' the woman who stands consistent to that great resolution in her deportment to those around her will certainly have a procession behind her that will not stop short of the very throne of God. This great woman had also Maternal Instincts.

Gehazi, whose gold-blinded eyes robbed him of so many beautiful things, could see the holy passion of this woman's soul, and Gehazi said unto the prophet, 'She hath no son.'

"There is no purer, higher, holier saying possible regarding any woman than that which we now speak concerning the great woman of Shunem—she wanted the crown of motherhood. Let the hearer shrink from that saying who is vulgar enough to think that motherhood is less pure than the diamond that glistens on the grass-blade in the early morning. It is well that one day has been set apart in which we are forced to speak of things of which we are usually sinfully dumb. Among all the qualities resident in a great woman, devotion, unselfishness, sympathy, heroism, prayer, there is not one quality more worthy of emulation and more suited to public praise than the desire to be a mother. The most solemn moment in all the long history of France is to-day. She has gone through an inquisition, and now she has a breathing spell in which to decide whether she will accept the high-way which she has so long trampled under her feet and become a nation mightier yet or perish miserably from among the great nations of the earth because of her 'famine of mothers.' If some women were half as modest in their dress as they profess to be when such a great truth is spoken in their hearing, it would be infinitely better for the race. No career is comparable in importance with that of motherhood.

"Again, this great woman had

A Patriotic Instinct.

A verse in the 8th chapter says, 'and it came to pass, after seven years that the woman went unto the king to cry for her land.' This is the same woman. She is now crying unto the king on behalf of the land of her birth. A great woman is always a great patriot, and only eternity will tell how great is the debt of the nations in their onward and upward march to the patriotism of their women. In Dean Stanley's 'Life and Letters of Arnold' we read: 'Two of the greatest defeats of history had included in them the greatest possible blessing—Orleans and Bannockburn; and it was a woman who spinned and knitted and cared for the cattle who came to the help of France and got her the victory—Joan of Arc. She travelled one hundred and sixty miles through the land occupied by the enemy to cry unto her ruler for her land.' That is what you mothers have been doing for your land for nearly five years. You have cried unto the king on Britain's throne, saying:

'The wretch concentered all in self,
Living shall forfeit fair renown;
And doubly dying shall go down
To the vile dust from whence he sprung,
Unwept, unhonoured, and unsung.'

You have cried to the King of Kings for your land, saying 'If it be possible let this cup pass from us.' You have cried to the kings in your own household even while the word choked you, 'Go. Go, and come not back with less than victory!' You are now crying to all the kings of the earth, to those whose 'heads are bloody but unbowed,' and those who have sunk into the seclusion of stolen shelter—to all you cry in the words of Miriam

'Jehovah hath triumphed,
His people are free.'

"Mothers, you are great women. Go on with your victorious song! Go on with every song you have ever sung—your song of praise to God whom you so clearly perceived—the song you crooned over the cradle and its precious burden—the song in the night of your affliction, which only a mother can sing — the song of triumph! Go on crying out your soul to the kings of earth, and to the King of Heaven until God's hand shall set you at His side where for evermore mothers' voices will join with those of angels in the song of Moses and the Lamb. Till then may we strive to be worthy of those great women, 'Our Mothers,' and

'Where'er our steps may roam,
O'er smiling plains, or wastes without a tree,
Still will fond memory point our hearts to thee,
And paint the pleasures of thy peaceful home
While duty bids us all thy griefs assuage,
And smooth the pillow of thy sinking age.'

"May God help us to be worthy of our Mothers."

MOTHERS' PENSIONS WERE ADVOCATED BY CANON DAVIDSON AT ST. JOHN'S

Special Services Yesterday in Commemoration of Mothers' Day—A Sacred Institution.

Yesterday "Mother's Day" was observed at St. John's at the evening service, when appropriate Psalms, hymns and prayers were used. Canon Davidson's subject was "Our Country's Debt to the Mothers of Her People," based on the Saviour's words from the Cross, "Behold Thy Mother." It was not a Church Festival, founded on Divine facts or persons, but was a modern innovation with a sentimental basis. The sentiment, however, was a very worthy one and the great subject of motherhood richly deserved recognition.

God had made the family a sacred institution, at the heart of which stood the mother, the centre of sacrifice, life and love.

After referring to the example of Christ in His home and on the Cross, the Rector said that our parents were, by God's command, to be respected even though feeble or trying. Their worn-out condition might be the result of labour and care for their children.

Mothers' Sacrifice.

The country honoured returning soldiers, and rightly, for their sacrifices and hardships as a great national asset. Let the nation's gaze also be fixed on the mothers of the country and their sacrifices, hardships and labours so patiently borne, and resulting in the production of a healthy young manhood and womanhood. All honour to them as one of our most valuable national assets.

And now when the great national need was for well-nurtured and well-trained boys and girls to take the place of those who had fallen, to whom was the country to look? What would the present generation of young parents do for their country? There were no doubt real difficulties in the way, high expenses and lack of help, but the country's needs were the same as before, and the Divine Command was "go in and replenish the earth." And it could be obeyed if faith and hope and courage were brought to bear. We were not intended to foresee how each child was to be supported and educated. A way would be found in most cases. The more real the difficulties, however, the more we should honour those who went courageously through them. Yes, the nation should appreciate and honour the mothers of large families far more than was done.

Mothers' Pensions.

As one practical encouragement, the speaker advocated mothers' pensions where necessary, and perhaps a lower rate of taxation for large families. As healthy children, brought up as native citizens were of great national value to a young country, why should not the country give some small assistance towards bearing the burdens involved?

In the absence of such a recognition, real and great recompences were now given to mothers which should be realized and enjoyed. One of these was the abounding and constant love of their children. Another was a mother's wonderful power of influence and of her prayers. It was difficult and unusual for a child to go permanently wrong who had been properly disciplined and was followed by such prayers. Yes, with all the difficulties and hardships which might fall to her, a mother should recognize that her lot was a privileged one, and that she was envied by numbers of other women who were not given her opportunities of useful service.

Canon Davidson went on to speak of departed mothers, who should be commemorated by their children in thought and prayer and appropriate action as was this observance of Mother's Day. Their names should never be dropped out of the family's prayers, and a special opportunity for this was given in the Communion service, when Christians came into closest relation with those who had been called into the nearer presence of God.

GIRL KNOCKED DOWN BY A CAR

Was Removed to Her Home Little the Worse For Mishap.

Madeline Bingham, New Romaine street, was knocked down by an automobile driven by Jack Eaton, 430 Park street, and Fred Herbison, 264 Simcoe street, on Saturday night, at 10:30, in front of Wright's barber shop on George street. The girl, who was crossing the road, evidently became excited and dodged back and forth in front of the car, rendering it impossible to miss her, and the front half of the car passed over her body.

She was picked up by Detective W Meagher and driven home, evidently little the worse for her experience.

MOTHERS' DAY AT GEORGE STREET METHODIST CHURCH

Inspiring Address by the Rev. A. J. Thomas—Indebtedness to the Parents.

Mother's Day was appropriately observed in George Street Methodist Church yesterday. The church was well filled at both services. In the morning Rev. A. J. Thomas gave a short talk on "The Sacrifices of Mother in the Home," and in the evening took for his topic, "Honour thy father and thy mother."

He referred to Miss Annette Jarvis, who suggested that a day be set aside for the purpose of paying respect to the "mother." She lost her mother. The sacrifices of mother so vividly appealed to her that she conceived it to be her duty to set aside at least one day in the year in honour of mother. She urged others to do the same. The result is "Mother's Day." She thought that the indebtedness to mother cannot be paid, and yet it is our practical duty to pay this debt of love, kindness, and self-sacrifice.

Implied Respect.

The speaker stated that the fifth commandment implied respect, reverence, and superiority. The parent is the representative of God. For that reason the parent should be treated with every respect and reverence. Insolence too often exists in the home. The pastor told a story of a young man in Regina who loved his parents and tried to act as a true son to them. But the father blighted the home by his debased habits, such as drink. The son told the speaker that he felt like giving the father a good thrashing. In such a case, Mr. Thomas said, it is hard for a son to respect the parent. The Fifth Commandment also implies obedience, that obedience which does not involve sacrifice of the laws of God. The command of the parent must be in harmony with the love of God. It also implies thoughtfulness. Harsh words should be avoided. The pastor spoke of the young man, guilty of many sins, who loved his mother very much. The father became so disgusted with him that he put him out. But the boy remained devoted to his mother and expressed his love for her in many ways, in an attempt to make her happy. Yet he failed, because he did not reform, which was the only thing that would make the mother happy. This son did not do his duty to his parents or God. "Whatsoever a man sows, that also will he reap." This saying may be applied to the son's actions towards his parents.

Lloyd-George.

The son and daughter should strive to have a worthy life acievement and be a credit to their parents. An honourable success will bring happiness to mother and father. Mr. Thomas referred to the family of Lloyd-George. Lloyd'George's father died when he was a small boy. The widow wrote her brother in the north of Wales about her troubles. The brother, who was a cobbler, took the widow and her family north to his home and laboured hard to support them. The speaker related what hardships the cobbler suffered in sending young David to school and in supporting the family. But David achieved success, first as a barrister and then as a statesman. He has tried to repay his mother and uncle for the sacrifices they suffered for him. It is the duty of everyone to do something in the world that will glorify their parents and home.

Lloyd-George has developed a noble character, a character such as is implied in the Fifth Commandment. Solomon stated that the father of the righteous shall rejoice. A son and daughter should attempt to measure up to the desires of their parents. By so doing they will bring great happiness to their parents and bring respect to the home. "It is a lamentable fact that the home life is declining," were the words of the speaker. We should establish a peaceful, happy and loving attitude between the front and back doors of our home. Moody told the English people that they were more in need of homes than churches. The home is vital to a nation. It is the heart of a nation. The nation is suffering from heart disease. Children have a right to expect righteousness from the parents and then the parents can expect love and obedience from their children.

SEMI-READY TALK:

"Yoke-lined coats fit and sit well on the shoulders—and there is an ease and grace in the clinging cloth—when it's pure wool.

"Put a silk yoke lining in a cheap cloth and it looks and feels like an ox-cart.

"We have all of the new models in Semi-ready Tailoring, tailored from imported British wools of pure Australian Botany ancestry.

CODD WILL HAVE A NEW ADDRESS

Left Gollop's Hotel Without Paying His Board Bill—To-day's Police Court.

Robert Henry Codd, who is wanted in Lindsay, was sentenced this morning by Magistrate Dumble. He pleaded guilty to the three charges and exhibited a desire to have the the case finished.

The Sentences

Illegally wearing a military service badge, $5 or 30 days.

Forging military documents, 30 days.

Beating his board bill, $40 or 30 days.

Codd will serve the sentences on all charges. The sentence for beating his board bill runs concurrently with the 30 days dished out for illegally wearing a military service button, so that Codd has only 60 days to stay behind the bars instead of 90.

On the fifth of April, Codd registered at Gollop's Hotel as Mr. Burns. Mr. Gollop in his evidence stated that Codd gave the impression that he was going to establish in the city as a cartoonist.

"How much does he owe you?" asked the Magistrate.

"He owes me $38.50," replied Mr. Gollop. "You are a good-natured fellow," said Mr. Dumble.

"Lets go down there," suggested the Crown Attorney.

Magistrate Dumble, "What is your rate."

Mr. Gollop—"For a day, $2.75."

Mr. Dumble, "What $2.75 in a temperance house or is it a temperance house?"

Mr. Hatton, "The rate is high because it is a temperance house."

Stayed Two Weeks.

Codd stayed for two weeks at the hotel but did not mention the little matter of paying board until Mr. Gollop at the end of two weeks politely informed him that it was not the custom for hotel bills to run over two weeks. Codd excused himself, said he must meet the 12 o'clock train and that n his return he would foot the bill. He never returned until long-armed justice landed him in the police cells.

Dog Poisoning Case.

The Magistrate handed down judgment in the case of Mrs. George Stevens, Mark street, who was charged with poisoning a water spaniel belonging to Mr. Gash, her next door neighbour. The Magistrate in fining Mrs. Stevens $20 with $3.35 costs stated that she put out poison with intent to kill and whether for dogs or cats it made no difference. She was allowed 5 days in which to pay the fine and Mr. Gash will be re-imbursed for the loss of the dog to the extent of $10 half f Mrs. Stevens' fine.

Walked to Lakefield.

A Peterboro boy about twelve years of age took a notion that he would like to visit the great white way and inspect the sky scrapers in Lakefield. He walked the whole distance via the railroad track. Chief Webster of Lakefield removed him from the succulent dangers of that great metropolis and sent him to Peterboro. The police reminded him what would happen to him if he went to Lakefield again and the boy left the police court much wiser and sadder than when he arrived.

DETAILS GALORE IN PICTURE-MAKING

"The Unpardonable Sin," Many Months in Production, Required Great Skill in Its Direction.

Not a little has been written of the care with which modern photoplay productions are made. When one sees reproduced before him on the screen a series of incidents which combine to tell a dramatic story it is easy enough to forget the myriads of little things which the producer and his staff have had to think of in order that the representation may be true to life. Quite naturally the interest centres in what the principal characters in the story are doing, and as long as there is nothing in the picture atmosphere to jar, this mass of detail is forgotten, but let some little apparently unimportant fitting be something other than what it should be, and the whole effect is destroyed.

The manner in which Harry Garson's "The Unpardonable Sin," starring Blanche Sweet, under the personal direction of Marshall Nielan, was produced, is in point along the lines which have just been suggested.

The big photoplay will be easily identified as a screen adaptation of the powerful Rupert Hughes' novel, by the same name, which created such a furore some months ago when it was published, first in serial form in the Red Book, and later as a complete book from the presses of Harper & Bros. Mr. Grason was impressed with the picture possibilities of the story and secured the photoplay rights upon the payment of a price which will stand as a record for a long time. The preparation of the scenario by one of the ablest writers in the motion picture industry required a number of weeks—and then came a lapse of fully two months, during which time Director Nielan and his research assistants laid out, in minute detail, the plans for actual production.

The story told is a thrilling one of love and adventure, with locations that embrace a little town in the Middle West section of the United States, Washington, D.C., one of two of the larger cities in Belgium, some of the rural sections of Belgium a couple of important cities in Germany, typical military communities occupied by the German army and finally New York City.

The average theatregoer knows but little difference between the customs, architectural peculiarities etc., of one country and another—but in every audience of any size, before which a big photoplay is shown, there are sure to be some spectators whose first-hand knowledge of the scenes represented is likely to make them more captious critics along these lines than the producer of the picture himself. And the success of a big photoplay depends almost entirely upon the impression which the detail of production makes upon these comparatively few people who, by the way are usually the people who talk loudest, either in praise or denunciation. It is of record that in Mr. Garson's production offices in Los Angeles, Mr. Nellan and a good sized force of especially trained men and women thumbed over stacks of topographical atlases and maps and hundreds of current magazines and newspapers until they had decided just how each set should be built, down to the cobblestones and pump in a typical Belgian village or to the uniforms of a German bell-hop.

Mr. Neilan says that this long difficult work of preparation for the picture was the most trying part of his task but, in looking back at it, gives all the credit to this system, for the fact that when the actual production on "The Unpardonable Sin" was begun it went forward practically without a stop, with the result that, by comparison with other big pictures that have been made, at least three dollars' worth of screen value was provided for the audience for every dollar actually expended. In this connection considering the fact that "The Unpardonable Sin" cost its producers more real money than has been spent on any photoplay given the public during the past six months, the public can be assured in advance that the big Garson feature is quite out of the ordinary.

"The Unpardonable Sin" was completed less than a month ago, and is now being shown in the leading theatres of the United States in which it is being handled as a legitimate attraction. The local engagement is scheduled for the Grand theatre, beginning Thursday, and continuing for three days. Matinee daily.

WEDDING BELLS

NORTHEY—BELL

A quiet but pretty wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bell, "Roxview Farm", Smith Township, Friday evening when their youngest daughter, Alta Mae, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Stanley Melville Northey, second son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Northey of Smith Township.

Promptly at 8 o'clock the bride entered the drawing room on the arm of her father, to the strains of the wedding march played by Mrs. Clayton Telford of Bridgenorth, who also sang beautifully during the signing of the register.

The bride looked charming in a gown of white duchess satin with old Irish lace panels and chinelle trimmings and wore the customary veil of tulle and orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of carnations and sweet heart roses. Miss Claire Tate of Moosejaw, who wore white satin with butterfly drape of tulle and sequins acted as flower girl and the bride's nephew, Master Conrad Tate of Moosejaw, acted as ring bearer.

After the ceremony which was performed by Rev. H. A. Frost of Lakefield. The guests, which were the immediate friends, repaired to the dining room, where a dainty luncheon was served. The bride cut the cake with a German dagger trimmed with white satin, which was sent home from France, by her brother.

AN IMPORTANT WEEK

During Empire Week Members of the Great War Veterans will call on you to present their proposition regarding their is necessary to finish and set up the proper means of maintenance of same.

In coming to you they are not seeking charity, theirs will be a clear cut business proposition. Hence yours will be the privilege of investing in the welfare of the best type of manhood we have in Peterborough.

Because the Great War Veterans' Association is not an association who merely want an easy chair club, they have more real and stern questions to face, in helping unfortunate comrades and dependents. And who can do it better or more sympathetically and wisely than the Association Officers, who are more than brothers to the needy ones?

Peterborough is not putting on any "Big Four" drive, asking for millions. All that is needed is $15,000. And after that the Great War Veterans' Association will be self-sustaining. And as such it will prove itself a tower of strength for the advancement of the right and the upbuilding of Christian citizenship.

Start to figure to-day how much you can give, and have it ready when the time arrives, and thus make it a pleasure for the boys to call on you, having them feel that although they have been to the other side of the Globe and in many places, that Peterborough is the greenest spot of all and the one place that they are glad to be back to, to live and be happy in.

Wood Prices Are Bound to Go Higher

Lay in Your Supply of Good, Clean Wood, Cut This Winter.

We beg to announce a slight change in our price list for the present week. We announced two weeks ago that existing prices could not continue, owing to increased costs of handling wood. This applies particularly to hardwood which we have been selling at ten dollars a cord, cut in stove lengths. This week this class of wood will be sold at ten dollars a cord, cutting extra. We are still selling slabs cut at four dollars a load and mixed wood at nine dollars a cord cut. Both of these grades have a good percentage of hardwood and are good buying at the prices quoted. This wood is not black with age, having been cut and piled in early part of the past winter. Call and inspect it and lay in your supply before prices go higher. Take the advice of one of the largest local coal and wood dealers who anticipates a worse fuel famine than ever next winter. Get your supply in early.

Our prices for this week are as follows:

Hardwood, four foot lengths—$10 a cord. Cutting extra.

Mixed wood—$9 a cord, cut.

Slabs—$4 a load, cut.

Peterborough Planing Mills wood yard, opposite the Braund Building, Charlotte street. Telephone 86. Call and inspect the wood. 6d-111

Moncur's Digestive Tonic

It strengthens and relieves the whole Digestive Tract. This preparation used in connection with proper diet and nerve sedatives, gives the most satisfying results in Nervous Dyspepsia and Hyperacidity.

Even the old chronic cases show a decided improvement under treatment with this remedy.

Occupation by Allies is the Hope of Many Germans

Bankers and Business Men Generally See No Other Solution—Army of Spies—Thousands of Lenine Agents Busy—Flood of Bogus Money.

LONDON, May 13.—The Times gives unusual prominence to an unnamed writer's observance in Berlin, extracts from which follow:

"The seriousness with which the German peace delegation now in Versailles is treated by the Entente Powers compares curiously with the attitude shown by most of the Germans I met in Berlin and elsewhere in Germany.

"The view of the average German is that it does not matter whether peace is signed or not, and the majority of those in responsible positions—bankers and big business men—are hopeful peace will not be signed and that further Allied occupation will result in bringing order to industry elsewhere that is already prevailing in the occupied Rhineland, but almost nowhere else in Germany.

"Life in Berlin generally has the appearance of normality, yet several times in the course of a walk one pauses to remark that machine-guns can be heard in the outlying parts, and if one motors about at night, one's car is likely to be halted by soldiers, and searched for hidden arms. On Sundays and holidays temporary barricades appear in the Unter den Linden and barbed wire is stretched across streets that form strategic positions for the defence of the Wilhelmstrasse Government headquarters. Thus we have a hint of trouble.

Russian Agents Aplenty.

"There are today 25,000 Russians in Berlin, agents of Lennie and Trotsky.

"With or without the connivance of the present German Government, but certainly with its knowledge, the heads of this army of trouble-makers conduct a daily courier service all through the German lines from Berlin to Moscow. As a result printing presses were first established in Munich but are now running in Berlin, engaged in carrying out the ablest idea the brain of Lenine has yet conceived, namely, the destruction of the currency.

Flood of Bogus Notes

"Germany is now flooded with millions of counterfeit mark notes that are as excellent in quality as those turned out by the Government. There is so much of this money that the banks dare not refuse it, so it is current everywhere and good.

"The Deutsche Bank no longer knows whether it is solvent. The same admission was made to me by the head of another great banking institution, who suddenly asked me how much German money I then had in my possession. I produced about a thousand marks. The banker showed me that 300 of them in 50-mark notes were bad. I had obtained them in exchange for British Sterling at one of the best known bureaus of exchange in Berlin.

"Today they are printing five-pound notes ($25) in Berlin on Lenine presses; also notes of the Bank of France that are good imitations, although not as good as those of the German notes, because the greater difficulty of matching the paper. What will be done with them I can only surmise by showing the use to which bad money is put in Berlin.

"The present Government formerly paid 12 marks ($3) a day to every [illegible]. It now pays 15 marks ($3.75) a day despite the fact that its capital is exhausted.

Bankrupting the Nation

"The new army gets five marks per man a day, and the best food the Entente has sent. This outlay, in addition to the up-keep of the Hindenburg army on the Polish frontier and Von der Goltz' troops in Courland, about 250,000 in all, makes the pay sheet of the War Office about the same as the days when the real German army was fighting the Allies.

"Herr Noske would like to cut this rate of pay to three marks a day, but dares not. It is only the strength of his personality that holds things together at five marks and chances here are strong against his ability to do it long, because any unemployed German or any soldier can get 50 marks a day in bad money.

"The billboards are filled with Soviet literature. The Government retaliates by placing posters all about, shouting Bolsheviki horrors. In the poorer districts Lenine agents are almost openly at work. In cafes they treat all-comers with wine and beers. They consider the economic situation of the cases in hand, and most likely the converts go away with 50 marks in their pockets. In the fashionable restaurants at present there is a wierd blending of aristocracy, bourgeoisie and proletarians, but the aristocracy is largely camouflaged Russian. Most of the best class of Germans are keeping in the background. Some of the bourgeoisie are war profiteers, and the remainder, with the proletariat, are people having a look at high life for the first time on this forged money.

Overtures to Bolsheviki

"The result of this has been that some of the great German industrial leaders, doubting the present ramshackle government's power to survive the shock at Versailles, have made open overtures to Moscow.

Such men as Hugo Stinness, the coal magnate, and Dr. Walter Rathenan, of the General Electric Company, have already offered their establishments to the Communists, on the promise of personal immunity for themselves and their families. These men argue that after a few months of Communism they will be called back to take charge as the only men capable of handling affairs, and will come back on their own terms.

"I came to Germany with the common conviction that Germany was getting stronger. I am now convinced she is getting weaker and weaker, and more and more pessimistic.

"This Government is nothing but the old Government with a new face. In its six months of power it has offered not one constructive measure, nor has it done one single thing to relieve suffering. It is hanging on solely in the hope that it can get something out of the Entente or outwit them in some way, both von Brockdorff-Rantzau and his cousin, von Bernstorff, being notoriously pastmasters at that particular form of diplomacy.

"The conclusion I have reached is that the Government cannot survive, whether it signs peace or not. Optimists give it six weeks after the Versailles conference, whatever the result. Then probably a Noske dictatorship will last the same length of time and after that, the rule of the proletariat, unless the Allies take charge in Berlin first."

If Strength Declines As Age Advances Follow This Suggestion

So many women grow old before their time, perhaps your wife or sister. A little while ago, buoyant, full of vigor and activity — she enjoyed life and imparted pleasure to the whole family; but now in a few short years she has faded and lost colour and strength. She is just ready to develop some disease that will further weaken and debilitate. You remember how it began, failure of appetite, tired in the morning, found housework burdensome, always nervous and a little irritable. It's a shame to let her go down hill further when you can build her up so quickly with Ferrozone. The change this nourishing tonic makes in a weak woman is surprising. It gives great zest for food, increases appetite and digestion enormously. The blood gets richer and stronger and adds new life to every organ in the body. A rebuilding process works through the entire system. The first week will show an improvement, and a month or two will fatten up the thinnest, most rundown woman you can think of. Take Ferrozone for lost colour, for nervousness, for weakness,— use it when run-down and feeling poorly —it will do you more lasting good, keep you in better health, than anything else. Just as good for men and children, too, because Ferrozone is harmless and safe, 50c. per box or six for $2.50, at all dealers, or direct by mail from the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

OUTLOOK FOR THE CHEESE INDUSTRY COULD BE BRIGHTER

Herds in Peterboro District Reported to be Reduced—Winter Feeding Still Continues.

The first meeting of the Cheese Board will likely be held on Wednesday, 21st May. There have been no announcements made yet, but it is expected that in a week or two the Board will reassemble to consider the season's business. As reported on Saturday, the Cheese Commission is being disbanded, and the Government's guarantee of prices is cancelled. Naturally the trade is asking the question whether the new prices will be higher or lower than those set during the past two years.

There is a great demand for foodstuffs from Europe, a factor that should have a bullish influence on prices, but there are also the large stocks of New Zealand cheese held in storage for the past two years awaiting transport to Britain. Several Boards have already held their opening sales with prices of 26 cents and more, probably reflecting a sharp demand for local requirements. When the season is advanced another six weeks the normal prices will be apparent, and while it is impossible to foretell the market's turn, it is believed that there will be a shading off in prices.

Reports from the Peterborough district show that the cattle are not yet in pasture, that their number is reduced below last year's, and that the flow of milk is likely to shrink. This is the prospect of men in close touch with the country. Pasturage is very promising, but it is stated that farmers are not showing the interest in dairying that should be expected of an industry that holds the high place it does. That the herds are smaller is not an encouraging report, and it is hoped that the reduction is not serious. Men who have been in touch with dairy farmers have observed a contentment and self-satisfaction that bodes no good for the industry.

GRAIN MARKET

There was another quick and sensational advance in the corn markets yesterday, brought about by light receipts of spot corn, and the consequent strength of the cash markets. The situation produced a panicky feeling among the May shorts, and that option immediately began a sharp rise, closing with an advance of 9 1-2c. over Saturday's close. The leading commission houses were heavy buyers. In the local cash market, corn is not quoted. There is practically no demand at the present high cash prices. There was no Winnipeg market yesterday, but Western oats and barley are both held strong. An advance of 80c. a barrel on Ontario wheat flour brings it on a level with Manitoba flour quotations.

Marriages Not Permanent.

Approximately one out of every nine marriages in the United States is terminated by divorce, according to figures compiled by the bureau of the census at Washington. In 31 per cent. of the cases in 1915, divorce was granted to the husband, while the husband's rate in 1906 was 67 per cent.

Desertion is shown by the figures to have been the cause for about 33 per cent. of the divorces. Among other leading causes were cruelty, infidelity and failure to provide.

$50— NO BENEFIT, THEN—

Zam-Buk cured him. "This money might have been saved by Mr. Z. D. Muro of 722 Papineau Ave., Montreal, had he only known of Zam-Buk sooner. Writing to the proprietors, he said:

"For over a year I suffered with eczema which nothing seemed able to cure. I had treatment from three doctors, which cost me $50, but none of them were able to cure me. I sufferod intensely from the irritation and pain, and I thought I should never get rid of it. A friend told me about Zam-Buk and I started using it right away. From the very first application I felt better. Zam-Buk relieved the irritation and seemed to cool and soothe the sores. Gradually the sores began to heal, and, with perseverance, Zam-Buk completely rid me of the disease.

"I should like to be able to tell all sufferers from eczema to stop experimenting with useless remedies and use Zam-Buk. By using this balm in the first place they would save themselves needless suffering and expense."

Zam-Buk should be in every home, not only for skin troubles, boils, rashes, pimples, abscesses and ulcers, but also for cuts, burns and scalds, for which it is indispensable. Get a box to-day. It will keep indefinitely and still retain its strength and purity. All dealers, 50c. box

Unoin Stock Yards—Receipts, 196 cars, with 3,916 cattle, 976 calves, 1,290 hogs, and 77 sheep and lambs.

The market was slow and prices barely steady at the same level as a week ago yesterday. That is to say, not so firm or so high as during the few days of the packers' strike, and the consequent short supplies coming in, but about even with prices immediately preceding the strike.

Best cows and bulls firm and steady. The dog market is unsettled, but probably easier, and is quoted by the packers 50c. lower for to-day's market, though hogs were sold to-day at last week's prices.

DOCTOR PRESCRIBED VINOL

For This Poor Mother Who Could "Hardly Drag Around."

Glasgow Jct., Ky.—"I am a farmer's wife and was suffering from a nervous breakdown—loss of flesh and poor appetite so I could hardly drag around and do the work for my family. My doctor prescribed Vinol. It not only made me well and strong but I have gained in weight." Mrs. S. M..

The reason Vinol proved such a wonderful strength creator in Mrs. Gray's case is because of the best cod liver peptonate, iron and manganese peptonates and glycerophosphates combined in a pure, native tonic wine, which makes Vinol the most successful tonic.

NEW NAME WILL BE SUBSTITUTED.

At the monthly meeting of the Parents' Circle of Queen Mary School, held on Friday afternoon, 9th May, in the school, the president, Mrs. S. T. Medd, who had been attending a convention of Home and School Clubs in Toronto, gave a very interesting account of the work accomplished there and in other cities by these clubs.

Mrs. Malcolm McCulloch read a paper treating on the work and duties of the teacher from a parents' point of view. The subject was broadly handled and much appreciated by the teachers and parents present.

It was decided to change the name of Parents' Circle to the more comprehensive one of Home and School Association.

At the next monthly meeting, to be held on 13th June, Mrs. W. R. Morris will give a paper on "The Woman Voter."

By GERTRUDE ATHERTON

The awful collapse of this cherished structure, her spiritual house, under her hopeless and violent passion for Dwight Rush had almost demoralized her. After she had won herself to reason once more, she still had sat, stunned, among the ruins. It was true that Rush was all that she had demanded of man and that he emanated a promise of happiness along strictly modern lines—which was all she asked, being no romantic fool; but not only had she loved him unasked, sacrificing the first and perhaps the dearest of her dreams, to be wooed and awakened and surprised, but, accepting the inevitable (the man being overburdened, like most busy young Americans, and unself-conscious), she deliberately had set herself to awaken him—and for nought. For worse than nought: he had instantly taken fright and withdrawn.

Of the terrific upheaval of that time, like some graveyard of the sea flung putrid and phosphorescent to the surface by submarine vulcanism, she had ceased to think as soon as her will was reinstated in command. Immediately she had striven to rebuild her house lest she be swamped in mere femaleness, so permanently demoralized that life would be quite unendurable. She had cultivated the heights too long. She might tumble off occasionally, but in no other atmosphere could she breathe deeply and realize herself, find any measure of content. It had occurred to her that if she had been born in the gutter and grown to adolescence with no ennobling influence she would have developed into a notable force for evil. At all events, she liked to think so; many women of stainless lives do.

She guessed this, having a saving sense of humour, but did not expand it, not being inclined to humour at the moment. Accompanying her resolution to be finer and better than ever, to fortify herself against life with some degree of satisfaction in herself, was the hope of complete deliverance from what she called the Dwight Rush Idea. In due course she had conquered the obsession, for pride and self-disgust served her like first-aid surgeons on the battlefield; and although she felt amputated and scarred, she had lost her sense of humiliation. But her heart still accelerated its beats when she met Rush, and no will is strong enough to prevent the recurrence of the mental image; only time can dim it. But it was not until Broderick had left her alone in her studio with the poisons of fear and jealousy implanted that she had admitted she still loved him, probably must continue to love him for years to come.

In that hour she had hated Mrs. Balfame, although she neither believed her guilty nor was tempted to the dastardly course of helping to fasten the appearance of guilt upon her. And for a time that night she had hoped she hated Dwight Rush also, so utterly disgusted and indignant was she that he could prefer a faded woman of forty-odd to a unique and beautiful girl like herself.

But once more Miss Crumley's sense of proportion enforced itself, and she reflected sternly that men had fallen in love with women older than themselves since the world began, and that some of those transcendent—and lasting—passions had made history. She was no green village girl to be astounded at the least common phase of the sexual adventure. It was then she had given way to tears, for although she might be intelligent enough to admit this most unpardonable of nature's informalities, she could regret it with bitterness and despair.

Later had come her fear for Rush's safety. Not for a moment did she suspect him of the crime, but if accused of it during the process of elimination, there was the appalling doubt that he could prove an alibi. As likely as not he had missed his man in Brooklyn—she knew that he had expected to dine and spend the evening at the Country Club—or had not gone there; knowing Balfame's ugly temper when drunk, what more natural than that he should hide in the grounds to be near at hand in case the man were disposed to wreak vengeance on his wife for his own humiliation. It was Alys's theory that the murder was political.

Until today! From the moment that she saw Mrs. Balfame empty and rinse the vial, she was convinced that Broderick was right in his deductions and that for some reason the terrible woman had changed her mind and used the revolver. It was a stupider act than she would have expected of Mrs. Balfame, for Dave was a man whose sudden death would excite little suspicion, nor would Mrs. Balfame be the woman to use a common poison. Her intimacy with Dr. Anna would put her on the track for one of those organic potions that were too subtle for chemical analysis. She had heard doctors talk of them herself.

Then abruptly she recalled the sinister change in Mrs. Balfame's smiling countenance on that day she sketched her at the Friday club; her mind opened and closed on the conviction that in that moment Mrs. Balfame had conceived the purpose of murder.

But why the change of method? She dismissed the riddle. It was not for her to unravel. Nor did she care. The fact was enough. This good friend of her family was an abominable creature from whom in even mental contact she shuddered away with a spasm of spiritual nausea.

But that was not her own problem. No doubt Mrs. Balfame would be acquitted; Alys hoped so, at all events, for she wanted no such a stain on Elsinore, where, she thanked God, she lived, although she sought knowledge and income in the City of New York. For the same reason, she had no desire that the guilty woman should pay her debt by even a brief term in Auburn; but all that was beside the point. What Alys felt she would give her soul to ravish from this thrice accursed woman, so formidable in her peril, were the services of Dwight Rush. If he were Mrs. Balfame's chief counsel he would see her constantly, and alone—for hours on end, perhaps, for he must consult with her, rehearse her, instruct her, keep up her spirits, console her. This might not be the whole duty of counsel, but in the circumstances no doubt she had underestimated, if anything. And even if he believed her guilty, he might in that intimacy love her the more; not only would he pity her profoundly and see himself her natural protector, but he would be heart and soul in the great case, and it would not be long before the case and the woman were one.

If, however, Rush could be made to believe now that the woman was a murderess, would he not decline to take the case? He was hardly the man to defend man or woman whom from the outset he knew to be guilty, although when immersed in the case he would keep on, whatever the revelations. Alys believed that it was impossible for her to convince him. She could inform him of the needle-witted Mr. Broderick's suspicions and of her own confirmations; and she could tell him of her certain knowledge that Mrs. Balfame had a revolver; she had seen it eight months ago, when Balfame brought it home from New York and told his wife to discharge it in the air if, when alone, she heard a man breaking in.

It had signified little to her at the moment that Mrs. Balfame had denied to police and reporters that she possessed a revolver, for it might by chance by a lie, and it was not to be expected that even an innocent woman would challenge public doubt and possible arrest. But her denial and probable concealment of the weapon were significant to Alys now. She remembered that Dr. Anna had spent the early hours of Sunday alone with Mrs. Balfame. No doubt the wicked woman had found both relief and counsel in confessing to a friend like Anna Steuer, a creature so strong and staunch that the secret would be as safe as in her own guilty soul. Anna, of course, had taken the pistol and dropped it in the marsh when she visited Farmer Houston's wife later in the day. If she could but get Dr. Anna to speak.

Alys raised her eyes under their bent and frowning brows and looked up to where the Brabant Hospital stood on rising ground beside the sea. She gave a gasp as she found herself turning the horse's head in that direction. What did she intend to do? Denounce Mrs. Balfame to Dwight Rush? She fancied she heard an inner crash. Could she do this and escape the final demoralization? Heretofore she had at least committed no act involving moral degradation; her upheavals had affected herself alone and were her inviolate secret; but if she made a last desperate throw to win Dwight Rush by first filling him with loathing of her rival, she would be committed to a course of conduct from which there would be no escape for months, perhaps years to come. For if she won him,—toward which end she must plan with every female art she knew,—she never could raise her soul with confession. Her only chance of keeping a man like that, after the first effulgence had merged into the healthy temperateness of practical married life, was to avoid the major disillusions.

And if she by her own deliberate act went to pieces morally, could she stay up? Should she even want to stay up? Could one deliberately knock the foundations from under one's cherished spiritual structure, reared with infinite pains upon natural inclinations, and continue to be even a pale reflection of one's higher self? She might, after the first excitement of striving to achieve her immediate object was over, hate herself too deeply to love or even to live.

She drew her brows more closely and expelled her breath through her teeth. For the moment, at least, she felt all female, ready to defy the future and her own soul to obtain possession of her mate. That he was her mate she obstinately believed, temporarily deflected from his natural progress toward herself by one of those powerful delusions that afflict every man in the course of his life. And if she did not open his eyes at once, the temporary defection would merge into the straight course toward marriage with a she-demon.

She drove into the hospital yard, threw the reins over Colonel Roosevelt's back and asked for the superintendent, Mrs. Dissosway, who happened to be her aunt.

Neurasthenia

THIS word "neurasthenia" simply means nerve weakness. While the exhaustion of the nerves usually affects the whole body, making one feel tired, listless and discouraged, the symptoms vary in individual cases.

One may suffer from nervous headaches; another may have spinal trouble; a third nervous indigestion or weakened action of the kidneys or bowels.

Some patients look perfectly well and are cheerful, while others are nervously ill and mentally gloomy and despondent.

Neurasthenia might be described as a "curable" form of nervous disease, for in this way it differs from paralysis and locomotor ataxia, which in their more advanced stages cannot be cured.

It requires patient treatment to build up the exhausted nervous system, and you are sure to have discouraging days—days when you wonder if you are really getting better after all.

But the persistent use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is bound to restore your nervous system because it is composed of the ingredients which nature has intended for this very purpose.

Perhaps the best way to give you an idea of what you may expect from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is to quote this interesting letter.

Mrs. J. A. Wright, Barwick, Ont., writes:

"Last Spring I felt very miserable, scolded most all the time, and didn't care if I never ate anything. I never was hungry, and it seemed as if what little food I did take did not digest. I could not sleep, and my heart was in a weak condition. It would flutter, stop for a second and then beat so hard that I could hear it thump. I sent for several boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and by the time I had taken four boxes I felt quite well, and have been ever since. The nerve food strengthened my stomach, relieved my heart and built up my strength better than any other medicine ever did. I am positive the use of these pills saved me a large doctor's bill, and I would strongly advise anyone suffering from run-down system or similar ailments to give it a trial."

Equal Rights for Women

Every woman has the right to be as healthy, vigorous and efficient as her husband, son, brother, or friend. Nature intended woman to be unhampered and unhandicapped by any sex weakness. But, unfortunately, woman is very predisposed to constipation, not of necessity, but due to faults or bad habits of omission or commission.

Constipation is nothing but a bad habit. Taking purgative, cathartic, or laxative medicines to force the bowels to move is another bad habit—even a worse habit.

But Nujol is particularly suitable for the overcoming of constipation and its resulting evils in women.

Nujol is not a drug—does not act like any drug.

Nujol acts by bringing about a readjustment of the mechanism provided and intended by Nature for the removal of food waste from the body.

Nujol is effective at any age, under any conditions, especially during those periods and conditions in which the use of purgatives, cathartic or laxative medicines is not only harmful, but dangerous. Nujol is safe, pleasant to take, sensible, agreeable in effects, never forms a bad habit.

Get a bottle of Nujol from your druggist today, and send coupon for free booklet, "Thirty Feet of Danger."

HELPED BY WESTERN IDEALS

American Missionaries Must Be Given Much Credit for the Uplifting of John Chinaman.

He is now to be found in every country of the globe. As an immigrant he comes ignorant of language and subject to oppressive laws, but he makes his own way. Drop him down on any spot on the earth's surface and he will make a living for himself and ask odds of no one. The Chinese beggar in a foreign land is unknown. He is miserly and lives cheaply only when circumstances compel. When prosperity smiles there is no more generous people. As a trader and a merchant he has no equal. In the Philippines there are only 50,000 Chinese, less than 1 per cent of the total population. But this handful of Chinese controls 90 per cent of the retail trade of the islands. In trade, in scholarship, in bodily strength and endurance, in industry John Chinaman individually is able to hold his own against all comers. He can live and prosper in adverse conditions where all other races fail. Yet his country is weak and helpless against the aggressions of smaller countries and its future is a subject of apprehension and doubt. Official corruption, superstition, provincial spirit instead of national patriotism, bind the country to old forms, and make its progress slow and uncertain. Western ideals and learning, carried to China largely by the American missionary, are helping now to show more clearly the ways to advancement and are loosening some of the old bonds.—World's Work.

You Look As YOU FEEL

You know well enough when your liver is loafing.

Constipation is the first warning; then you begin to "feel mean all over."

FROM EVE TO MODERN DAME

Evolution of Feminine Attire From the Simple Fig Leaf Is Most Interesting Study.

When Eve first started out to dress to cover up her nakedness, she picked the fig leaves soft and green—admired, perhaps their dusky sheen. But soon her daughters found this shade quite unbecoming to a maid with tresses neither gold nor red; so substituted grass instead, which made them yellow skirts when dried, and satisfied primeval pride. And then the blondes found peacock blue was quite their most becoming hue, and robbed that bird of plumage rare to decorate their sunny hair; while raven locks of the brunettes were strung with bright red featherettes.

From beasts they took both fur and hide, and still their wants were not supplied; they found the silk worm at his loom, at which his business took a boom; they sheared Angora sheep and goats to make therefrom their winter coats.

From fields of cotton and of flax came fabrics to adorn their backs; and now to Hooverize on waste, they've spider webs with beadwork traced! Eve's modesty is quite forgot—we've evoluted such a lot.—Mrs. V. W. S., in the Kansas City Star.

Adventure in Fiction.

In each army Y. M. C. A. building in the training camps of America there is a circulating library of books provided by the American Library association, and one of the duties of the secretary is to see to the circulation of the books among the soldiers.

In a Y. M. C. A. building at Camp Forrest a bright-faced young soldier leaned against the counter and earnestly inquired, "Have you got any algebra books?"

The secretary, delighted at this manifestation of interest in higher things, scanned the book shelves.

"No, my boy," he replied. "I'm sorry to say that I haven't. I have several arithmetics, but not a single algebra. Will anything else do?"

"Oh, give me any good book of adventure," said the boy.

And presently the secretary recovered sufficiently to realize that the soldier wanted a book by Horatio Alger, and selecting "Pluck and Luck, or From Porter to President," he sent the applicant on his way rejoicing.

Vision of an Empress.

Has anyone taken time to think of Empress Eugenie, widow of Napoleon III, just at this time? Nearly half a century ago she saw her France overthrown and outraged and humiliated and the terms of the humiliation laid down in her own beautiful palace at Versailles by booted and spurred German insolence. She saw her husband dethroned to die in exile. Later she mourned the death in battle under an alien flag of her only son. Dismembered.

The dim eyes of the old woman, who has known so much of pomp and pride and humiliation and exile, will now see the authors of her undoing stripped and bending with bowed head before the high court of civilization and without an extenuating circumstance to plead.

Surely a fitting and dramatic close to an historic life.

WILLINGLY GAVE UP WEALTH

Dr. Remsen, Discoverer of Saccharin, Was Satisfied That Its Use Was Injurious to Health.

A romantic history is attached to the discovery of saccharin. The discoverer of the chemical derivative of coal tar, to which the name saccharin is popularly given, is Dr. Ira Remsen, chief consulting chemist of the United States department of agriculture.

He was at first very enthusiastic as to the possibilities of this artificial sweetstuff, which has a sweetening power about 500 times that of sugar. Its manufacture was organized on a large scale, and soon enormous quantities were being used in making ice cream and the soda water syrups to which Americans are addicted.

Doctor Remsen was making an income of something like $100,000 a year from his shares in the company when about five years ago his friend, Doctor Wylie, head of the United States pure food bureau, suggested a doubt of the wholesomeness of saccharin.

Doctor Remsen thereupon submitted himself to rigorous tests of the action of saccharin on the digestive organs and on the heart. As a result he asked the department to issue an order prohibiting its use as a food-sweetener.

Passing of Emma.

Emma is dead. She died, not perhaps altogether that others might live, but she surely died to make an American holiday. Most of her life she had been petted and dined, for it was designed that she put on weight, much as the female of the species objects to embonpoint. Emma was, in her tender youth, removed from base hospital 15 to base 32. And that is just where interest for all the folks at home who have boys at base 32 starts, for surely no member of the hospital so far forgot his surroundings as not to mention Emma in his letters. So Emma grew and grew. Recently the end came. It was announced in a letter home thus laconically and graphically: "We ate Emma yesterday." She was served to the hospital attaches, and while it may be disloyal to say so, the diners say she tasted better than American pork. But weep not, you outsiders who read this, for Emma was only a wild hog.—Stars and Stripes.

Inconsiderate Infantry.

One artillery unit worked hard during the afternoon of the second day of the attack to get its pieces into position. It had moved up for the second time, and had not fired a shot.

It was four o'clock when the lieutenant in command gave orders for every one to stand by. The gunners were to fire their first volley into the German lines.

Every one stood waiting for the final word when the telephone rang and word came that the infantry had advanced so far that it would be necessary to move up again before going into action.

"Oh!" said a gunner; "those infantry guys ain't got no respect for us at all!"—Stars and Stripes.

Conscientious Objector.

"I'm a conscientious objector," exclaimed the Prussian general who was about to go out of office.

"To war?"

"No. To peace."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

TAKING A CHANCE

By LINCOLN ROTHBLUM

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Jiggers, the boss!"

And upon the heels of the whispered warning Mr. Joseph Q. Hattlebury, heavy-footed and always sober, entered the sanctum of his private office.

The "Q," it must be stated, had been added to his name coincident with his appointment to the vacant presidency of the Consolidated Metals corporation, marking a very gradual rise from his lowly beginning as errand boy for this same business institution some 40 years back. There was about as much logic to his belief that the "Q," which stood for nothing, added a unique dignity to his name, as for his idea, assimilated through the course of his career, that heavy-footed walking was an indication of a "dominant personality." Of course, Mr. Joseph Q. Hattlebury would not have characterized it so, principally for the reason that he seldom knew the meaning of or how to spell words of greater than monosyllable length.

At the door, labeled in letters of warning size "Private," banged shut, a small, thinnish fellow, with deep-set eyes, looked up from the large sheet over which he was bent, and retrieving the lighted cigarette from his pocket, whisked relievedly. His thinning hair and the telltale crow's feet about the eyes seemed to vie oddly with his boyish mannerisms.

"If it hadn't been for your 'Jiggers,' Helen, I'd 've been caught that time sure."

Helen rested her hands, with their network of blue-veined ridges, on the keys of her comptometer. Helen could no longer be called exactly young, but an indefinable happy turn to her lips reflected a never-absent sense of humor. She was conservatively and economically dressed in a dark serge skirt which eloquently testified by its sheen its fourth year of continuous service. Black, low-heeled shoes and a white lawn waist completed the businesslike severity of her costume, relieved only by a small amethyst brooch fastened to the throat.

"Right you are, Rodney," she replied, but her voice did not have its usual buoyancy. The man noticed it.

"What's the matter, old scout?" he asked concisingly, getting up from his chair and proffering her a bag of candy. She refused the confection.

"Tired, Helen?"

"Yes, I am—tired to think that you've got to hide a cigarette in your pocket as if you were a little kid, and tired of that," pointing contemptuously to the door marked "Private," "old-maid teacher."

Rodney smiled. "Let up on the old maids, Helen. You're living in a glass house all your own."

"Oh, but I'm a woman and it makes no difference if I push the keys of this comptometer forever. But you're supposed to be a man and make a name for yourself in this world. Does the prospect of smoking when it pleases the other fellow appeal to you for the rest of your life?"

Rodney stood silent. This was a new Helen.

"Look here, Helen, we've been working together now for nearly ten years right in this office, and you've never talked this way before. You know I've never dared risk starting something for fear I'd fail. So I've been content to put up with the old man."

"Well, you've got to take a chance some time. Shame, that for the security of three meals a day you've been content to lodge in a rut! Don't follow my example. Here I am well along in the thirties, and still letting this thing think for me," and she gave the comptometer a vicious shove. "You get out, Rodney, and take a chance. A man at forty is still young these days."

Helen smiled at the unusualness of their conversation and her new role of adviser. She couldn't help smiling.

"Well, I'll tell you what," he answered, as he clapped his hands together to seal the bargain, "you suggest the venture, and I'll do it—or bust."

Helen laughed out loud. "Foolish," she said, without serious intent, "to buy a delicatessen."

Rodney's mouth closed with a snap. "Jiggers, the boss!"

And as Mr. Joseph Q. Hattlebury reentered the outer office he found his employees zealously performing those duties for which he never let them forget he paid them. He tramped noisily over to Helen's desk. Despite her dislike for him, she could never help but feel that he treated her just a little more considerate that he did the others.

"I'd like to see those totals, Miss Bently," he said in stentorian tones, and Helen shivered as he leaned his portly frame over her. He did not seem to be paying much attention to the figures as he nervously fingered his watch charm. "Come into my office," he ordered peremptorily.

Puzzled, she followed him into the room, and Rodney looked up as the door closed with its customary bang. "Here's where she gets it," he thought.

Perhaps Helen was "getting it."

"Miss Bently," her employed abruptly began. He cleared his throat with a rasping noise and Helen fortified herself for the worst. "I intend to make you my wife."

Helen reeled.

"You've been a good employee for the past ten years," he went on, as if he were merely increasing her salary, "and I don't think you'll waste my money if I marry you."

He paused to cough. "Does the lady select the wedding day?" he perfunctorily examined.

A hot and scathing refusal was on Helen's lips. Oh! The man's audacious arrogance! Was she nothing but another step in his upward progress? Did she have no choice? How long had she been under consideration? Was her position in jeopardy? The questions raced like flashes of lightning through her confused mind. Then all in a panorama there passed before her the years of confining hours, the toiling days and the nights without relaxation—just work, work and more work—that one might live. The very whiteness of her waist seemed to implore surcease from frequent washings and the shiny serge skirt silently pleaded honorable discharge from duties.

And here was liberation! Within her grasp was material ease for the rest of her years. Helen hesitated.

"May I have time to think it over, Mr. Hattlebury?" she asked slowly.

He seemed puzzled as to what necessitated consideration. "Yes," he finally answered, "you may have a week."

As Helen returned to her desk Rodney looked up—and promptly down again. Helen was crying.

In the next succeeding days she was grateful that he did not question her. But Rodney was preoccupied in his own affairs.

It was the afternoon of the fifth day.

"Helen," Rodney called abruptly as he heard the last echoing footsteps of their employer down the hall, "will you marry me?"

Helen's hand went to her forehead. Two proposals in one week for a woman who had reached her thirty-eighth birthday without any. Rodney came over to her.

"Listen, Helen. I've been thinking a great deal about what you told me that other day—about making something of myself. You're right. I've been in a rut."

Helen shoved her comptometer to one side. This was a new Rodney.

"So I went and stuck the six hundred I've saved up in the cutest little delicatessen you ever saw. It's got cans of stuff on the shelves and cheeses on the counter and cakes in the case and flour in the bin, and," he ran on excitedly without stopping for breath as Helen grasped his coat sleeve in the contagious enthusiasm, "there is a good trade. It'll be slow slugging at first, lot and lots of work, but—but it's a go."

He leaned toward her with arms extended. "All it needs—all I need is a wife—that'll make everything complete."

Helen could not speak. Something was choking her.

"I'll be good to you," he pleaded, taking her silence for a refusal. "I'll do all the work. Honest I will. I just want you to encourage me. Won't you please? It means—oh, it means independence!"

Rodney stopped. Helen was crying—again. He sat down on her desk and with one hand about her shoulder he patted her head with the other.

"Jiggers, the boss!" he called as the door opened.

But they weren't in time. Mr. Joseph Q. Hattlebury had seen. He brought his foot down after the other with a portentous thud.

"Miss Bentley," he snorted in high indignation, "after my talk, what does this mean? I cannot give you a week to decide. Choose now."

Helen stopped crying and looked from her opinionated employer to Rodney with his deep-set eyes still pleading his cause. The one held promise of comfort and of affluence; the other, work—and independence.

"Oh, I'll take a chance," she said. "I choose the delicatessen."

Poetic Justice!

The first four letters of the name Amerongen, which designates the moated castle in Holland where the former Kaiser Wilhelm II is observing the twilight of the Hohenzollerns as rulers, compose the French word meaning bitter. One might find in this a fitting reply to the name of the place where, under Frederick the Great, Hohenzollernism began its rampant career. This Potsdam castle, with its French elegance, Voltaire associations and German mechanism for raising the dinner table, the monarch named in French "Sans-Souci" (without care) and for nearly two centuries it has shone forth a brilliant example of Prussian impertinence. But now the Hohenzollern has his cares, and no doubt they are bitter.

Cheerful Blinded Soldiers.

Cheerful news comes along from St. Dunstan's allotment holdens. Here, as in other directions, the blinded soldiers are making good. H. Clarke, a poultry farmer at Edwinstowe, is winner of the first prize for the best potatoes and carrots at a local show, we read in the current number of St. Dunstan's Review, and on another page of this bright little record of the blinded soldiers' work and sport, we read: "One allotment holder, who is otherwise occupied during the day, contends that he has the advantage over ordinary sighted people, for he need not hurry home to put in an hour before dark: he can get on with it while they are in bed!"—London Mail.

In Prospect.

Summer
Is stirring
When it's far away
In the hazy
Distance
Looks so bright
And gay.
But
When it
Is closer
And we feel the sting
Then we think
It's rather
Overdone the thing.
When
The frosts
Of winter
Nip our classic nose
And we sit
Root wonder
Why
So hard it snows,
And the weather
Chilly
Seems to be
A crime.
Then
We sort of hanker
For
The summer time.
But when it
Is doing Business
At our door
And is very Friendly
Then we raise
A roar.
Summer
Is delightful
When it isn't here.
That Applies to any Season
In the year.

COUGHED, COUGHED ALL NIGHT LONG

Terribly wearing on the system is the cough that comes at night and prevents sleep. Sometimes it is a constant cough, cough that will not be quieted.

Sometimes it is a choked-up, stuffed-up feeling that makes breathing difficult, and sleep impossible.

Whatever kind of a cold or cough you have, Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is the remedy you need to cure it, for the simple reason that this valuable preparation combines all the lung healing virtues of the Norway pine tree with which is combined wild cherry bark, and the soothing, healing and expectorant properties of other excellent herbs and barks.

Miss Margaret Landly, Bristol, P.E.I., writes: "I am writing to tell you the benefit I have received from Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

Last fall I took a severe cough and cold in my head. I was unable to do anything. At night I could not sleep, but cough, cough, all night long. A friend advised me to use Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and before the second bottle was used, I was entirely cured, and I have found this the best cough medicine I can buy."

Do not accept any other "pine" preparations when you ask for "Dr. Wood's." This remedy has been on the market for a quarter of a century. It is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25c. and 50c. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Start Tomorrow and Keep It Up Every Morning

Get in the habit of drinking a glass of hot water before breakfast.

We're not here long, so let's make our stay agreeable. Let us live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, and look well, what a glorious condition to attain, and yet, how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It clears out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of inside-bathing before breakfast.

LIFT OFF CORNS!

Doesn't hurt at all and costs only a few cents

Magic! Just drop a little Freezone on that touchy corn, instantly it stops aching, then you lift the corn off with the fingers. Truly! No humbug!

Try Freezone! Your druggist sells a tiny bottle for a few cents, sufficient to rid your feet of every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and callouses, without one particle of pain, soreness or irritation. Freezone is the discovery of a noted Cincinnati genius.

The Passing of the Extremely Long Skirt Foreshadows the Prestige of the Abbreviated One.

Challis the Latest Whim of Fashion

The modes of New York are quite as capricious as the weather. No sooner is a style launched and accepted than something new attracts the eye of the designers and then—another new mode. Such has happened with the popular long, narrow skirt. No longer is the long skirt the smartest thing to wear. Skirts are becoming shorter. This change we may easily hold Paris responsible for. During the craze for the long skirt here, Paris slowly shook her head in disapproval, and now we are feeling the effects of her negative mien. Street dresses, suits, evening gowns, every skirt is becoming shorter. This will be a welcomed style, for the discomfort of the long, tight skirt will be eliminated. The shorter length makes the skirt less cumbersome about the ankle, thus affording more freedom in walking. And freedom in walking means grace of carriage, so we hearld the mode with a sigh of content.

A Chic Design in Challis

The same attitude that Paris took toward the long skirt has been lavished on the straw hat. Though New York is overrun with hats of straw, reports from Paris say that in the restaurant and on the street one sees little if any hats of straw. The French women realize the folly of rushing the seasons and are clinging to their hats which are developed in fabrics. Of these satin seems to be the most predominate material used, and usually one finds ostrich trimming present. If a touch of Spring is desired, the hats are graced with coquettish little flowers in pastel shades.

Old-Time Challis

A myriad of designs are offered in the fetching challis creations that promise to be an essential part of the summer wardrobe. This soft woolen material makes up in the prettiest of designs. If the challis is of a plain color, then one deftly embroiders it in silk or wool of a contrasting color. If it possesses pretty dots or delicate stripes then one adds a collar of sheer organdie or soft linen with cuffs and a sash r soft linen with cuffs and a sash a match.

Dressed in a challis frock one wears a hat of the same material which is faced with straw or some contrasting material and completes the costume with a challis parasol. A frock of foulard will be desirable, and a Paris designer presents an innovation in the looping four times of the back and front panel and bound in white at the edges.

BRITISH AIRMEN STILL HELD UP

Adverse Winds Reported Whole Way Across the Atlantic.

Canadian Press:

ST. JOHNS, Nfld., May 12 (1.30 p.m.).—With adverse winds reported the whole way across the Atlantic, the British airmen here have abandoned flying to-day. The general belief now is that they are purposely waiting a full moon on Wednesday. Messages from Trespassey say the American airmen will test their new motors this afternoon, and, if satisfactory, may fly immediately, but weather experts here think conditions are unpromising for them also.

Just Apply This Paste and the Hairs Will Vanish

(Boudoir Secrets)

The judicious use of a delatone paste insures any woman a clear, hairless skin. To prepare the paste mix a little of the powdered delatone with some water, then apply to the objectionable hairs for 2 or 3 minutes. When the paste is removed, and the skin washed, every trace of hair will have vanished. No pain attends the use of the delatone and it will not mar the most sensitive skin, but to insure results, see that you get real delatone.

A Rapid Calculation Trick.

By means of a simple arrangement of numbers a calculation can be made which will easily puzzle any unsuspecting person. If the two numbers 41,090 and 83 be written out in multiplication form very few will endeavor to write down the answer directly without first going through the regular work. By placing the 3 in front of the 4 and the 8 back of the 0 the answer is obtained at once, thus: 41,090x83 equals 3,410,968. A larger number which can be treated in the same way is the following: 4,109,580,041,096x83 equals 341,095,890,410,968.—Popular Mechanics.

A Stonehenge Legend.

Friar's Heel is the name given to a large stone at Stonehenge, England. An interesting tale surrounds the placing of this stone in its present upright position. It is related that Geoffrey of Monmouth said that the devil bought some stones of an old woman in Ireland, wrapped them up in withies and took them to Salisbury plain. Before he got to Mount Ambre the withies broke and one of the stones fell into the Avon; the rest were carried to the plain. After the fiend had fixed them in the ground he cried out, "No man will ever find out how these stones came here." A friar replied, "That's more than thou can tell," whereupon the fiend threw one of the stones at him and struck him on the heel. The stone stuck in the ground and is said to remain there to the present hour.

A Remarkable Prediction.

Manasseh Cutler of Massachusetts, in a circular in 1787 "booming" the settlement which the New Englanders were about to plant on the Ohio at the mouth of the Muskingum, declared that "the current down the Ohio and the Mississippi" for produce and merchandise of all sorts would one day "be more crowded than any other streams on earth," which was a remarkable prediction considering that it was made twenty years before Fulton's Clermont was launched in the Hudson, which was the first steamboat in the world ever put in successful operation.

Turned Laugh on Jokers.

We do not think of M. Clemenceau as the sort of man on whom practical jokes would be played, yet he was the victim of an elaborate jest some while ago—in pre-war times, needless to say—and he accepted the position with commendable grace.

A number of Parisians received bogus invitations to dine at the premier's house. Some were total strangers, and their grateful acceptance mystified M. Clemenceau until he realized the hoax.

He did not put them off. He ordered the dinner, and gave his guests a pleasant evening. Not until the evening was drawing to a close did he inform them that their invitations had been sent out by some one of whose identity he had not the remotest knowledge.

Juice of Lemons! How to Make Skin White and Beautiful

At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quarter pint of the most wonderful lemon skin softener and complexion beautifier, by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white. Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as sallowness, freckles and tan and is the ideal skin softener, smoothener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any pharmacy and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It naturally should help to soften, freshen, bleach and bring out the roses and beauty of any skin. It is wonderful to smoothen rough, red hands.

HOW MURDER WAS DONE

German Lieutenant Tells of End of Rosa Luxemburg.

BERLIN, May 12.—First Lieut. Vogel, suspected of having fired the shot which killed Rosa Luxemburg, the radical Socialist leader, was called to the witness stand in the trial of the alleged murders of Fraulein Luxemburg and Dr. Karl Liebknecht.

He admitted that at the preliminary investigation he gave a false account of the occurrence in order not to discredit his military division. He testified that he was instructed to convey Fraulein Luxemburg safely to Moabit prison, but found this impossible, owing to the presence of infuriated crowds which surrounded his motor car.

"Fraulein Luxemberg," he said, "was given two violent blows on the head with the butts of rifles by helmeted soldiers. She collapsed, and when we arrived at a bridge the thought came to us all to throw her body into the river."

SAVED LIFE OF OFFICER

Presentation to Sergeant Robert Urquhart of the 15th Battalion.

BADLY WOUNDED

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, May 13.—"I thought you were of more use out there than I was." These were the words of Sergt. Robert Urquhart, of the 15th Battalion, of 201 Erindale avenue, after he had been severely wounded by a "Minnie" in an effort to save the life of his company commander, Lieut.-Col. C. E. Bent, C.M.G., D.S.O., near Hill 60. The story was only revealed today after Mrs. Brent had presented Sergeant Urquhart with a gold watch and chain, the gift of Col. and Mrs. Bent as a token of the sergeant's gallant action back in 1916. The presentation took place at the Arena last night at the 15th Battalion's grand ball, but had been kept a secret until Colonel Bent told the story to-day. "The battalion were in the line near Hill 60," said Col. Bent in relating the story, "and on this day in particular, April 28, 1916, we had been having a rather severe strafing from the Boche line. Our casualties were rather heavy, due particularly to the fire of a number of Hun 'Minnewerfers.'" In the evening I was doing a tour of our company lines in No. 2 Company and met Sergeant Urquhart, who was then acting as company sergeant-major, standing in the bay of a trench.

Shielded Officer.

I stood talking to Urquhart for some minutes, facing the Boche trenches. We discussed the "Minnies" and Urquhart suddenly shouted, "Look out, sir, here's one now." As he said this he had his back to the oncoming shell and threw his arms out and around me in an effort to shield me from the explosion. The "Minnie" burst on the trench at his back and in exploding, Urquhart received a considerable number of the pieces in his back, being severely wounded and taken the dressing station. "If he had not done this," continued Col. Bent, "I probably would have been killed, but as it was I was not wounded. I went over to the dressing station a short while after to visit him and said, "Well, Bob, old fellow, what did you do that for." "I thought you were more more use out here than I was," he replied.

For this gallant action Sergeant Urquhart received the gold watch and chain last night with the following inscription engraved inside, "Presented to Sergeant Robert Urquhart, 15th Battalion, by Mrs. Bent, for saving the life of Lt.-Col. C. E. Bent near Hill 60, April 28th, 1916." For this action Sergeant Urquhart was recommended for and received the Military Medal, at the recommendation of Col. Bent. Sergeant Urquhart is to be presented with the medal at the presentation of decorations at the Parliament Buildings at Queen's Park this afternoon.

Italian Problem Seems to Be Nearer a Solution as Result of a Conference

The Delegates Indicate a Willingness to Make Concessions—Change of Government Possible in Germany.

"A BRUTAL DICTATED PEACE," DECLARES GERMAN CHANCELLOR

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, May 13.—The Italian problem seemed nearer of solution at today's conferences among representatives here and it was thought probable that a basis of understanding would be reached during the day. The Italian representatives are reported to be evidencing more of a willingness to make concessions.

The discussions of the day began when Premier Orlando called upon Colonel E. House of the American delegation. The Council of Four held no meeting during the morning. No further communications had been received from German representatives at Versailles and experts to whom the last notes from Count Von Brockdorff-Rantzau had been referred had not yet reported. No meeting of the Council bein considered necessary, therefore, Allied Premiers, devoted the forenoon to individual work.

Change in Government.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, May 13.—The possibility of a change in the government of Germany as a result of the presentation of the Allied peace terms was discussed by Philip Scheidemann, German Chancellor at Berlin to-day, according to a despatch to the "Exchange Telegraph" Company from that city. The Chancellor denounced the peace terms, which he said represented a "brutal, dictated peace," it is said. The statement was made to foreign journalists in the former Chancellor's Palace, and in part follows:

"It is possible the government might be formed which would sign the peace terms, but it is doubtful whether the Allies would be satisfied with such a government. A reactionary government is out of all question and a Communist and Independent government would be acting for the people of whom they would represent only a small majority. Even if such government did sign the treaty it would be just as impossible for them to fulfil conditions as it would be for us."

"Not signing," continues the appeal, "means retention of our prisoners of war, occupation of our raw material districts, tightening of the blockade, unemployment, hunger and death en masse. It is the proletariat that would suffer most terribly from the consequences. Peace, as hard and oppressive as it may be, is necessary. The appeal is prefaced by the denunciation of the severity of the peace terms. It concludes with the demand that the workmen of all countries unite against capitalism for a world revolution.

Must Sign Treaty.

(Canadian Press.)

BERLIN, May 13. — "Even if important changes are not made by negotiations begun at Versailles there remains no choice but to bow to compulsion and sign the Treaty," says an appeal of the Central committee of the Independent Socialist Party in the party organ "Die Freiheit" this morning.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, May 13.—It developed this afternoon that Von Brockdorff-Rantzau, head of the German peace delegation, intends to ask permission to send German delegates to receive Austrian representatives, according to the "Havas Agency." It had previously been announced that the Allies intended to keep delegations wholly apart.

APPOINTMENT FOR MR. C. E. PARSONS

During his residence here Mr. Parsons has made an excellent citizen. He was very prominent in musical circles, an active member of the George street Methodist Church choir and superintendent of the Sabbath School. His removal from the city will be greatly regretted, as will also be the going away of Mrs. Parsons.

He will be succeeded here by Mr. J. B. Bryce, of Brantford, Ont.

PREPARING THE AUSTRIAN TREATY

Italy Will Be Given a Strategic Frontier.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, May 13. — In the peace treaty with Austria, now well toward completion, a responsibility clause has been inserted identical with that in the German treaty with the exception that the first clause, providing for the trial of former Emperor William is omitted. The remaining clauses makes provision for trial of military offenders by International court martial.

The frontier delimitation of new Austria presents one serious issue in the drawing of a treaty somewhat similar to that of the Saar Valley in the German treaty. This is, as regards the lower Tyrol, a section of which is detached from Austria and placed within the boundaries of Italy. It includes the cities of Bozen and Meran and an estimated German population of about 250,000. The reason for attaching this German-speaking population to Italy is establishment of a strategic frontier, giving Italy adequat, protection from invasion from the north.

PREPARING FOR VETERANS' DRIVE

Teams Met Last Night and Arranged Details of $15,000 Campaign.

At a largely attended meeting of the Great War Veterans and of the citizens who are to assist them in the campaign held in the G. W. V. A. Rooms last night, much of the preliminary work in preparing for the $15,000 drive next week on behalf of the Veterans' club-house fund was carried through. Mr. Roland Denne and Capt. A. S. Morrison are the joint chairmen of the committee, and Capt. R. E. Layfield is secretary.

At last night's meeting the six teams received their subscription books, lists of all the houses in their districts, and instructions as to the method of procedure, after which the various teams planned the campaign.

The drive will start next Monday morning, and will be carried through the week. There will be a house-to-house canvass, and no one in the city, if possible, will be overlooked. In addition to the six teams which cover the city, there will be a special committee to wait upon the manufacturers, etc.

The workers will meet each evening next week at 6.15 o'clock to make their reports and plan their work.

In addition to the drive there will be a big programme of activities throughout the week. On Monday the new club-rooms will be formally opened, the public being invited to the ceremony. On Tuesday night, in the new hall, there will be a big concert under the direction of Capt. Maurice Park. On Wednesday the Y.M.C.A. boys will give a revue in the Veterans' Hall. On Thursday night there will be a boxing tournament in the Armouries. Friday night the Ladies' Auxiliary of the G.W.V.A. will hold a dance and card party in the new rooms, and on Saturday, Victoria Day, there will be a big programme of sports at the Exhibition Grounds in the afternoon, followed by a military tattoo, an over the top show and other features at night, the evening performance being under the auspices of the G.W.V.A. Band. It will be the liveliest week Peterborough has had since before the war.

The workers will meet again tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in the G.W.V.A. Rooms, George Street, to complete their plans. Every member is urged to be present.

THERE IS NO ESCAPING.

If your eyes need the aid of glasses, do not delay until strain and misuse have impaired your chances of improvement. We can give you the help you need at the time you need it. Come in and see how comfortably we can fix you up. Consult W. H. Lacey, Optical Specialist, 410 George street. Open Wednesday evening.

TRIUMPHAL MARCH THROUGH PARIS ON THE 6TH OF JUNE.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, May 13.—A triumphal march of the Allied Armies through Paris will take place on 6th June, according to the present understanding.

The event will occur on that date, it is believed, even should the Peace Treaty not have been signed at that time.

To Weed Out Old Warships

170 Vessels of British Navy of Various Classes to be Sold.

LONDON, May 13.—About one hundred and seventy warships in the British Navy of various classes are to be offered to buyers as soon as they can be cleared for sale by the removal of guns and other equipment. Even this figure does not appear to be exhaustive, for with the advent of peace conditions no less than five classes of battleships, two classes of armoured cruisers, ten classes of other cruisers, and a very large number of small craft have been placed upon the non-effective list.

The removal of obsolete vessels sets free the personnel needed to start the nucleus of the crew system, and places out of commission ships which do not give adequate returns in fighting efficiency for their upkeep.

Classes Going Out.

The battleships that are going out range from the Redoubtable to the Africa of the King Edward type. The next class represented in the list is the Majestics. With the sale of the Exmouth, the Duncan and the Albemarle, the whole of the Admiral class built in 1901-2 will disappear from the Navy. The most recently built battleships for disposal are the Africa the Dominion and Hindustan of the King Edward class, built in 1903-4. The latest built cruiser to go is the Duke of Edinburgh, completed in 1906. The Drake and Cressy classes are for disposal. Three classes of what were called protected cruisers will go also, with smaller cruisers, such as the Argonaut and the Edgar, and more than one hundred destroyers comprising the A to F classes.

Secretary Daniels, according to reliable information, returns home with plans for a similar weeding of the deadwood out of the American Navy.

Lay in Your Supply of Good, Clean Wood, Cut This Winter.

We beg to announce a slight change in our price list for the present week. We announced two weeks ago that existing prices could not continue owing to increased costs of handling wood. This applies particularly to hardwood which we have been selling at ten dollars a cord, cut in stove lengths. This week this class of wood will be sold at ten dollars a cord, cutting extra. We are still selling slabs cut at four dollars a load and mixed wood at nine dollars a cord cut. Both of these grades have a good percentage of hardwood and are good buying at the prices quoted. This wood is not black with age, having been cut and piled in early part of the past winter. Call and inspect it and lay in your supply before prices go higher. Take the advice of one of the largest local coal and wood dealers who anticipates a worse fuel famine than ever next winter. Get your supply in early.

Our prices for this week are as follows:

Hardwood, four foot lengths—$10 a cord. Cutting extra.

Mixed wood—$8 a cord, cut.

Slabs—$4 a load, cut.

Peterborough Planing Mills wood yard, opposite the Braund Building, Charlotte street. Telephone 88. Call and inspect the wood. 8d-111

"The Powers That Be" Lack a Wide Grasp of Affairs, Says Veterans' Representative

Winnipeg Session of the Industrial Relations Commission—Organized Labour Ignored the Commission.

A RADICAL PROPOSAL FROM AN EMPLOYER OF LABOUR

By Main Johnston.

WINNIPEG, May 13.—Whatever else the Winnipeg sessions of the Industrial Relations Commission have accomplished they have brought to light one thoroughly radical proposal from an employer, F. A. Wellwood, who not only suggested a board of directors where owners of the capital would only have one third representation and a limitation of dividend to 2 per cent. but he also suggested that by taxation or some other method, private capital in his own company and throughout Canada should be progressively eliminated within a period of twenty years. Mr. Wellwood, who read from a typewritten statement said he and the other signatories, the memorandum represented ownership of majority part of capital of over one hundred thousand dollars employed in his concern. The number of employees was thirty-five The business was engaged in manufacture of mattress felts and similar commodities. Mr. Wellwood said he had called together his employees that very day and had read to them the terms of the proposal to be submitted to the Commission. They had received it with enthusiasm. There had been the usual and prevalent unrest among his employees but no actual industrial dispute. The memorandum recognized under the present system of industry and society the unequal distribution of wealth and hardship and, the government would have to take drastic action to equalize "the annual spendable income of individuals in Dominion."

Three Proposals

It proposed first the control of the business by three directors, one representing consumers of the commodity, another employees and the third the owners of capital employed. Second it proposed that a survey of the plant should be taken and all stock representing water and good will eliminated and that, "No dividend greater than two per cent. per annum be paid on actual capital employed." As a third proposal, the Government should find a way of supplementing the wages of married men or men with dependents. Cross questioned by the Commissioners, Mr. Wellwood said he thought the present system was "top heavy". He personally would be prepared to see his capital paid off in, say twenty annual instalments. He was quite prepared to live on a salary and he wanted to see everyone become a producer. He didn't think there was a necessity for incentive of profit. He gave it as his opinion that if rewards were equalized men, would be contented. The men themselves probably felt they could all have automobiles, like employers now. He himself felt it was more likely that he like them, would have to be content with a bicycle. In conclusion he reiterated his belief that the whole present system would have to be changed, or we would lose our civilization. Some policy must be presented: a definite policy, showing a transitional road, or the workers would break away.

Returned Soldiers.

The relation of labor and returned soldiers was brought directly to attention of Commission by J. O. Newton of Great War Veterans. Nine out of ten of soldiers had the same outlook as a laboring man for they belonged to the same class but there was one difference between them. Their attitude to alien enemies, many of the latter were members of unions who hesitated about taking action against them. On the other hand returned soldiers, union men and others, simply would not work alongside of undesirable enemies. The soldiers did not want to have any permanent dispute with labor and therefore were asking the Dominion Government to deport not only all enemy aliens, but all undesirables is that class. For three months there had been an alien investigation board operating in Winnipeg. In that time 2,630 cases had been brought before the board and 349 had been found undesirable, including aliens who had taken out naturalization papers by fraud. It was estimated that, of the 440,000 enemy aliens registered by the police in Canada, 94,500 would be undesirable. Mr. Newton did not have a high opinion of the 'powers that be' in Ottawa. If you went to see them, you felt they were not thoroughly educated men but that they were parochial without a wide grasp of affairs. They were also apathetic. Returned soldiers according to Mr. Newton's interpretation thought both labor and capital essential to industry. They did not like the extremists army capitalists especially profiteers, nor did they like extreme labor men. Those for instance who were talking something like a Russian Soviet republic for Canada. The commission again sat under the shadow of the threatened general strike. Organized labor officially ignored the commission in all its sessions but a large number of labor witnesses particularly "unskilled" men gave their personal views.

J. H. BURNHAM, M.P., EXPLAINS POSITION

A Largely Signed Petition Was Sent to the Federal Member.

The following letter is self-explanatory:

The Bonner-Worth Co., Limited;
Peterboro, Ont.,

Dear Sirs: I have received a very large petition, numbering some hundreds of names, headed by that of Allan Pilling, asking me to help in seeing that Canadian labour is protected.

There is evidently, as in the case of all these petitions—a number of which I have received lately—a fear that tariff reform, which is being threatened in some quarters will result in throwing Canada open to cheap foreign labour, or what is the same thing, to the products of cheap foreign labour.

The temptation to people to look to themselves as consumers often betrays them into courting disaster. It is, in the case of Canada, surely an attempt to kill the goose that lays the golden egg. It will however be found, I think, that the Canadian public is not a goose, and proper control will be maintained in tariff, public ownership and other matters by this government at any rate, notwithstanding the pressure that is being brought to bear upon it even from its own ranks.

You will oblige me by publishing this letter in the local press in order that all the signatories may see that I have received their petition and what my attitude is in the matter.

Yours truly,
J. H. BURNHAM

IMPATIENCE IS GROWING

Sir Robert Borden May Extend His Vacation Until the First of June.

TARIFF ISSUE

(Special to Examiner.)

OTTAWA, May 13. — Marked impatience is being manifested among the legislators over the Government's delay in bringing down the budget and the franchise bill. It is evident that Sir Thomas White is awaiting the return of Sir Robert Borden before taking the responsibility for the measures upon which the fate of the Government and the Unionists may depend. That Sir Robert will be back before the first of June is doubtful and the feeling is growing that Sir Thomas might just as well go ahead. Impatience at the delay is manifested particularly among the western men. Dr. Clark, of Red Deer, who is one of the Unionist Liberals to whom a seat and desk was accorded within more favored circles, has apparently definitely abandoned it and sits on the cross benches which mark the independents. Others show signs of following suit.

In fact, while the secrets of the budget are still locked in the breast of a man who will deliver it, namely Sir Thomas White, the impression is growing that there will be little tariff reduction. The apparent disposition during the early days of the session among the eastern members to agree to a reasonable compromise, at least on the tariff, has apparently been disappointed. The eastern members are now frankly declaring that the reconstruction period is not a time for tinkering with the tariff. W. F. Cockshutt, of Brantford, who during the early days of the session intimated that he was prepared for a reasonable agreement on the tariff, has since lost no opportunity to declare that the tariff should not be touched.

Let Well Enough Alone.

The old line Conservatives argue that whatever the government might do in the matter of tariff reductions would not satisfy the farmers' organizations of the west. That these latter are even now preparing to nominate candidates pledged to farmers' platform and independent of either party in the House, and that sitting members from the west are liable to be wiped out anyway, and that in exchange for estranging its eastern support the government will get no support in return from the west, they therefore say, "Let the tariff alone. The worst that can happen," they argue, "is the creation of a cross-bench element which will not endanger the government majority nor add any accession of strength to the opposition." This is the government's dilemma at the present time. Delays will not change it.

"In the meantime there are indications that if any substantial degree of tariff reform is granted steps will be taken at once for the calling of a straight Conservative national convention.

In a Dilemma.

The Opposition also has its dilemma, with preparations for a national Liberal convention under way with a Provincial Premiers' Conference preparatory to it, being called next Saturday.

The speech of D. D. McKenzie on Friday last when he practically declared himself as favoring the principle of protection, has created somewhat of a sensation in the Opposition ranks. By some it is held that it will endanger the success of the convention from the national view point. By nearly all it is felt that Mr. McKenzie's chances of permanent leadership are gone.

The Franchise Bill promises to be almost as controversial as the budget. It is stated that it has now been reprinted for the fifth time and that there are strong differences of opinion in the Cabinet in connection with its provisions.

Altogether the interesting part of the session is ahead.

And as for the men who only saw service in Canada, surely they have sustained no hardships that entitle them to any such gratuity as the $1000 proposed.

Mr. Turley shows a keen appreciation of the situation when he points out that the first duty of such associations as the G.W.V.A. is to see that the men who have been seriously disabled, and the widows and children of those who have fallen, receive adequate pension. The present scale, low as it sems, is a heavy burden on the country. It will have to be raised and the additional money that will be necessary will add to the financial difficulties. The granting of the demand for cash bonuses for every soldier would have a serious effect upon the pension situation, and Mr. Turley in his official capacity reveals sound common-sense, in opposing the request.

A CHANCE TO REPAY

There is no need of offering an apology for again referring in these columns to the $15000 drive on behalf of the Great War Veterans, which will commence in Peterborough on Monday next and be continued through the week. It will be Returned Soldiers' Week, culminating with a big demonstration on Victoria Day and every Peterboro citizen should resolve to have a share in the success of the occasion, by liberally responding to the appeal. Details of the big campaign were completed last night and the onus for the success or failure of the drive will soon be passed on from the committee to the citizens. The boys on whose behalf the canvass is being launched, never failed to reach their objective over there; we will surely not allow it to be said of the people, who, thanks to them, were able to remain safely and comfortably at home, that they could not show something of the same spirit over here. Somebody has said that the peace terms are so good that they are well worth paying for. The War Veterans have paid their share by the suffering and hardships they have gone through overseas: the people at home ought to welcome an opportunity of contributing their quota during the campaign of next week. It is the first real chance the citizens of Peterborough have had of expressing their gratitude to the soldiers of this city—the answer should be an emphatic one.

WANTED—A WAR RECORD

A short time ago the Examiner called attention to the lamentable lack of information as to the fighting career of the different quotas of soldiers that went forth from Peterborough during the war. The need of more adequate knowledge of the adventures overseas of these detachments is illustrated by the following letter:

Editor of the Examiner:

Your editorial in the issue of May 2nd under the heading, "Information Needed," met with much approval from many returned men in the city.

It would indeed be "a most invaluable service if in some way or another the history of the different detachments who left Peterborough could be presented in its true light."

For instance; how very few know anything of the 4th Battery,, C.F.A., despite the fact that half of it, the right section, was composed originally of Peterborough men?

That it was a fighting unit is attested by small wooden crosses set up in Flanders to the memory of Dicky Boone, Happy O'Toole, Umpty King, Billy Bamford, Tom McDonald, Jimmy Chandler, Davey Evans, Midget Manley, Arthur Haun, Earl Downey, Herb Baker and Freddie Steele.

There are probably more whom I do not recall at this moment.

These men with one exception, were "Original Firsts." All but two of them who "died of wounds within 48 hours," were killed in action, and every one of them enlisted from Peterborough though only remembered by their remaining relatives and the comrades who hold them in fond remembrance.

This being true of the "Fighting Fourth," it must be equally true that there are other groups of Peterborough's soldiers who never hear the name of their old unit referred to.

Hoping that some one will be found, able and willing to chronicle Peterborough's full contribution to the winning of the war, and thanking you for inserting this communication, should you decide to use it, I am,

Yours very sincerely,
George Findlay,
Late 4th Battery, C.F.A.

Gunner Findlay's letter emphasizes the lack of public knowledge concerning the men of such units as the 4th Battery. The death of the brave lads he mentions was perhaps chronicled in the papers when the sad news was received, but the details of how they made the supreme sacrifice and the experiences of the unit with which they were so gloriously connected, are still to be told. And this is equally true of many of the other detachments that left this city during the long struggle. From those who have come back and from the official record of the units of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, it might be possible to obtain a connected history of their experiences. It would be invaluable in the years to come as a record of Peterborough's part in the war and the civic authorities would be well advised in considering the possibility of securing the services of a citizen like Mr. F. H. Dobbin, who has a happy style of writing and a liking for delving into records, to complete a history of the war career of the Peterborough detachments.

It seems a shame that the glorious deeds of our men overseas should pass into oblivion for want of a chronicler.

You Are the Very Chap Who Said It

Just two years ago you were full of patriotic thrills as you read the first fragments of that immortal story of Canadian valor at Vimy Ridge. You were proud to be a Canadian; you were proud because you knew intimately so many of the boys who took part in that battle. You waited anxiously for the casualty lists, and

You Said: "Nothing Is Too Good For Those Boys"

You know you did—and you meant what you said. Do you mean it now? The boys who have come back have made of you a very simple request. They believed what you have been saying for nearly five years—they took you at your word, and they thought they had only to ask.

But How Much Will You Give the G. W. V. A.?

The Boys went a home of their own. They have asked Peterborough for $15,000, and it is up to the citizens of Peterborough to see to it that it does not lag behind in assisting the Veterans in their enterprise.

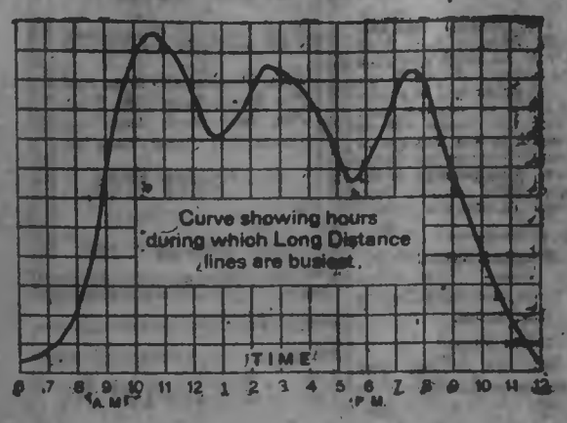
Peak Loads



IN practically all public services there are what are known as peak load hours—hours during which the demands for service are greater than at other hours of the day. A striking example of this is seen in the case of the street railway rush in the period just preceding and following the business day.

The accompanying curve shows the distribution of Long Distance business over the various hours of the day. It is evident that to make use of the service at hours other than those in which the peak loads are being carried, means that you obtain a more prompt and satisfactory service.

We suggest that where possible, you place your Long Distance Calls so as to avoid the hours of peak loads.

Lake Street is Present Dividing Line Between North and South —Charlotte Street Will Supplant It.

Ald. Taylor's renumbering scheme for the houses on the streets extending south from Lake street, was adopted by the Board of Works last night. Lake street is the present dividing line between the north and south sections of George and Aylmer streets, and the numbers have caused a great deal of confusion, Ald. Taylor explained. By the proposed change the numbering to the south will begin with 320 and 321 on either side of the streets. These numbers were chosen for the reason that it is recognized that Charlotte street, the natural dividing line between the north and south parts of the city, will become the zero point for the renumbering in both directions of the houses on all the north and south streets on this side of the river.

At the present time the numbers of the houses on George street immediately south of Charlotte street are 320 and 321, hence when the more comprehensive changes are eventually made the numbers will begin with one and two at Charlotte street, and at Lake street will reach 320 and 321. Ald. Taylor's scheme, which will be carried out at once, anticipates the final renumbering of the streets running north and south.

HIGH WINDS WILL POSTPONE FLIGHT

U. S. Planes Will Not Likely Start For Azores.

(Canadian Press.)

TREPASSEY, Nfld., May 13.— Reports of high seas in mid-ocean, with easterly winds over the western half of the trans-Atlantic flight route, made it highly improbable that the seaplanes, N.C. 1 and N.C. 3 would take the air to-day for the Azores. In this vicinity the wind and visibility conditions were poor, but weather observers declared prospects for to-morrow both off the coast and at sea were the "best for some time."

Voice of The People

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir: Please, sir, if you will allow me space in your valuable paper I would like to mention one fact to the Supt. of the Radial Railway of this city. On behalf of the welfare of your business and the accommodation of the public I would suggest or advise you to put a "conductor" on Street Car No. 11 that knows how to use the patrons, especially the ladies.

On Saturday morning about 9.14 a.m., I was coming to catch the above mentioned car, and I might also add it was raining heavily. If Mr. Conductor had been watching or was a bit considerate, he would have seen me for I was only about ten feet from the car. A lady in the car saw me, but after the calling down Mr. Conductor gave a gentleman on Saturday evening, May 3rd, for ringing a car bell for a lady, she was afraid to mention anything to him.

Nobody expects a motor man or conductor to get out and look around to see if there is anyone coming, but he is obliged, I would imagine, to watch the corners. If Mr. Conductor would read the little books entitled "Etiquette" or "Consideration" as many people might not dislike him so.

Tea For Three From Mabel Ryan

At the Grand Opera House Monday, Miss 26th, Miss Elsa Ryan will be seen in the stellar role in "Tea for Three," the comedy by Roi Cooper Megrue, which has been running for the past 12 months at the Maxine Elliott Theatre, New York. Miss Ryan whose former starring vehicles, "Out There," and "Peg o' my Heart," won for her innumerable friends, has an entirely different role in her newest offering. The story revolves around a Wife, a Friend and a Husband, which sounds like the old eternal triangle. While it is in truth, an angle on the triangle, it is a decidedly original and wholesome angle. The wife is a perfectly nice, loyal wife and both the husband and the other man are very decent, high-minded human beings. The piece is written in a refreshingly humorous vein, insuring a plentiful sprinkling of laughs, yet an intensely dramatic story underlies the whole characterization. Mr. Megrue's stage folks are generally distinguished as being the kind of people one wants particularly to know, and the characters in "Tea for Three" are no exception to his rule. In support of Miss Ryan are Norman Hackett, Hayden Stevenson and others. There are three acts, all appropriately and artistically staged by Selwyn and Company. In the course of the play Miss Ryan appears in a variety of fluffs and frills, guaranteed to be the newest creations in spring costuming.

"Tea for Three" is to be presented in London next season with Cyril Maude as the featured player.

How to Bathe Face to Remove Wrinkles

Since its remarkable astringent and tonic properties became known, clever women all over the country have been using the saxolite face bath to "tone up" their faces, remove wrinkles and draw flabby cheeks and neck back to normal. After using the solution, the face immediately feels much firmer. The skin tightens evenly all over the face, thus reducing lines and sagginess. The formula is: Powdered saxolite, one ounce, dissolved in witch hazel, one-half pint.

These ingredients are of course perfectly harmless and there is no difficulty in obtaining them at any drug store.

Why It Is a Mistake to Delay Your Purchase of The NEW EDISON

Most everything you buy wears out eventually. An automobile, for example—or a suit of clothes. So the longer you delay its purchase the longer you'll have it to enjoy.

Not so with a New Edison. It will outlive you anyway. Every month you delay is just one more month gone from your life—another month in which you might have had your life enriched by music—but didn't.

Under our new plan by which payment can be made so much a month, there's no reason why you shouldn't be enjoying your New Edison right now.

The New Edison cost $3,000,000 to perfect. It is the only instrument which successfully meets the test of direct comparison with the living artiste's voice or instrument. It will bring into your home the world's best music, sung or played by the world's great artistes.

Call to-morrow for a demonstration. "Send it out to the house" will be your verdict.

If you desire it, we will make easy terms of payment.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

Remains of Edith Cavell to Be Taken to England To-day

Full Military Ceremony—Funeral to Take Place at Westminster Abbey—Burial at Norwich.

BRUSSELS, May 13.—The removal of the remains of Nurse Edith Cavell for interment in England takes place today. The body was exhumed at Brussels on March 17, placed in a double coffin of zinc and oak and conveyed to the Tir National. The body was found clothed in a black dress under a blue cloak. A black hat was also discovered in the coffin. The body was well preserved and the features were perfectly recognizable.

On Tuesday the coffin will be placed on a gun carriage drawn by six black horses, which will convey it to the Gare du Nord. Military honours will be rendered at the Tir National and at the station. The long route for the cortege has been arranged in order to enable the public to pay its last respects. The gun carriage will be preceded and followed by British troops with bands. The Belgian army will also be represented.

After a funeral service to be conducted in the station hall by Rev. H. Gahan, the British Chaplain who was with Nurse Cavell the night before her execution, the coffin will be entrained for Ostend, where it will be placed aboard a British warship for Dover, where the Admiralty will hand it over to a committee charged with organizing the funeral in England.

The coffin will be thence conveyed to London, where it will be received by an honourary military escort, placed on a gun carriage, covered with the Union Jack and conveyed to Westminster Abbey, where the funeral will take place. Afterwards the procession will reform and march through the city to the Liverpool street station, from where the corpse will be taken to Norwich for burial.

It is understood the exhumation reveals that the nurse's death was instantaneous. She was struck by four bullets, two of which entered the right side and two the left, one of the latter piercing her heart.

WORKMEN FIND IT GOOD, EASY MONEY

Hon. Frank Carvell Figures New Parliament Buildings at Eight Millions.

OTTAWA, May 13.—Canada's new Parliament Buildings will cost at least eight million dollars, and may cost ten millions, announced Hon. Frank Carvell, Minister of Public Works, in the House of Commons last night. The original estimate of the cost of replacing the handsome pile that fell a prey to the flames three years ago was five million dollars. The Government has already expended five millions, and is asking for another two millions to be spent this year, "and then it won't be anywhere near completion," said Mr. Carvell. "I have no hesitation in saying," he added, "that when the building is completed it will have cost eight million dollars."

Sensational Advance in Prices.

The Minister explained that the excess cost over the estimate was due to the sensational advance in the prices of building material. He mentioned that the contractors and the architects are paid on a percentage basis, and that they get nothing after the cost of the work has reached five millions.

Commons to Move First.

He frankly told the House "what I have already told the builders: that we have not got value for the money expended. The workmen seem to think it is good, easy Government money and that they should not be in a hurry about finishing the job. The building will be in such shape by January next that we will be able to occupy it. I don't think there will be another session of Parliament before that time. While the Commons chamber will be ready, the building will be nowhere near completed, and the Senate will be obliged to remain in the Museum or occupy temporary quarters in the new building. There is no prospect of the Senate chamber being ready by January unless the builders get a move on."

NINE MEN WERE DROWNED.

CYRIL MAUDE'S CAREER

Mr. Cyril Maude, who will appear the Grand Thursday May 22, is season making an American tour ler the Charles Frohman manage- at in C. Haddon Chambers' com- , "The Saving Grace", is the only mber of his distinguished family adopt the stage as a profession. . Maude's father was a General in British Army, and for generations nearly all the male members of family were in the military and al service, Mr. Maude was a deli- youth and for that reason did enter the service; but instead fied for the stage under the tute- of Charles Cartwright and Roma There. In the midst of his studies health compelled him to go to Colda, and there he made his first apmance on the stage as a member Daniel Bandmann's company. In organization he played a great mber of minor roles in a varied repertoire of plays.

Returning to England, Mr. Maude made his London debut at the Criterion Theatre in "The Great Divorce Case". Shortly afterward he achieved a striking personal success in the play entitled "Racing". This was followed by another success in "Handfast", which established him firmly in the liking of London audiences. 1890 he appeared as surface in a revival of "The School for Scandal", thereby winning his spurs as an actor of high comedy. He then appeared in leading roles with Sir Charles Wyndham and Mrs. Langtry, and in 1893 he made a distinguished success as Cayley Frummle in "The Second Tanguary," at the St. James Theatre. After appearing for a time with Sir Johnstone Forbes-Robertson he entered into partnership with Frederick Harrison as lessees of the Haymarket Theatre, an association which lasted for nine years and resulted in great prosperity for the production of many successful plays.

Mr. Maude acquired the management of the Avenue Theatre which he renamed the Playhouse, and also took over the direction of the Waldorf Theatre, later known as The Whitney. This was a period of great activity and prosperity in the career of the actor-manager; and he became as he remains to-day, one of the leading figures of the English stage.

Mr. Maude returned to America—this time as a distinguished star in sharp contrast to his former position on the American stage—some five seasons ago. His greatest success in this country was in "Grumpy," in which; as all playgoers will remember he portrayed a fidgetty, fussy and taciturn old lawyer. His identification with the character has been, in a way, a handicap, since the majority of American playgoers think of Mr. Maude as a very old man. As a matter of fact he is in the heydey of the middle fifties and fortunately in his present role of Bliss Corbett in "The Saving Grace", he impersonates a genial and altogether delightful English gentleman of his own age.

The GRESSMAN Company Limited

BOARD OF WORKS NEARLY LET HUNTER STREET BRIDGE CONTRACT

Reached the Point of Decision But Adjourned to Admit Settlement of Uncertainties Mentioned in Connection With Mr. E. Conroy's Relations With City.

RESCIND FAIR WAGE CLAUSE.

With a motion before them recommending the acceptance of the lowest tender, Mr. Edward Conroy's, for the construction of the Hunter street bridge, and an amendment that the contract be let to concrete constructors of St. Catharines, the Board of Works last night adjourned until Friday, following the withdrawal of the motion and the amendment and the substitution of a motion by Mayor Duncan, seconded by Ald. Garside, to the effect that City Solicitor Widdifield be instructed to meet Mr. Conroy's solicitor for the purpose of arranging a settlement of the Romaine street sewer claim in accordance with Mr. Conroy's offer made through Mr. Vincent Eastwood.

Earlier in the evening Mr. Eastwood assured the committee that he was personally prepared to see that satisfactory bonds to a reasonable amount were provided with Mr. Conroy's lump sum tender. He also said that in regard to the Romaine street sewer claim Mr. Conroy took a fair position if this question had anything to do with the awarding of the contract. Mr. Conroy was willing to abide by the decision of his own and the City's Solicitor after they had come together and investigated the matter.

"I advocate his case as a citizen, too," Mr. Eastwood said. "I believe he is thoroughly able to carry out his contracts."

Tenders Unchanged.

The lump sum bids of the three companies who had previously estimated on both this and the cost plus bases weer unchanged last night. The only salient new point was the removal of the semblance of doubt as to the conditions of the Government's contribution of $50,000. If the total cost of the bridge is $300,000 or more the Governments' grant will not be reduced. It would only be affected, Ald. Phelan stated, if the cost dropped to $150,000 or $200,000, of which there isn't the slightest possibility.

The tenders on the lump sum basis, to publish them once more, were as follows, providing for the various eliminations of granite finish, etc.

The Wide Bridge.

Ed. Conroy $251,639.35
Concrete Contractors $279,000
Canadian Engineering and Construction Co. $297,770

Bridge Narrowed 9 Feet.

Ed. Conroy $251,339.65
Concrete Constructors $252,000.00
Canadian Engineering and Construction Co. $276,880.00

Decide on Narrow Bridge.

It was ten o'clock or later when the Board took up the bridge question, and after calling the contractors separately from the Empress Hotel and receiving their final bids, the aldermen settled down once more to arrive at a decision. First, Ald. Edgar moved, seconded by Ald. Turner, that the committee decide upon the narrow bridge. The motion carried, but Ald. Gainey recollected that a former resolution recommending the original width was still in the records.

The motion was thereupon broadened to rescind the former resolution. Some of the Labour aldermen were opposed to reducing the width, but Aldermen Turner, Edgar and Taylor declared that it was a question of price.

Ald. McIntyre moved, seconded by Ald. Garside, that the lowest tender be accepted. It was Mr. Conroy's, and Mayor Duncan objected that the contract should not be let to Mr. Conroy until the Romaine street sewer claim had been adjusted.

"Well, I'll add to my motion that the tender be accepted pending a satisfactory settlement," Ald. McIntyre offered.

"It might as well be the original," replied Mayor Duncan.

The Mayor said he was in the Council when Mr. Conroy agreed to go good if the Romaine street sewer, which was passed from Mr. Conroy to Mr. Bogue, was not right. It was a matter of $7,000 and Mayor Duncan said it should be straightened out.

Ald. Phelan—None of us want to push an important matter like this.

Ald. McIntyre was willing that the proposal made by Mr. Eastwood be taken up if it would satisfy some of the members.

Mayor Duncan—I think the matter should be cleared up.

Ald. Turner remarked that it might turn out that Mr. Conroy didn't owe the city the money.

Ald. Phelan—As I remember it, this question was not settled because of the illness and death of the late City Engineer Hay who on the city's side of the case possessed all the information and facts.

Following this trend of discussion the Board reached a sort of compromise by deferring final action upon the tenders until the solicitors held a conference and made a report, and to avoid committing the Board in the meantime Ald. McIntyre's resolution was withdrawn, together with the Mayor's amendment that the contract be let to the Concrete Constructors.

Question of Wages.

The summons of the contractors was preceded by a reconsideration of the fair wage clause in the contract. Ald. Taylor asked for explicit information upon what had previously been determined on this point, and the minutes showed that the Council had placed in the specifications a provision requiring the contractor to pay Union rates or the prevailing wages for all labour employed. It was understood that there was no alternative, but that Union and prevailing wages were identical.

Ald. McIntyre proposed last night that the contractor should engage his men from the secretary of the Union. "The Union would send the best men suitable for certain kinds of work," he said. He moved a motion to that end, seconded by Ald. Morrison.

"That means that you are going to tie yourself up to the Unions," observed the Mayor.

The resolution was lost, only the four Labour men supporting it.

The Fixed Wages.

Ald. Turner then moved, seconded by Ald. Taylor, that the resolution demanding the payment of Union wages on the bridge work be rescinded and that 60c. an hour be paid to carpenters and 40c. an hour to labourers, the prices to be graded downward, and that the working day consist of nine hours.

"The city won't save anything by that," objected Ald. McIntyre. "The contractor is protecting himself in his price."

Ald. Turner said that these wages would assure the undertaking of the work. Defending the longer day, nine hours instead of eight, he declared that it was more economical for the worker, who in that extra hour would be inclined to walk around and spend his money.

"I can't see the use of that motion," said Ald. Gainey. "The Industrial committee of the Board of Trade admitted that the workmen should have the eight hour day and labourers 45c. an hour. They were to have recommended it on Friday night. I can't understand this turnover."

Ald. Phelan stated that the resolution was in order. Everything the Board did would have to be ratified by the Council.

Ald. Gainey—"I don't think it is fair. We are without a man who would have voted for the fair wage clause. I believe it was unanimous when it was passed before.

Ald. Morrison moved an amendment, seconded by Ald. Gainey, that the prevailing or Union wages be paid on the bridge work, but the motion carried.

All the members of the Council were present in committee.

"Show your hand," said Ald. Gainey to Ald. Phelan presiding, when the amendment was voted on first and was defeated by 5 to 4.

"I'm not shirking," responded Ald. Phelan, making the count 6 to 4. "I wasn't voting because I saw it wasn't necessary."

Tenders Unchanged.

When the contractors visited the committee, Ald. Phelan asked them whether the likelihood of fixed wages of 60c. and 60c. for labourers and carpenters would effect their bids.

Mr. Paulen of the Canadian Engineering Company, said his company had figured on approximately those prices and consequently could subtract nothing.

Mr. Weller, of Concrete Constructors, replied, practically in the same words. The proposed fixing of wages would not affect their figures he said.

When Mr. Conroy was asked what effect this provision would have on his tender he turned the question on the committee.

"Do you guarantee these wages," he inquired.

It was explained that the Council was recommending that they were the wages that should prevail, but the Council could not guarantee them. It simply absolved the contractors from any agreement to pay them.

"If you'd guarantee those wages I'd consider taking something off," Mr. Conroy remarked, "but I can't get the men at that price to-day. That's the way I see it. Nobody knows how the labour market is going to go. It may be better in two months, but it might be worse. Whoever builds this bridge," he concluded, "I'd advise that you build the wide one."

TURNING POINT IN LIFE OF GERMANS

"This Dreadful and Murderous Volume," Declares the Chancellor.

(Canadian Press.)

BERLIN, May 13.—Philip Scheidemann, Chancellor, in his speech before the National Assembly here, said that the occasion was the turning point in the life of the German people, as the Assembly was to decide their attitude toward "what our adversaries call peace conditions."

"To keep our nation alive," he said, "and that and nothing else is our duty, we are pursuing a nationalistic decision. No questions of the prestige and no thirst for power have a part in our deliberations. Bare life is what we must have for our land and nation to-day, while everyone feels the throttling hand at his throat."

"Let me speak without tactical considerations. The thing which is at the basis of our discussion is this thick volume, in which 100 sentences begin. 'Germany renounces.' This dreadful and murderous volume, by which confession our own unworthiness, our consent to pitiless disruption, our agreement to helotry and slavery are to be extorted. This book must not become the future code of law."

DISCUSSION OF M. NEARY'S PETITION GENERATED HEAT

Applied for Position of Street Foreman Recently Held by Mr. Alex. Fitzgerald.

Mr. Martin Neary's application to the Board of Works last night for the position of street foreman, recently resigned by Mr. Alex. Fitzgerald, was warmly advocated by some of the aldermen, and on a motion by Ald. Morrison, seconded by Ald. Turner, it was decided that it be received for the present, to be taken up later if necessary.

Ald. Gainey moved an amendment, seconded by Ald. McIntyre, that Mr. Neary get the position at the same salary of $750 a year, but the amendment was defeated.

"I don't think it is right to take the authority of making the department's appointments out of the hands of the Engineer," said Mayor Duncan. "Before you do that you will have to rescind some resolution that is on the books."

The Mayor had suggested that in view of the uncertainties of work this summer and also because of the increase asked by Street Commissioner Evans, a working foreman might be appointed by the Engineer whenever needed. "There have been a dozen men ask me for the job," said His Worship, "but I told them I didn't think the appointment would be made this year."

Ald. Turner: That suits me.

Mayor Duncan remarked that the men would probably refuse the position with a salary of only $750.

Ald. Garside warmly advocated Mr. Neary's application, stating that he would like to see him get an appointment. Mr. Neary, he believed had been overlooked.

Ald. Turner: He will, I should think, when there's an opening.

Ald. McIntyre: If Mr. Fitzgerald hadn't resigned, wouldn't he still be engaged?

Ald. Garside: I think Mr. Neary's got the throw-down.

Ald. Morrison's motion, seconded by Ald. Turner, that the request of Mr. Neary be received and dealt with when necessary, was recorded at that stage.

The argument by that time sounded like the echo of other debates on the same proposition, with slight variations here and there to allow for the lapse of time and the changed personnel of the committee.

Should Advertise.

Ald. Turner suggested that the position should be advertised and as many applications as possible obtained.

Ald. Garside: I think Mr. Neary should get the first chance at the first opening.

Ald. Gainey: It looks as if he was blackballed around here.

Ald. Edgar: Who blackballed him.

Ald. McIntyre: The Councils all along.

Ald. Phelan said he had spoken to City Engineer Parsons about a foreman for the Simcoe Street surface drain, recommending Mr. Neary. Mr. Parsons appointed another man.

"I always thought Martin Neary was a first-class man," said Ald. Phelan. "The only complaint I ever heard about him was too strong for getting work out of his men."

"I appointed the other man because I thought he was a far better foreman," City Engineer Parsons remarked.

Ald. Phelan: Mr. Hay considered Mr. Neary a first-class man.

Ald. McIntyre: The City Engineer and the Street Commissioner will see there's no vacancy.

Mayor Duncan: From the reports I've heard, the man is not a good foreman.

Ald. McIntyre: I wouldn't be afraid to go to the City Treasurer's books and find out the costs of different works. That's the way to know what your foremen are.

The argument ran true to form in the heat it generated.

Ald. McIntyre and Ald. Morrison generated a little heat over a contention as to whether the latter was in order or not.

Mayor Duncan remarked that some of the members in favour of the Board making the appointment were the ones who recommended the letting of the positions by tender. "I don't know what to make of it," His Worship said.

Ald. Edgar recalled past controversies and the steps that led to the authorization of the Engineer to appoint his foremen. "I think things have gone better by that system," he said.

Ald. Phelan: The Engineer can make mistakes. He's paying five dollars a day to a foreman who has no place loafing around the Engineer's office. I know that's a fact myself—that this foreman has been up in his office at eleven o'clock in the morning. Ald. Morrison said he had been past the sewer and the foreman wasn't there.

Ald. McIntyre said that when Mr. Neary was on a certain sewer the Engineer hadn't gone near him for three weeks to see how he was getting along. He said that he didn't think that was fair.

Mr. Parsons replied that this statement wasn't a fact.

When the vote was taken and the amendment defeated and the motion carried, Ald. McIntyre observed, "That's another one for the Engineer," and the Board passed on to the next item on the file.

DEPUTATION MET SOUTH MONAGHAN TOWNSHIP COUNCIL

Council is Very Enthusiastic Over Good Roads.

A good roads deputation of Peterborough citizens, composed of W. H. Bradburn (chairman), H. O. Fisk (secretary), C. Rogers and R. Deane, met the South Monaghan Township Council last evening at Centreville regarding the taking over of the Peterborough to Port Hope road as a Provincial highway. The Council unanimously adopted a resolution petitioning the Ontario Government to take over this road as a Provincial highway.

The Council expressed their intension to add to there county road system the same number of miles that would be taken over by the Government as a Provincial highway should this scheme go through. They are very enthusiastic in the matter and seemed desirous of getting their share of the Provincial and Federal monies that are soon to be spent on road improvement.

In conversation with the clerk of Hope Township, he expressed himself as highly pleased with the work that had been done by the Department on that part of the Toronto to Montreal road passing through Hope. The old blacksmith shop, as well as some other buildings at Welcome, have been removed to permit an easy curve at this point. The crown of the hill has also been taken off and the valley on the west side filled up. This previously dangerous point has been completely transformed and beautified.

The committee were advised that the highway improvement in Hope Township for 1918 added one mill to their assessment.

LIEUT.-COL. REASON, D.S.O., OF LONDON; WILL VISIT PETERBORO

Was in Charge of Hospital in Fighting Area—Building Was Attacked by German Airmen Twice With Disastrous Results.

An interesting visitor to Peterborough is expected to-morrow in the person of Lt.-Col. Reason, D.S.O., of London, Ont., the officer commanding No. 3 Canadian Stationary Hospital, France, who arrived from overseas with his unit two weeks ago.

Before the war, Colonel Reason, a well-known London physician, was a Major in the 1st Hussars. He went overseas in the early months of the war and was appointed to the command of Shorncliffe Military Hospital, with supervision of some 30 hospitals throughout Shorncliffe military area, entailing strenuous work. From this responsible post he was promoted to the command of No. 3 Canadian Hospital, France, of which Canon Davidson was senior chaplain. He at once proceeded to effect sweeping improvements in the buildings and equipment of the big French fortress, installing electric lights, cinema, waterworks, etc., making it one of the best, if not the very best, equipped hospitals in the army. These extensive improvements were barely completed when the great German drive began, and the hospital in its advanced position on the Somme front, was ready for its important work close to the centre of the fighting.

Hospital Bombed.

During the month following the fateful 21st of March, 1918, no less than 30,000 wounded soldiers belonging to all parts of the Empire passed through this hospital, and this tremendous inrush continued until May 31st at midnight, when the big fortress was attacked by German airmen. One giant bomb was dropped through the electric red cross on the roof, through the wards and sleeping quarters in successive storeys, exploding in the operating room, where two operations were in progress. Over 100 casualties occurred when the building crashed down, burying staff and patients together. Four nursing sisters, three medical officers and several N.C.O.'s were among the killed, every other N.C.O. being wounded.

Splendid Discipline.

By Colonel Reason's calmness and effective direction, coupled with the splendid discipline and work of all ranks, greater losses were prevented. The patients were removed to other buildings and the work carried on until the removal of the hospital to another area. The attention of the King was directed to the extraordinary work of the hospital, and two visits were paid by His Majesty before and after the catastrophe.

The efficient matron, Miss E. M. Wilson, R.R.C., who was twice decorated for her services, is a cousin of Mr. E. G. Patterson, of this city. Miss Wilson passed through the city last week, and is said to be slated for an important appointment.

Colonel Reason is paying a personal visit to Canon Davidson, and will be a guest at the Rectory while in the city.

"Unpardonable Sin" Record Screen Effort

Surpassing in importance any previous moving picture event in the history of Peterborough will be the engagement of "The Unpardonable Sin," Harry Garson's extraordinary epic photoplay, starring Blanche Sweet, under the personal direction of Marshall Neilan, at the Grand Theatre, beginning Thursday; there will be two presentations daily of the picture for a period beginning Thursday and ending Saturday, the matinees at 2.30 o'clock, and the night presentations at 8.15.

"The Unpardonable Sin" is one of the most pretentious screen plays that has ever been attempted, and has been completed after months of painstaking effort and with the expenditure of more real money than has been enlisted in the aid of any photoplay produced within the past five years. It is a brand-new production, and just now is having its initial runs in the important theatres in the East.

Those who are familiar with the important books which have been published during the past couple of years will identify the big Garson picture as an adaptation from the powerful story by the same name, written by Major Rupert Hughes, which appeared in serial form in the Red Book and was later published in book form to achieve a reputation as a "best seller" which has been surpassed by few novels offered the reading public. The story has been spoken of as one of the most powerful tales of love and adventure which has ever been written and reviews of the picture made by important critics throughout the country pay high tribute to Director Marshall Neilan when they say that here is one of the rare instances when the photo-play version is even more powerful and gripping than the original narrative.

When they see "The Unpardonable Sin" moving picture devotees will be particularly interested in the work of the star, for the reason that in Miss Blanche Sweet it brings back to the screen a favourite who had thoroughly established herself before retiring for a long and much-needed rest. Miss Sweet won her spurs in some of the biggest and best pictures ever produced by David Wark Griffith, who has since given to the public such big things as "The Birth of a Nation," "Intolerance," and "Hearts of the World." Marshall Neilan, who directed her in the new picture, is conceded to rank equally high with Mr. Griffith, and it is not strange then that Miss Sweet's performance in "The Unpardonable Sin" seems to indicate that her absence from the screen for some time has improved rather than impaired her powers as a dramatic actress.

In support of Miss Sweet, Mr. Garson has assembled a cast of unusual strength, prominent among whom are Matt Moore and Wallace Beery.

CITY LEAGUE SEASON OPENS ON SATURDAY

War Veterans Will Play Orientals and Matthews-Blackwell Will Clash With De Laval in Opening Double Header—Teams Are Practising Hard and There is Some Tall Scrambling for Players.

With the League season due to open on Saturday with a double-header the managers of the four local City Baseball League Clubs are driving their teams hard in practice to get in shape for the first clashes and at the same time frantically scrambling for players.

The lid will be blown off for the season on Saturday when the Great War Veterans will meet Jake Solomon's Orientals at 2 o'clock and the Matthews-Blackwell outfit will clash with the De Laval team. There will be appropriate opening ceremonies which the Great War Veterans Band will take part and there promises to be a big crowd of fans out to see the teams get away on what should be a most successful season.

With only four teams in action and a score of ball players back from overseas since last season there is a raft of ball tossers available for this years City League and the quality of ball should be faster than was seen last year. Many of the old favorites of the good City League of 1915 are now home from overseas. One of them Frank Barrie, short stop of the championship East City Team arrived here only yesterday and there is a scramble for his service. There will be a lot of the boys who have done their bit in France out this season. The Veterans will have a whole team of them and there are returned soldiers on the other lineups as well as Matthews-Blackwell are claiming Huycke, the good pitcher of the 1915 Thistles, and also as Alf Hagerman, Alex. Butcher and Holyman, the last three of which have only recently returned.

Although the managers of the different teams are keeping the names of their men pretty well under their hats, the practices have given a line on the probable composition of some of the outfits although little or nothing is known of the De Laval team, who have been practising down in the south end and have not yet appeared at Riverside Park.

The War Veterans will be altogether composed of men who have been overseas and even if they lose a few of the returned men to other clubs they will have a dangerous outfit. Allan Wade of the 2nd Battalion whose last City League appearance was featured by a no hit game will probably be on the slab on Saturday against the Orientals and Carney is likely to do the receiving. The remainder of the line-up has not yet been selected and there is keen competition for places.

Manager Solomon's Orientals will be the opponents of the Over the Top boys in the first game of the season. The wily pilot of last year's champion Riversides has rounded up a good bunch of talent and his outfit is already regarded as dangerous. On his pitching staff he has Kirn, the pitching ace of the Riversides last season, Neary of last year's Thistles and McNeeley, the youngster, who pitched good ball for the Orientals. For catcher he has in addition to Phelan last year's backstop who will likely be tried out at first base this season and Soden who caught for an overseas outfit last season. Head, who was with Frank Shaughnessy's artillery team at Petewawa in 1918 and Garner a likely looking new comer. The Orientals are equally strong in infield materially as they have secured Cherrett of the Thistles for short stop and have signed up Murray and Sheehy of the Riversides as well. McCarney is also available either for an infield or outfield job as is young Collins, the promising infielder of last year's Orientals. There is plenty of outfield material in sight.

The second game will bring together Matthews-Blackwell and De Laval. The Pork Packers have rounded together a classy looking outfit and with the veteran, Dan McCabe managing the bunch they may be depended upon to be up on their toes and playing clever baseball all the way. The Matthews-Blackwell team will have Murray Huycke on their pitching staff although he will not be available on Saturday and Close who performed nicely last season will also be available. Either Lowe or Jackson is slated to play first base, according to the present dope and Hagerman 2 b., Holyman, short stop and Butcher 3 b., looks like the rest of the infield at present. All three are overseas men and the first two had considerable baseball while away. Hagerman and Butcher were both with the champion East City team in 1915. Barrie is also claimed by the Packers while for the outfield there is a wealth of material including Shaughnessy, Coursey and Cunningham of last year's team.

As has been said the De Laval have been doing no advertising about their line-up but there is plenty of material available and the south end gang will be out there on Saturday with a team that may surprise the fans.

Saturday's game wil give a line on the players available for the Central Ontario League team which will be picked from the City League outfits.

EDISON RECITAL AT CONSERVATORY

Edison Artists Were Heard to Advantage—"The Acid Test."

One of the most artistic musical successes of the season was the "re-Creation" recital of Edison artists in the Conservatory of Music Hall last evening. The recital gave ample scope for the demonstration of the pure tone quality of the instrument, and even the customarily uninterested hearer was moved to enthusiasm by the perfect reproduction of the originals in the machine.

Acid Test.

During the evening what is known as the "acid test" to the scientists, was put on, when Mr. Gliddon of the Conservatory, played a cornet solo, entitled "Inflammatus," by Rossini, in unison with the Edison artist. This proved a very fine feature, and throughout the selection is was impossible to distinguish the two instruments—the reproduced and the original, so exactly in accord was the solo played by Mr. Gliddon.

Two Solos.

In two solos, "There's a Land," and "The Veterans' Song," Mr. McKay, who is the Edison Corporation's Canadian business representative and also a noted Toronto baritone, delighted the large audience, and the artist was insistently encored.

Perhaps the outstanding feature of the Edison recital proper was the "Mad Scene" from Lucia dee Lammermoor, sung by Anna Case. So perfectly was this rendered and so clearly every word distinguished, that the number proved a revelation to the audience. The other numbers of the programme were sincerely appreciated and enjoyed.

TEAMSTERS' WAGES INCREASED TO $6

Street Commissioner Evans' Salary Raised to $1,500—Will Pave Water Street.

Because of the lower cost as compared with other permanent road materials, the Board of Works last night decided to pave with concrete Water Street from Charlotte to King Street and King Street from Water to George Streets.

J. F. Driscoll, of the Standard Paving Company, wrote that a repair gang would visit Peterborough in a few weeks' time to replace any worn or faulty patches in the pavement they laid, and Ald. Phelan suggested that the Board might suspend its decision until that time in the expectation of receiving an advantageous price from the company.

The motion by Ald. Turner and Ald. Morrison was passed when City Engineer Parsons said that concrete was cheaper than asphalt, and the committee realised that there was no economy to be secured.

Sir Adam Beck wrote that the Hydro-Electric Commission could not assist in meeting the cost of the Hunter Street Bridge, but the Dominion Railway Board will consider next week the similar request the Council sent them.

Mr. Barber's Bill.

Mayor Duncan moved, seconded by Ald. Taylor, that Mr. Frank Barber be requested to render his complete account against the city for his services up to date.

The City Engineer and Ald. Phelan were given power to act on the petition of John Simpson, 112 James Street, for the deepening of the ditch in front of his house to enable him to drain his cellar.

Mr. Arthur Mitchell's request for better drainage at the corner of Rink and Aylmer Streets was referred to the Engineer. The ditch at the corner of Townsend and Rubidge Streets, in front of Moreau's butcher shop, will be filled up, and the corner of Perry and Stewart Streets will be attended to.

Increase for Mr. Evans.

Street Commissioner Evans' salary of $1,350 was increased to $1,500 a year, on a motion by Mayor Duncan, seconded by Ald. Garside.

Teamsters Get 50c Increase.

Dealing with the petition of the local teamsters for higher wages, Ald. Morrison moved, seconded by Ald. Gainey, that the Board recommend an increase of one dollar a day—from $5.50 to $6.50.

"I had $6.40 in mind," remarked Ald. Turner, who moved an amendment that the teamsters be paid $6.00 a day.

Ald. McIntyre seconded it. The amendment carried by a vote of 6 to 3. Ald. Garside voting with Aldermen Gainey and Morrison.

The application of the Fair Board for a sewer connection to the new lavatories they propose to build this year was referred to the Legal Committee for the purpose of ascertaining whether it would be legal to grant this request.

Ald. Turner suggested that cesspools might be sufficient for the needs of the Fair days and holidays, but Mayor Duncan said that the directors purposed keeping the grounds open during the four summer months.

Miss Warren's rapid progress at Barrie will be as gratifying to her friends in Peterborough as, to herself. Her application for entrance to the Barrie Hospital was only accepted about two months ago, and that her short probationary training has been such as to entitle her to these honours is highly creditable.

WEDDING BELLS

McCABE—HICKSON.

A quiet but pretty wedding took place on Tuesday, May 6th, at St. Mary's church, Lindsay, when Annie Loretta, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hickson, of East Ops, was united in marriage to John McCabe.

The ceremony was performed by Monsignor Casey.

The bride was prettily gowned in white silk crepe de chine and wore the customary wedding veil, with a wreath of orange blossoms and a bouquet of white carnations. She was assisted by her sister, Daisy who wore rose crepe de chine with hat to match.

The groom was assisted by his brother Joseph McCabe.

The groom's gift to the bride was a pearl pendant and chain; to the bridesmaid a gold bracelet, and to the groomsman a set of gold cuff links. After the ceremony the happy couple drove to the bride's home, where a dainty wedding breakfast was served, after which they left on the 11 o'clock train, the bride travelling in a blue taffeta silk suit with hat to match. Mr. and Mrs. McCabe will reside in Ops.

ROBINSON—BATTERS

The marriage took place quietly in Holy Trinity Church, Winnipeg on Saturday, May 10, by the Rev. W. J. Southam of Alice E. Batters, daughter of the late Mr. Charles Batters of London, England to Lieut Walter M. Robinson, 8th Battalion, son of Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Robinson, Weller street city.

Lieut. Robinson has had a distinguished military career enlisting in Winnipeg from the Bank of Montreal there. He went overseas with the 90th Battalion, and was nine months in the trenches. He was wounded in April 1917 and spent 8 months in a hospital. After recovery he was appointed a trainer at Seaford Camp and awarded a commission last September for his excellent work. Two weeks before the armistice was signed he was sent to France and was with the army of occupation in Germany. He returned to Canada only a short time ago to fall captive to Cupid.

Lieut. Robinson is well known in this city having worked in the Bank of Montreal and in Treuton a number of years ago.

Careless Shampooing Spoils The Hair

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy; it's very cheap and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

Preached Farewell Sermon on Sunday

Rev. B. Davies of Lakefield to Leave This Week for New Home.

LAKEFIELD, May 13. — Rev. B. Davies, of the Baptist Church, preached his farewell sermon on Sunday evening. Mr. Davies, who has been in Lakefield scarcely two years, will be greatly missed by his congregation. With his fine voice and tireless energy, he was a notable figure, not only in the church but in the community. He had a valuable help-meet in his wife, who was at his right hand helping along his work. Mr. and Mrs. Davies leave this week for their new home in Listowel.

Mother's Day.

On Sunday morning a Mother's Day service was held in the Presbyterian Church. Rev. P. L. Jull preached an appropriate sermon and the choir rendered suitable music.

Special Music.

In St. John's Church at both services, Mr. H. F. Strickland, of Toronto, was present and played his violin, accompanying the music. Guonod's anthem, "Praise the Lord," was rendered by the choir, with violin obligato. At the close of the anthem Miss Atwood and Mr. Strickland gave a short organ recital, which was much appreciated. This is the third time Mr. Strickland has visited St. John's Church this year, and it is hoped that he will very soon return as his music is always a great treat.

Shipment of Cheese.

The Young's Point Cheese Factory made their first shipment of cheese on Monday, when thirty cheese were shipped.

Canoes for England.

The Lakefield Canoe Co. shipped nine crates of canoes to England last week. There were from five to seven canoes in each crate.

MOTHERS' DAY.

Mother! Mother! A sweet, sweet name!
From everyone's lips it doth fall;
'Tis a name that is known throughout nations,
Used with love and devotion by all,
First name spoken by babes in their cradles
In tongues far too numerous to count.
If Mother were taken from households,
To what would those households amount?
We wish to show we appreciate
The Mother, wherever she be:
She may be right here in our homeland,
She may be far over the sea!
Second Sunday in May, is her special day
When countless sweet flowers are worn
To show that Mother is loved by all
And gives love to all in return.
These lines are composed for all Mothers
Who are patient and loving and true;
But especially of one I am thinking,
Sweet Mother, they're written to you!

REV. JULL, OF LAKEFIELD, GAVE ADDRESS ON "THE NEW WOMAN"

Woman's Suffrage Must Not be Taken as a Panacea for All Ills—Warsaw Items of Interest.

WARSAW, May 13.—At the regular meeting of the Warsaw Women's Institute, after their business was done, Rev. Jull, of Lakefield, gave an address on "The New Woman"—not a freak, but a wholesome woman. Certain things have come to women, among them the vote, which is her right. He does not consider women's suffrage a panacea for all ills; but he does think much lies in her hands, not so much in politics as in social life. Now that woman has the vote, she must study to know how she should vote. He is not so much afraid of woman not voting right, as of her not voting at all.

He said it did not matter whether we were Grits or Tories, whether we had Protection or Free Trade, but it did matter whether we were morally clean and true.

Mr. Jull also emphasized the great need for the care of children in the schools. He compared the ravages of the late war with infant mentality. During the war there were 32,000 odd Canadians killed, and during that same time there were in Ontario alone 18,000 odd babies, either still-born or died before they were one year old. He gave other startling figures, which show that something is wrong.

The next meeting of the Institute, June 10, will be the annual meeting, and every member is asked to be present.

Egg Day.

The Women's Institute purpose holding an egg day on May 24th. All who are willing are asked to bring that day's eggs to Mrs. Elis' house in Warsaw. The Institute has to aid the School Fair funds for that.

FARMERS DISCUSS TARIFF CONDITIONS

Mr. H. B. Cowan Spoke for Farmers and Mr. Edgar Worth for the Manufacturers.

Much interest was shown Monday evening when the tariff question was threshed out in the S.O.E. Hall, Hunter street. A large number of farmers within a radius of 10 miles from the city, were present.

Mr. R. B. Rogers, president of the local Farmers' Club, acted as chairman, and Mr. H. B. Cowan spoke in support of the farmers' platform.

Ex-Ald. Edgar Worth ably defended the manufacturers in their view of the tariff question.

National Platform.

Mr. H. B. Cowan stated that the farmers' national platform had been adopted because the Organized Farmers of Canada after studying the situation, had become convinced that social and economic conditions were against the interests of the farmers. Among these conditions is placed the tariff in a foremost position. As proof that conditions are not satisfactory in the farmers' sections, he showed that in spite of millions of dollars which have been expended by the Dominion and Provincial governments to promote agriculture, and bring in immigrants to settle the farms of the province, the farm population of Ontario to-day is less than 40 years ago by 110,000.

In ten years the actual decline in the rural population in old Ontario was 87,124, but for allowance made for the natural birth rate from the [illegible] the immigrants that had been brought in, the decline equalled

Another Problem.

Another problem which aroused [illegible] was the tremendous national debt of Canada, which now amounts to $[illegible],000,000, or over $217 [illegible] every man, woman and child in the country.

Mr. Cowan gave examples of how organized farmers had imported farm machinery from the States and the Customs appraisers refused to accept the valuation and arbitrarily increased the prices so that articles on which tariff should amount to only 27 per cent., were so manipulated that the tariff was 51 per cent.

Mr. Cowan named the firms from whom the implements were bought and the class of implements. The speaker claimed that Canada is one of the most heavily taxed countries in the world through the Customs tariff, and compared the Canadian tariff with that of the United States. The Customs charges last year in the United States equalled a charge on each man, woman and child of $1.67. In Canada it was $19.00 per capita.

A Dangerous Time.

Ex-Ald. Worth, representing the manufacturers, stated that they realized the need for changes in the tariff but felt that this was a dangerous time to make these changes. He suggested that the matter might properly be referred to a tariff commission with powers similar to that of the Dominion Railway Commission. This commission could employ experts who could deal with the subject scientifically. He stated that industries found it difficult to secure competent help, as much as 25 per cent. of the employees being untrained. In England there is an abundance of skilled labour available. This makes it difficult for the Canadian manufacturers to compete advantageously against the English firms. In England the wages run from 12 to 14 shillings a week, and in Canada from $12 to $14 a week. This imposed a great burden on Canadian manufacturers.

He claimed that other countries are beginning to put up the tariff, and that if England gives a preference to Canadian products, large American firms will establish industries in Canada.

A NEW INDUSTRY GOES TO OSHAWA

Steel Products Company Will Locate There

Oshawa took another stride cityward last Thursday night when the Town Council met, in special session, the representatives of the Ontario Steel Products Co., Ltd., Messrs. Campson and Bain, of Gananoque, in the local Council Chamber, and passed an agreement whereby they are to locate in Oshawa and erect a factory here 80 x 315 feet, where it is expected they will employ from 75 to 100 men from the start. The agreement calls for a $20,00 assessment fixed at that amount for ten years, during which time the company may extend their buildings on the site they have purchased, the town to supply water mains, sidewalks, sewers and keep roads between their plants and William street in good condition, all improvements to be put in, in accordance with our town by-laws. The agreement, of course, must be submitted to the ratepayers, in the form of a by-law, for their approval. There should not be a dissenting vote against it. The concessions asked for amount to nothing and in return Oshawa secures an industry with a $1,500,000 of capital, fully paid up, behind it.

Pimples Broke Out All Over Face, Arms and Neck

Pimples are sure sign that the blood is not in its proper shape.

While the skin is the seat of the irritating, unsightly pimples, the real disease is in the blood.

Medicated lotions and powders may allay the itching and the irritation, but never cure, no matter how long and faithfully continued, and the condition is often aggravated, and the skin permanently injured by their use. The isease is more than skin deep; the entire circulation is poisoned.

Burdock Blood Bitters quickly and effectually cures blood and skin troubles because it goes direct to the root of the disease and stimulates and restores normal, healthy action to the different organs, cleanses and enriches the blood, and thus relieves the system of all poisonous secretions.

B. B. B. cures permanently because it leaves none of the original poison to ferment in the blood and cause a fresh attack.

Miss E. M. Davids of Daysland, Alta., writes: "Last summer I was greatly troubled with pimples and sores. I was advised to try Burdock Blood Bitters and after taking two bottles the pimples had almost all disappeared. I shall always recommend this remedy to anyone afflicted with skin troubles."

B.B.B. is manufactured only by the T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

MRS. BALFAME

CHAPTER XXIII

An hour later, Alys was driving through Elsinore, her mind a trifle less personal as it dwelt upon her brief interview with the superintendent of the hospital. Mrs. Dissosway, who was devoted to her niece and believed her to be as exceptional as Miss Crumley in her most aspiring moments could have wished, had confided that she was sure poor dear Anna know something about that awful crime, for in her delirious moments she kept uttering Enid Balfame's name in very odd tones indeed. She had assured and reassured the patient that there was no clue to the murderer; and if she kept on and asked to see Mrs. Balfame,—which, significantly, she had not done,—they of course would tell her that the friend who should have hastened to her bedside had suffered a nervous breakdown or sprained her ankle. It was a blessing that she was in no condition to testify against her idol, for it would kill her, just as it might be fatal now if she knew that Enid was in the County Jail.

After some delicate insistence, Mrs. Dissosway had admitted that Dr. Anna must convince any one who listened attentively to her mutterings that her belief in her friend's guilt was native, whether she had exact knowledge or not.

"'Oh, Enid! Oh, Enid!' she kept repeating in such a tone of anguish and reproach and then muttered: 'Poor child! What a life!' She also once said something about a pistol in a tone of dismay, but the other words I couldn't make out.

"The nurse on her case," Mrs. Dissosway had concluded, "will pay no attention. They are too accustomed to fever patients to listen to ravings, and the two she will have are from other parts of the State, anyhow. They never heard of Mrs. Balfame before. But I have been in and out all day, and I know she is worrying in her poor hot mind both over her friend's crime and her danger—"

"Then you believe Mrs. Balfame did it?" Miss Crumley had interrupted.

"Yes, I do now anyhow; and I never was daft about her. She barely remembers I am alive, living out here for the last fifteen years as I have done, and I am your mother's sister. I don't call her a snob; it's just that she don't seem to take any interest in people that ain't in her own set. But the Lord knows I'd never tell on her if I had the proof in my hand, for I don't want any of our grand old families disgraced, and she's been good to your mother. No, she can go free, and welcome, but I wish poor Anna could have been spared the knowledge of her crime, for it's going to be all the harder to nurse her well, and she has a bad case. If she has to go, she shall go in peace. I'll see to that. But when Enid Balfame is out, I'll take good care to let her know that she has another crime to carry on her conscience—if she's got one."

Alys had not asked to see the patient, knowing that it would be useless, but Mrs. Dissosway had walked out to the cart with her, and pointing to a window on the first floor of the wing devoted to paying patients, remarked: "That's where she is, poor dear." Alys had wondered if she would fall low enough before this accursed case were finished to describe the position of that room to Broderick and insinuate what he might find there if he chose to hide in the little balcony and enter the room when the night nurse had gone out for the midnight supper. He was quite capable of it.

But not if she could win Rush from the case, nor unless, Mrs. Balfame discharged, he were arrested and committed for the crime. She wished now that he had been arrested instead of Mrs. Balfame, for then she could have saved him from both punishment and the other woman without this awful sense of sliding slowly down-hill to choke in a poisonous slime. She might have been obliged to exercise a certain amount of sophistry even then, but she could have stood it.

She was driving slowly down Atlantic Avenue when she heard her name called in accents of mystery and excitement. Her modest rig was passing the imposing mansion of Elisha Battle, bank president, and like all the newer homes of Elsinore, the grounds were unconfined and the shallow lawn ended at the pavement. From one of the drawing-room windows Lottie Giffning slanted, and as she met Miss Crumley's eye, she beckoned peremptorily. The desire for solitude was still strong upon Alys, but as she had no excuse to advance, she wound the lines round the whip and went slowly up the brick walk.

Mrs. Gifning opened the front door and swept her into the drawing-room, where six or seven other women with tense excited faces sat on the expensive furniture. Mrs. Battle, herself upholstered in shining black-and-white satin, and further clad in invisible armour, occupied a stately and upright chair. This throne had been made to order; consequently her small feet in their high-heeled pumps touched the floor. The large room, upon which much money had been spent, was not tasteless; it merely had no individuality whatever. Like many another in Elsinore, it set Miss Crumley's teeth on edge, but compensated her today as ever by inspiring her with a sense of remote superiority.

"Dear Alys—so glad to see you!" Mrs. Battle did not rise. She was fond of Alys, but thought her of no consequence whatever. "Lottie saw you and called you in as you have always been such a friend of poor dear Enid's, and you know those horrid reporters, and we want to impress upon you the necessarity of putting them off the track. We are talking the whole dreadful business over and trying to decide what to do."

"Do?" Alys, more interested, disposed her limber uncorseted young figure into a low chair and for a moment diverted envious attention from the momentous subject in hand. "What can we do? Has bail been accepted?"

"No, nor likely to be. Isn't it/too awful?"

"Yes, it's awful." Alys stared at the floor, but although her words might have been uttered by any of the ladies present, her tone was almost conventional. No one noticed this defection, however, and Mrs. Battle—after Mrs. Gifning had tiptoed to all the doors, opened them suddenly closed them again,—proceeded in so low a tone that there was an immediate hitching of chairs over the Persian rug.

"What we were debating when you came in, Alys, was whether—oh, it's too awful!—she did it or not. Did she or didn't she? She has a perfectly beautiful character—but the provocation! Few women have been tried more severely. And we all know what human nature is under the influence of sudden tremendous passion." Mrs. Battle, who never had been ruffled by any sort of passion, leaned against the high back of her chair, and elevated her eyebrows and one corner of her mouth.

"Could such a crime have been unpremeditated?" asked Alys. "You forget that whoever did it was waiting in the grove for Balfame to come home from Sams, and evidently to shoot as he reached the gate."

FROM BEET TO BOWL

a product of Canadian Industry

MANY women fail to specify any particular brand, when ordering Sugar. They seem to imagine that "Sugar is Sugar." In this they are mistaken. There is Sugar and Sugar. On the one hand, there is the ordinary kind—the kind some Grocers will send you if you are not careful to specify. On the other hand, there is Dominion Crystal Sugar, the Sugar that is always uniform in quality, always pure, always fine in granulation.

DOMINION CRYSTAL SUGAR

Pure, sparkling and finely granulated. A sugar that will give unfailing satisfaction in preserving, in baking, and for table use.

This is the only sugar that may be rightly termed "Canadian from the ground up." We do import the finest of raw cane sugar and refine it—but our pride is in the product we make from Canadian sugar beets.

In many Canadian homes the merits of this brand were fully realized during the year of 1918, when the supplies of imported raw Cane Sugar were so depleted that, but for our product of the Sugar Beets, Canada indeed would have faced a Sugar famine. Then it was that Canadian housewives learned to appreciate what a fine thing it is to have a Sugar that is "Canadian from the ground up." Then it was that they turned gratefully to Dominion Crystal Sugar—and found it to be all that we had claimed—a Sugar of exceptional quality that gives unfailing satisfaction whether used in the kitchen or on the table. The interesting story of the Sugar Beet and how we extract from it this finest and purest of Sugar, is told in our illustrated Booklet entitled: "Sugar from Beet to Bowl." A copy of this Booklet will be mailed to you if you will send us your name and address on a post-card.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Shorn Locks

By BARBARA KERR

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Percy Grosscup, the handsomest man of the whole force, came jauntily into the room, smiled patronizingly at the stenographer and proceeded to the desk of his chief to see whether any collections had come for his department. His chief was out, but lying open and spread out on his desk was the following remarkable, but self-explanatory telegram:

"Don't let Grosscup go pay five thousand worth it appearance asset of office."

As his eyes devoured it and the sense of it soaked in he could hardly hold himself together. "Why, why—five thousand is twice what I asked for—They have at last realized what I am worth to them. Ah, Percy, you handsome dog—this means—" and chuckling to himself, he ran his hand through his curly hair, a gentle flush overspread him and, glancing slyly at the stenographer, he hurried out.

Getting into his coat, hastily catching up his hat and swagger stick, he nailed the down elevator. Sniffing at his exultant countenance in its little mirror, he threw back his head to get a refractory curl out of his eyes, straightened his hat, and half audibly chuckled to his reflection— "Appearances asset of office."

"Aw, wot's eatin' ye? Pretty Percy. Must he a kissin'-bug, the way ye're lookin' at yerself!" sneered the elevator boy.

A blush spread over Percy's face at the howl of derisive laughter from the boy. At another time he probably would have given him a good shaking, but now he was busy formulating his plans which must be executed quickly, so he had no time to teach the boy manners to his betters. That could be attended to later; there was other and pleasanter business on hand.

The telegram was as good as actual money. The firm was never known to go back on a pledge. He would go and bind the bargain with a little down payment on a certain bungalow that he had admired—and so had she—then he could speak of it as his; also he would have set aside for him a certain suite of living-room furniture in a down-town window that he had had his eye on; then he would go and tell the girl and ask her to name the day.

It is quite wonderful how smoothly business runs when the man who has the price sets out to buy. He was so jubilant that he was almost beside himself, but he managed either to suppress the outward signs, or to grin behind his hand, so as not to provoke any more such coarse and unfeeling remarks as those indulged in by the elevator-boy.

Millicent Beauchamp lived with a widowed mother in a little cottage at the edge of town and helped out a small income by teaching primary music classes. She was a wholesome, modest girl with sterling womanly qualities. So when she saw Percy coming, she wisely decided that she would not run away to change her dress, but would meet him as she would any other caller at that hour in the morning. Very sweet and winsome she looked as she swung the door open and asked

"And what brings Mr. Grosscup out so early? Do we owe that firm of yours anything? And were you afraid we'd move?"

Be it said to the credit of Percy that, despite arrogant egotism, he appreciated her worth, and for just a minute the question almost formed itself in his mind as to whether he was really good enough for her. He answered her laughing question.

"If you do owe us anything," he returned joyously, "that pink gingham dress would just about settle it." Then almost before he realized it, he was asking her to throw herself into the bargain.

"Are—are you proposing to me?" breathlessly asked Millicent. And Percy swept her into his arms to assure her at closer range that he was.

The patter of staccato steps in the hall brought the people down to earth. Disengaging herself, Millicent in a hushed little voice half whispered: "It's mother!"

But Percy was in one of those exultant, impetuous moods that carries all before it, and turning hastily, he caught Millicent's rather chubby little mother in an ecstatic embrace and, kissing her on the cheek with all the air of a happy, teasing son, repeated: "It's mother!" Then releasing her a little ruefully, he begged pardon, neatly apologized and blamed his impetuosity, and the fact that he had not asked her consent at first, all to the pink gingham dress.

Mrs. Beauchamp, very much perturbed, and with two tears that threatened to overflow their banks, in spite of much winking to force them back, smiled a little tremulous consent to everything, then hastened out to take care of the rebellious tears and left the young people to their wonderful occupation of planning a speedy marriage.

"Well, now that's settled, and I must get back to work or I might lose my job," said Percy apologetically, after relating his good fortunes and listening to unstinted praise of his unusual business ability.

Upon reaching the office he walked into his chief's presence and awaited the news.

"What, just got in? Late again?" asked his chief, as he jumpled his papers a little as though looking for something. He hated to tell Grosscup what was coming to him.

Picking up the telegram, he coughed slightly and said: "Mr. Grosscup, the president thinks that we can dispense with your services after the first of the month."

Grosscup laughed aloud at the joke.

The chief looked at him amazed. "Well, I am very glad that you take it that way. I was rather sorry for you, but—"

His face and manner sobered Percy, who pointed to the telegram and said: "That doesn't sound much as if I were canned."

The chief looked at the message as if he were really seeing it for the first time. He was seeing what Percy saw. He turned to the stenographer: "Miss Smith, please show Mr. Grosscup how to read a categorical telegram, and punctuate it for him."

Miss Smith, who was sorry for Percy, looked appealingly at the chief, who motioned her to bring the correspondence to his desk.

"You saw this before!" asked, or rather, asserted the chief.

Percy could not trust himself to speak, but nodded his head.

"Well," said the chief more kindly, "then it will be a pretty hard setback, when you see the real message. To save time and money, we have a sort of code. We heads try to keep so well posted that few words are necessary. And taking his pencil he punctuated the telegram, and as he read it, ran his finger over the corresponding question in a letter. "The message says:

"Don't." (Don't take on another stenographer).

"Let Grosscup go." (Getting more now than he can or will earn till his hat gets down to normal. He ought to be called plain Bighead. Gross-Kopf must have been the original name).

"Pay five thousand." (For house on Beecher St.)

"Worth it." (To pay $200 to remodel front.)

"Appearances asset of office." (So we are justified in paying that amount.)

The stenographer had slipped out; she could not bear to see his humiliation. The chief really had a kindly heart, and he fumbled his papers some more without looking at Percy.

With a groan Grosscup sank into a chair, his hands before his face. Tears of mortification and disappointment were smarting his eyes. Once or twice he tried to speak, then he arose as if to go.

"Sit down, son; you aren't the first man to lose his job. You've got plenty of time to look around. We might even extend your time a month, till you get settled down somewhere—"

"Get settled somewhere! Yes, in that new little bungalow!" he burst out bitterly. Then he opened his heart and made a clean breast of the whole of the morning's business. He stopped short at the maddening thought. "What will she say? How can I ever tell her?" Then manfully he pleaded his cause:

"Just you name the figure that you can afford to pay me till my hat gets down to normal. I'll go out and tell the girl the whole story, then I'll marry her on the date set just the same, if she'll have me. I'll see if I can't come out ahead of this deal after all—I'd like to show you once what I can do."

"It mightn't be a bad venture," mused the chief, thoughtfully, "if you really mean it."

The curling lock fell over his brow, and feeling the look of half contempt that came over his chief's face, he pushed the lock back savagely: "Lend me a quarter till I go out and get my hair cut," begged Percy. "I'll show you whether I mean it or not!"

For Colds, Catarrh or Influenza.

Do you feel weak and unequal to the work ahead of you? Do you still cough a little, or does your nose bother you? Are you pale? Is your blood thin and watery? Better put your body into shape. Build strong!

An old, reliable blood-maker and herbal tonic made from wild roots and barks, is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This "nature remedy" comes in tablet or liquid form. It will build up your body, cure your cold, and protect you from disease germs which lurk everywhere. One of the active ingredients of this temperance alterative and tonic is wild cherry bark with stillingia, which is so good for the lungs and for coughs; also Oregon grape root, blood root, stone root, Queen's root,—all skilfully combined in the Medical Discovery. These roots have a direct action on the stomach, improving digestion and assimilation. These herbal extracts in the "Discovery" aid in blood-making, and are best for scrofula. By improving the blood they aid in throwing off an attack of influenza.

Catarrh should be treated, first, as a blood disease, with this alterative. Then, in addition, the nose should be washed daily with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy.

Keyless Electric Lock.

An interesting device is described by a Chicago electrician: "I have attached a secret lock that does not require any key to open it to the door of my room," he says. "The lock itself is an ordinary electric lock, but it is the way that the contact is made through it in opening the door that makes my scheme different from others. A vertical wire is suspended the full length of the panel on the inside of the door. Directly opposite the middle of the wire and quite close to it, a small brass plate is mounted. One end of the battery-and-lock circuit is connected with the vertical wire, and the other end with the brass plate. Whenever I desire to enter my room, I simply knock on the outside of the panel; the wire vibrates. It finally touches the plate, the circuit is closed, and the lock opens."

His Wealth in His Mind.

Imaginary wealth got a man into trouble in Edinburgh a few days ago. The man was being prosecuted for obtaining goods on false pretenses. It was stated that he had been previously convicted in Edinburgh, and was formerly in the Royal Scots. He had a lively imagination, and described himself as residing at Cranston house, Braemar. There was found in his possession a will, by which he bequeathed a number of legacies—giving $25,000 to one lady, and $5,000 to the Sick Children's hospital, Aberdeen. There was, however, no Cranston house at Braemar, and all the wealth in the accused's possession was about 11 cents.

EAT LESS MEAT IF BACK HURTS

Take a Glass of Salts to flush Kidneys if Bladder bothers you—Drink lots of water.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatism twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

Victories of Peace

If Canada is to share in the Victories of Peace she must translate into industrial activity the spiritual valor of her men. War developed untold possibilities in human energies.

They and we know the part that engineering played in war, but they and we know that its part will be infinitely greater when applied to the arts of peace.

Men who did big things are not going to let their energies lie fallow because the conflict is done. Already they are grasping industrial opportunities, and the driving force and the unconquerable spirit that kept them at the big task overseas will make them formidable competitors here.

Men contemplating new enterprises or the re-establishment of old industries are invited to visit us and draw upon our experience in all matters pertaining to Power Transmission Engineering.

We have made great strides in productive capacity in the past four years; and we are eager to match this capacity with the initiative and ability of new forces in the industrial world.

We welcome them back into industrial life, and we offer them the best that we have to aid them in re-establishing their industrial footing.

LIQUOR DEALERS ASK CITIZENS TO FIGHT PROHIBITION.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—Resolutions adopted at the closing session of the National Retail Liquor Dealers' Association ask all fair-minded citizens to "assist in fighting national prohibition since the issue was promulgated in the absence of 2,500,000 voters, many of whom made the supreme sacrifice in bloody protest against such fanatical propaganda as prohibition emanates from."

Prophecies were made that President Wilson will be in so cheerful a mood when he returns from Paris that he will wipe all war time legislation off the statute books. Prohibition, it is predicted, will be included in the process.

It is proposed by officers of the association that assessments be made large enough upon the 85,000 saloonkeepers to insure a fund to meet all emergencies. The money will be needed, they said, for legal battles in many States.

Why Can't I Get to Sleep?

Thousands of people all over the country ask this question but still continue to toss night after night on a sleepless bed and it is impossible for them to get a full night's refreshing sleep.

Some constitutional disturbance, worry or disease, has so debilitated and irritated the nervous system that it cannot be quieted except by the pernicious use of opiates or narcotics. Or again, you have heart palpitation, and sensation sinking, a feeling you are going to die, or perhaps you wake up in your sleep feeling as though you were about to choke or smother, and the only way that you can get relief is to sit up in bed.

To all who suffer in this way, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills offer an inestimable boon. They bring back the much needed night's rest by improving the tone of the nerves, strengthen the heart, enriching the blood and making the whole organization act in harmony—then you slee as peaceful as a child.

Mrs. James Latimer, 39 Leinster St., St. John, N. B., writes: "At night I could not sleep. I had to sit up in bed, my heart beat so fast and when I walked up stairs I would get all out of breath. A friend recommended Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and after using two boxes I can sleep all night, and am not out of breath after walking."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of pric by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Plenty of calves offering, and the market a little on the easy side.

Good strong market for short-keep feeders of quality, but light stockers very slow.

Strong market for sheep and lambs, with very few offering.

PAVING CONTRACT IS BEING HELD UP

Strike at Orillia Holds Up Situation Among Labour Men.

ORILLIA, May 13.—As the employers showed no disposition to meet the demands of the Federal Labour Union for 50 cents an hour and an eight-hour day for outside workers, following the conference called by the Union for Wednesday evening, of last week, a strike was called at noon on Thursday last. The work principally affected was the preparation for paving on the main street, which has been brought to a standstill, except that the Bell Telephone Company has been completing its junction box at the corner of Mississaga and Pete Streets. Under the impression that some of the employers were prepared to pay 45 cents for a nine-hour day, the strikers on Monday, by a majority of 14, voted to accept the basis. But nothing came of this attempt to compromise. The Warren Bituminous Company, of Toronto, who have the contract for the paving, are advertising for 50 labourers, and offering 35 cents an hour, which is the minimum set by the Town Council. It is asserted that men can be brought in from outside at this rate, but it is generally hoped that it will not come to this, as the paving was pushed forward partly with a view to giving work to local labour. The Town Council has had to discontinue the laying of sewers, but the waterworks men are carrying on their regular work. There was considerable excitement on the main street for several days, but things have again quieted down. Some threats have been made, but Mayor Anderson has given it to be distinctly understood that men who wish to work will be protected in doing so. Mr. Curran, contractor for the storm sewers, has purchased a trenching machine, which will reduce hand labour to a minimum.

DOMINION REGIMENT IN ENGLAND WANTED

Regiment to Keep Alive the Astounding Power of Overseas Regiments.

LONDON, May 13.—The Times in a leader says: "It is unthinkable that no single army should be left where in the spirit of the mighty Imperial army, which displayed to an astounding world, the real power of the British Empire may survive.

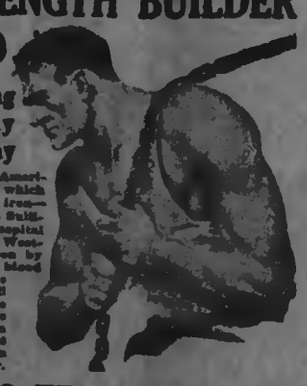
"There must be some Imperial unit of the army, if only to keep alive the Dominion tradition in British military life."

Therefore it suggests the establishment of a regiment of Imperial guards, with its home in Britain but commanded, officered and manned by men of the Dominions.

NUXATED IRON

—MASTER STRENGTH BUILDER OF THE BLOOD

The Power Behind the Strong Sturdy Men and Healthy Beautiful Women of Today



"To make strong, lean, red-blooded Americans there is nothing in my experience which I have found so valuable as organic iron—Nuxated Iron" says Dr. Simeon Francis Sullivan, formerly Physician of Belleuve Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York and the Westchester County Hospital. Nuxated Iron by enriching the blood and creating new blood cells strengthens the nerves, rebuilds the weakened tissues and helps to instill renewed energy and endurance into the whole system. It often increases the strength of weak, delicate people in two weeks' time. It is estimated that over 3,000,000 people use Nuxated Iron annually as a tonic, and blood-builder.

MAKE THIS TEST YOURSELF And Find Out Where Your Blood Stands

See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired, next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Numbers of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while have most astonishingly increased their strength and endurance simply by taking iron in the proper form.

What the Dealer Means to You

THE shoe dealer does more for you than you perhaps realize. He not only carries a variety of styles and sizes for your convenience, right in your town, but he renders you a service which no one else can render in the correct fitting of your foot.

This is very important, not only for the sake of comfort, but also because the appearance and the life of your shoes depend upon correctness of fit. No matter what price you may pay for a shoe, it cannot give you its full service if it does not fit your foot.

And more than that: ill-fitting shoes often cause foot troubles, even though they may feel perfectly comfortable at first. Correct fitting shoes are essential, even if it means extra time and effort for you to get them.

So you should go to a dealer in whom you have confidence, let him advise you as to the type of shoe which is suited to your foot, and give him time to fit you correctly. You will get better service from your shoes if you will do this, and they will look better.

Write for our booklet "How to Buy Shoes" which gives more information on this important subject. It is sent gladly to any address in Canada upon request to our head office at Montreal.

Memory of Peterboro Soldiers

IN MEMORIAM.

(Lines to the memory of Rifleman Butler, of Peterborough, member of A Co., 259th Batt., C.E.F., killed on the deck of his transport and buried at sea.

Half speed ahead,
The ship obeys the call
In tribute to the dead
Awaiting burial.

His shroud a canvas sack,
On deck a comrade lies,
O'er him the Union Jack,
Above—the sullen skies.

Around—the sea so lone,
Relentless grey and grim,
And winds aloft that moan
In mournful requiem.

His comrades form a guard
Of honour round his bier,
And few but find it hard
To check the rising tear.

They open wide the hatch,
Cut in the vessel's side,
A fleeting glimpse they catch
Of the onrushing tide.

The Chaplain's voice is heard
In solemn monotone,
"He that believes the Word
The Lord shall not disown.

"Committed to the deep,
O Thou who giveth peace,
His soul be in Thy keep
Where care and sorrow cease."

And then the sea receives
Their comrade and their friend,
The lonely bugle grieves
And all is at an end.

He fell not in the fight,
And none may mark his grave,
But none denies his right
To number with the brave.

There shall he lie at rest
Till Time itself hath sped,
One of his country's best
Among the honoured dead.

HOTEL AT CHATEAU-THIERRY

New York and Paris Capitalists To Build It on Battlefield.

Copeland Townsend of the Hotel Majestic, who is interested in two other New York hotels, stated that he had been approached by a syndicate to become managing director of a new American hotel to be built at Chateau-Thierry, France. The syndicate is composed of New York and Paris capitalists, and the plan is to build one of the largest hotels in France on the historic battleground.

The thousands of tourists that will visit there for years has made the demand for a hotel one worth considering in a big way, it is said. Many business enterprises are already springing up around Chateau-Thierry, and the need for hotel accommodation is acute. It is understood that an option has been obtained on a site.

Mr. Townsend said that should he accept, it would mean that he would spend only a part of this time in France. He began his hotel career as a package boy in the Palmer House in Chicago, and was later managing director of that hotel. He has also managed the Savoy, Imperial, and Fifth Avenue Hotels in New York.

Public School Cadets Were Inspected By Col. Gillespie

Gold Medals Presented to the Central School for Good Shooting.

VERY EFFICIENT

At his annual inspection of the Cadet Corps of the South Central, Central, King Edward and Queen Mary schools, Lieut.-Col. Gillespie, Cadet Inspector for No. 3 Military District, was visibly impressed with the improvement the boys have made since the inspection of last year. His first inspection was made at 9 o'clock at the South Central school, where he reviewed the 56 members of the corps, trained under the instructorship of Mr. F. E. Kerr. After expressing his satisfaction with the improvement of the corps under Mr. Kerr's instruction, he personally congratulated the officer commanding the corps, Howard Young, telling him he would make a good officer and that he would make his report of the inspection as favourable as possible. The other officers taking part in this inspection were Benny Sims, Half Company Commander Clifford Parrington, Clarence Parrington, Harry Willow and Kenneth French, Section Commanders.

Central School.

At the Central school at 11 o'clock, Col. Gillespie congratulated the corps upon their good work and said he would be glad to send in a report of the corps' general efficiency to the Board of Education and the Department of Militia. He conveyed Gen. Williams' regrets at not being present, the General having been called to St. John, N.B. He (the General) hopes to make a tour of the schools very soon. The boys, about 60 strong, who have been trained by Mr. J. L. Colling, went through their drill in a manner which reflected great credit upon their instructor and upon their officers, Bert Graham O.C., John Yarnold and Melville Doane, Platoon Sergeants, and Eric Roberts, Signal Sergeant.

At the conclusion of the inspection, the boys gave three cheers for Col. Gillespie.

Presented Medals.

After the inspection, Mr. Roland Denne, chairman of the Board of Education, presented the medals won by the Central school cadets during the year at rifle shooting. In presenting them, Mr. Denne spoke of the privileges the present day boys enjoy, which were not available for the boys at the Central school when he was a student in the splendid play and drill [illegible] awarded as follows:

Gold—(Of Out of 70.)
Farrow Stevens.
Silver—(Over 56 Out of 70.)
Farrow Stevens.
Bert Graham.
Bronze—(Over 50.)
Farrow Stevens.
Bert Graham.
Eric Roberts.
David Grant.
Harry Allen.
Russel Biggs.
Gregg Roberts.

Congratulated Board.

At the King Edward School this afternoon, where he reviewed the Cadet Corps of about 45 members, Col. Gillespie, after congratulating the Instructor, Mr. F. M. Gould, on the boys' splendid training, congratulated the Board of Education upon the splendid playgrounds at the school. "It is the first school," he said, "in this military district, with playgrounds of such dimensions." He concluded by paying a tribute to the physical training shown by the boys, which, he said, was remarkable.

Mr. J. M. Greene congratulated the boys upon the splendid showing and proclaimed a holiday for the balance of the afternoon.

The personnel in command of the King Edward Cadets is Capt. Kenneth Greene, 1st Lieut. Walter Rye, 2nd Lieut., Douglas Moore, Color Sergt A. Mitchell and Sergts., Douglas Evans, Walter Howden and James Batley.

The members of the Board who attended the review this afternoon were Mr. R. Denne, Mr. G. O. Cameron, Mr. J. M. Greene and Mr. E. G. Patterson.

(Canadian Press.)

MONTAUK POINT, N.Y., May 14.— Navy dirigible C 5 left here to-day on a flight to St. Johns, Nfld., which may be followed by an attempt to fly across the Atlantic. The baloon took the air at 8 a.m. and promptly stepped into her maximum cruiser speed of fifty miles an hour, which was expected to drive the big bag over 1,200 miles to Newfoundland in 24 hours. In command of Lieut. Commander Emery, the airship took a north-east course, which is expected to carry her over the naval air station at Chatham, Mass., and then continue along the New England and Canadian coasts.

None Stop Cruise.

At St. Johns, "lighter than air" experts, put ashore from the cruiser Chicago, with spare parts, tools and supplies of inflation gas and fuel, await the balloon ready to assist in preparing her for a possible two thousand mile non-stop cruise to the British Isles.

There was a possibility also, naval officer said, that the route of the N.C. heavier than air machines via the Azores might be followed, reducing the longest jump approximately 1,300 miles by making a stop at Punta Del Gado. The adoption of this route would give a dirigible the benefit of warship patrol established from seaplanes, the plan being to start the C 5 on her eastward passage after the airship has reached Europe or at least has completed the Newfoundland to Azores leg of its cruise.

CARVING SET AND SILVERWARE GIFTS

About seventy of the friends of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Ackison, of Lily Lake, Smith township, assembled at their residence for a surprise party on Thursday night and presented them with a handsome carving set and oak case, and silver knives and forks of old Colonial design. Mrs. Ackison, before her marriage, was Miss Jessie Swinton, assistant city treasurer. An enjoyable evening was spent by the young people. The address accompanying the gifts was as follows:

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Ackison,
Lily Lake—

Dear Jessie and Archie: We, your friends and neighbours, desiring to congratulate you most heartily on your marriage and ourselves on knowing that we now have you both permanently with us, ask you to accept this gift as a souvenir of the esteem and respect with which you are held in this community.

Wishing you happiness and prosperity in the future.

Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbours.

BIG BILL PLEASES GRAND AUDIENCES

One of the finest programmes of pictures and vaudeville that the Grand has presented to its patrons is being shown this week, to-night being the final performance, and there will undoubtedly be a capacity attendance, as the merit of the programme is being enthusiastically talked about. The vaudeville is even better than the usual high standard of the Grand. Jarvis and Harris score heavily in their skit, "Shooting the Chutes," which is responsible for a gale of laughter. Wendall Hall, in his xylophone specialty, shows himself a past master on that instrument, and in addition sings "Dear Old Pal o' Mine" in splendid style. Burley and Burley, in their novelty acrobatic act, are another big feature of the bill. The big picture of the bill is "Common Clay," the Harvard prize play, in which Fanny Ward is featured. It is a splendid film story, admirably screened and acted. In addition there is a Charlie Chaplin picture and the Scren Magazine.

Sir Robert Borden and His Right Bower Have Heard the S.O.S. Call.

MAY RETURN

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, May 14.—(Cable from Leon Trepanier).—In view of the fact that the principles have been settled upon which peace is to be established, Sir Robert Borden and Hon. Arthur Sifton left Paris this morning for London, and will proceed to Canada by the first available boat. They have been absent from Canada more than six months, far beyond the period anticipated when Mr. Lloyd George called them to London in November last. The date at which peace will eventually be signed is a matter of conjecture, but questions of importance awaiting consideration in Canada necessitate the Premier's return. Sir George Foster and Mr. Doherty will remain in Paris for the present. The Prime Minister and Mr. Sifton may return to their duties in Paris at the end of the present session if required.

Wood Prices Are Bound to Go Higher

Lay in Your Supply of Good, Clean Wood, Cut This Winter.

We beg to announce a slight change in our price list for the present week. We announced two weeks ago that existing prices could not continue, owing to increased costs of handling wood. This applies particularly to hardwood which we have been selling at ten dollars a cord, cut in stove lengths. This week this class of wood will be sold at ten dollars a cord, cutting extra. We are still selling slabs cut at four dollars a load and mixed wood at nine dollars a cord cut. Both of these grades have a good percentage of hardwood and are good buying at the prices quoted. This wood is not black with age, having been cut and piled in early part of the past winter. Call and inspect it and lay in your supply before prices go higher. Take the advice of one of the largest local coal and wood dealers who anticipates a worse fuel famine than ever next winter. Get your supply in early.

Our prices for this week are as follows:

Hardwood, four foot lengths—$10 a cord. Cutting extra.
Mixed wood—$9 a cord, cut.
Slabs—$4 a load, cut.

CONVENTION IN PETERBORO

This City is Leading for the 1920 Meeting of the Ontario G.W.V.A.— The Windsor Convention.

KEEN CONTEST

(Special to Examiner.)

WINDSOR, May 14. — A contest for the presidency of the Ontario G. W. V. A. is now a certainty, and since the delegates have been arriving in considerable numbers in the session hall it is apparent that at least seven candidates will be nominated for that office, and that enough will remain in the field to make an election necessary.

Captain Rev. C. E. Jeakins, of Brantford, the present President, will seek re-election, and has a very considerable following. Comrade J. R. Bell, of Parkdale Branch, Toronto, and Colonel W. C. Coles of London, both of whom are vice-presidents, will also be recommended for office. Field Secretary H. A. Jarvis of Ottawa, Major O'Flynn of Belleville, Comrade Bruce Taylor of Kingston, and Comrade R. Harrison, President of the Windsor G.W.A., are other names persistently mentioned in this connection, and who will be nominated unless they decline the honour. It is possible that the contest will sift down to two candidates, President Jeakins and Major O'Flynn.

In any event the re-election of Capt. Jeakins seems a probability although some opposition is being exerted from certain quarters where there is a feeling against having a clergyman at the head of the Ontario Association.

Should H. A. Jarvis or R. Harrison decide to stand for office either or both should receive influential support although the former on account of his position as Field Secretary has never consented to accept the nomination or office.

As Comrade Bell of Toronto, is absent from the convention, owing to illness, his written consent will be necessary before his nomination will be valid.

Secretary under Fire.

Although Provincial Secretary W. E. Turley is under fire on account of his recent utterances against the $2,000 gratuity, there is no aspirant in sight for his office. The sentiment seems to be entirely in opposition to his views on this one question, but from a canvass of the delegates who arrived yesterday and this morning, it was ascertained that there will be no attack whatever upon his work as secretary nor any effort to oust him from office. On the contrary he seems to hold the confidence of practically the whole of the representatives who have yet arrived. In any event his position this year, for the first time, is not an elective one. After the present convention he will be appointed by the Provincial Executive Committee, although until the end of the convention he will hold office by virtue of a general vote of last year's convention. At the most the convention could but ask the executive not to re-appoint him as secretary, but there seems to be no disposition whatever to do this on the part of the greater portion of the delegates.

The Vice-Presidency.

Bitter criticism of his addresses and interviews on the $2,000 gratuity question has already begun and is expected to reach a white heat before the convention closes. The vice-presidency will almost certainly go to one of the defeated presidential candidates. An important technicality has arisen in connection with the elections which has given present officers and the executive committee members food for much thought. It is still somewhat unsettled. To be eligible for election to office in the Ontario Association the candidate must be a fully accredited delegate to the provincial convention. Owing to the fact that the officers and executive members are ex-officers entitled to attend the convention none of them were appointed delegates from their respective branches. Not being delegates in the fullest sense of the word, does the constitution permit of them under these circumstances being re-elected? Certain officers looking forward to re-election, wrote Secretary Turley on the matter some days ago. His pronouncement was that they were not eligible for re-election. As a result, Comrade William Coles, of London, had one of the elected delegates to the convention withdraw, and was chosen to take his place. This means that according to Secretary Turley's ruling, of all officers and members of the provincial command, Comrade Cole is the only one eligible for re-election. On the present construction of the constitution all the others must relinquish all possibility of retaing their office on a technicality. The matter has been referred to the Dominion headquarters whose opinion on the matter is now awaited with interest.

The election of officers for the ensuing year will be held on Friday, the last day of the convention. It seems likely that next year's provincial convention will be held at Peterboro. Niagara Falls, Fort William, and Belleville, are the three other cities under consideration, but the in-

Nine Peterboro Soldiers Arrived on Royal George

Big Transport Docked at Halifax This Morning—Heated Argument on Board Over the Irish Question.

HALIFAX, May 14.—The following Peterborough men arrived on the Royal George this morning: Sgt. Harry Barett, Sgt. Stephen L. Holland, Pte. Augustus Colin, Pte. Ernest Crofts, Driver P. C. Hamlin, Pte. Harold Porteous, Pte. H. Rogers, Sig. M. R. Sloan, Pte. E. Wilson.

Heated arguments on Irish affairs on board the Royal George during her trip from Liverpool to this port caused a number of Canadian officers to demand that the Rev. Brother Thomas A. Rapilly, of Cork, Ireland, be not admitted to Canada. This morning when the ship docked officers protested against Brother Rapilly's presence in Canada and stated he rendered himself generally obnoxious throughout the trip. On one occasion they said, in the heat of an argument in the smoking saloon, he announced tht he was coming to Canada for the purpose of spreading Sinn Fein doctrines among the French Canadian population and also refused to sing the National Anthem. Brother Rapilly told the Press that he was coming to Canada by way of the United States on educational and private business. He said that his business had nothing whatever to do with the spread of Sinn Fein ideas. Brother Rapilly said he had founded schools in Montreal and elsewhere in Canada in 1911 at the earnest request of the French-Canadian people, who felt that there were not sufficient facilities in the country for the teaching of their children in the French language.

Committee Appointed to Deal With Hun Objections to the Allied Peace Treaty

Each of the Five Great Powers Will Be Represented—Italian Delegates No Longer Insisting Upon Fulfillment of the Secret Treaty of London.

DISTRIBUTION OF MERCHANT TONNAGE

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, May 14. — The Council of Four of the Peace Conference appointed this afternoon a sub-commission comprising one member from each of the five great Powers, Great Britain, France, Italy, United States and Japan to deal with objections and proposals from German peace plenipotentiaries.

Italian delegates to the Peace Conference are no longer insisting upon the fulfillment of the secret treaty of London and this part of the controversy relative to territory on the eastern shore of the Adriatic is tending toward an adjustment, according to those who have taken part in the recent conference. The status of Fiume is still being discussed, as a plan to make it a free city similar to Danzig, has not proved acceptable.

German Merchant Vessels.

Renewed efforts are being made by the British delegation to secure an agreement calling for the pooling of former German merchant vessels and their distribution on a basis of tonnage loss during the war instead of the plan of the United States retaining those ships interned in America prior to that country entering the war. Poland is laying claim to some of the warships surrendered by Germany. She presented her claims to the Council of Foreign Ministers this afternoon.

Government Will Hold Out.

(Canadian Press.)

BERLIN, May 11.—(Delayed.)—Declaring that the terms of peace presented by the Allied and Associated governments to Germany contemplate the physical, moral and intellectual paralysis of the German people, that Germans were 'hypnotized' by statements made by President Wilson, and that he himself is looking forward to the future with the gravest apprehension, President Ebert said to-day that he still hoped that American democracy would not accept the treaty framed at the Peace Conference. He rejected with disdain the suggestion that the present government would resign rather than accept or respect the terms, saying that the government would hold out to the end. President Ebert closed his statement by declaring the present government would hold out to the last and scouted the idea that it would make room for others to accept or reject the treaty.

Three German notes delivered to the Council of Four today, deal with the following subjects:

The first, effect of peace upon Germany's economic situation.

The second, with manner in which President Wilson's points are applied, which is protested against.

Third, with principles of reparation demands, which are protested, although it is declared that Germany is prepared to subscribe to them.

LIEUT. T. SHIELDS GAVE AN ADDRESS

Peterboro Boy Had Some Experience With the German U-Boats.

Lieut. Tom Shields delivered an intensely interesting address on "The German Submarine" in the Sunday School Room of George Street Methodist Church on Monday evening, under the auspices of the Senior Epworth League. Lieut. Shields had the distinction of being one of the pilots who escorted the German submarines from the Kiel Canal to England when they surrendered. While on active service his work was almost entirely in connection with submarines.

Different Types.

He explained the different types of submarines used by the Germans, the largest of which is the Deutschland type, called the cruiser submarines. These submarines are 300 feet long and 20 feet wide, and are able to stay at sea for from three to five months. The U-type submarines include the large minelayers. Mines were laid entirely by submarines and generally at night. This dangerous work was always enacted when the submarines were submerged. While flying, he always carried two bombs, one at each side, and each weighing 230 pounds. When these bombs exploded they caused such a commotion that a submarine submerged 150 feet would be so badly shaken up that in all probability it would never land. An aeroplane 2,000 feet in the air would rock from the effect.

At maximum speed a submarine may stay under water for from one to two hours, and when barely moving, two days. They may dive to 150 feet below the surface, and when hard pressed 300 feet has been reached. However, a great risk is taken.

The Patrol.

Destroyers were constantly patrolling the sea, making it very interesting for the submarines with their depth charges, which caused greater havoc than the 230-pound bombs. The British submarines had their recognition colours for different days, thus enabling the airmen to detect them. However, German submarines were generally detected as they would be seen making frantic efforts to submerge. Many camouflages were used by the Germans to beguile their enemies. They often hoisted sails or produced smoke and passed it through a dummy funnel. It has been been known for them to expel a slow torpedo, thinking their enemies might mistake this for a submarine, thus detracting their attention. Each submarine carries three periscopes, one of which is used to watch their greatest enemy who inhabits the air. The hydrophone, an instrument to detect sound, is used by all submarines. When a submarine is being chased it will shut off its engine and submerge in order to have everything as quiet as possible. By doing this they may hear all that is going on above, and will not rise until their enemy is out of reach.

Lieut. Shields had the honour of being an escort of the surrendering German submarines. The submarines came up in three lines, and headed by the famous Deutschland. It was a wonderful sight. When within thirty miles of the British coast, the Germans were marched aboard a vessel and their flags and vacated positions were filled by British.

WAR SERVICE BUTTONS

Among returned soldiers there is considerable interest in a recent judgment in the local police court, in which a man who pleaded guilty to wearing an active service button to which he was not entitled, was fined $5, with the alternative of 30 days in gaol. Veterans of the war are anxious to know just what the regulations are in regard to the wearing of these service buttons. Stamped on the back of each badge is a warning that the fraudulent wearing of the button will be punished by a fine of $500 or six months imprisonment. Yet in spite of this, Magistrate Dumble let an offender go with what is regarded as a nominal fine. The returned men of Peterborough are curious to find out the exact regulations. If the instructions so stamped on the active service button are not correct and the law leaves the punishment entirely to the discretion of the magistrate, then it is the opinion of the Veterans, that the sooner the regulations are amended, the better. They rightly argue that the offense of trying to claim service in France by men who may not even have been in uniform, let alone have gone out of the country, is a serious one and should be heavily punished. A slight fine is not enough to preserve the reputation of the real veterans, or to protect the public against impostors, and if the $500 fine with the alternative of six months in jail is not laid down as a minimum punishment for the offence, as the Veterans had always understood, until the local police magistrate's judgment was announced, there is likely to be an agitation on the part of the returned men to have the regulations changed so that there will be no repetition of the recent case.

A WRONG ATTITUDE

Some of the labour organizations of the west who are persistently refusing to have anything to do with the Industrial Relations Commission, are taking an attitude that is not of service to their cause. It is true that they are doubtless actuated by the belief that no good results will be obtained from the activities of the Commission and this opinion may be shared by others, but the fact remains that it is putting labour in a wrong light when organizations representing the workers, decline to give any information or assistance to the body which is endeavouring to uncover the basic causes of the present industrial unrest, and to arrive, if possible, at a remedy. The Commission may not succeed in its mission; it's work may be a complete failure, but at least it is up to the people generally and to the classes which are particularly affected, to give all the aid they can to the scheme. It is worth a trial and if after the labour organizations have done everything in their power to make it a success the Commission fails, then the blame cannot be laid upon the shoulders of labour. On the other hand if the action of some of the Western Unions is generally followed, the Commission will be furnished with a very handy excuse if nothing tangible comes of the scheme.

THE NORTHWEST POLICE

Canada has always been proud of her Royal Northwest Mounted Police, the "scarlet riders of the plains," whose exploits in the earlier days of the Dominion's history, have furnished the foundations for many an exciting story in magazine and novel. The record of the Mounted during the war as referred to by Hon. N. W. Rowell in the House of Commons on Monday, furnishes fresh reasons why Canadians should retain their pride in the gallant force. Hundreds of the Mounted in the early days of the war, retired from the force when they could obtain permission to do so, or bought their discharge in order that they might don the khaki of the Empire's fighting men, and the record they set up was surpassed by the representatives of no other body. The men of the Northwest Police won a number of Victoria Crosses. Sergt. Michael O'Leary was the first to do so, while Constable Fergus, after buying his discharge, went overseas and won the Victoria Cross, the D.S.O. and the Croix de Guerre, eventually securing the command of a battalion. Further proof of the calibre of the men who composed the Mounted Police is furnished by the fact that among the members who enlisted for service at the front two became Major-Generals, four Brigadier-Generals and scores of others Colonels, Major and Captains. Last spring when the restrictions against the enlistment of the members of the Mounted were raised, and five hundred volunteers were called upon to reinforce the Canadian Cavalry at the front, practically every member of the force offered his services and 736 men and 12 officers were sent overseas, while others were despatched to Siberia.

It is good news that the Royal Northwest Mounted are to be recruited to full strength and that their operations are to be extended to Northern Ontario and to British Columbia. As a force they have been not only picturesque, but wonderfully efficient and the people of Canada will be glad to learn that their great war record is to be followed by increased pay and pensions for the Riders of the Plains.

TIME TO MAKE GOOD

When the Peterborough soldiers who enlisted for overseas dropped their civilian life and put on the khaki of the C.E.F., they did not stop to make any demands off the public, but trusted to those who remained at home to "keep the home fires burning," and off they went. There were plenty of promises made however. People in official positions and otherwise, said that there would "be nothing too good for the boys when they came back." Well they're back now, a lot of them, and the time has come to make good the promises that were made.

The drive of the Great War Veterans next week for $15,000 for the new clubhouse, furnishes the test as to whether those fervent pledges made at the beginning of the war really meant anything or not. Peterboro is asked to show that when it was said that we would look after the boys when they returned, we were making promises that we intended to carry out. If the obligation is realized there should be obsolutely no doubt of the result. The issue will be faced next week and if at the end of the campaign, the objective has not been reached, it will be equivalent to a confession that the promises made to the Boys when they left were merely empty words.

And there were later promises as well. When the Veterans' Association was first formed and plans were discussed for securing headquarters large enough to accommodate all the boys who would come back, people said, "Wait until the war is over. It is a splendid thing, and we will be glad to help, but just now our first thought must be of the men who are still at the front and we must use all our energy and finances in backing them." This was a logical position to take and the Veterans realizing the truth of the contention, agreed to wait.

And now the war is over and they are rightly looking to the people who said they would help later on to carry out their pledges. They will have their chance in the campaign of next week. The canvassers will try not to overlook anyone and there will be an opportunity for all to help. The campaign should be a triumphant success.

Concert For the Great War Veterans

Excellent Programme Has Been Provided—Contributing Artists.

A first-class concert will be given next Tuesday evening in the Great War Veterans' Hall on Murray Street, the entire proceeds of which are to go to the G. W. V. A. Fund.

The ladies and gentlemen who are contributing to the programme are giving their services in the cheerful, ungrudging manner that has been characteristic of Peterborough's professional musicians throughout the war. The Veterans wish to make the concert the financial success that such an excellent programme merits.

It is hardly necessary to point out the worthiness of the object to this patriotic public. It is one that should impel everybody to buy tickets, which are available for the small sum of 25 cents at the Peterborough Music Store, McDermid & Jury's Drug Store, and the G. W. V. Rooms.

The following artistes will provide the programme:

Mrs. Maurice Park, Mrs George King, Misses Ida Sanderson, Lora Logan, Muriel Harvey, Marjorie Ingall; Messrs. Douglas Carlisle, Maurice Park, Herbert Rush, George H. King, and Bandmaster Hughes.

Keep next Tuesday evening open, and hear a splendid programme.

IMPROVEMENTS TO THE CEMETERY

An early visit to the Little Lake Cemetery reveals some pleasing transformations since the winter. The entire grounds look resplendent in a fresh new garb of strong, clean green sward, to which the recent frequent rains have contributed so much.

The two large oval flower beds of tulips and pansies situated on either side of the walk on entering the grounds are rich in bloom and beauty. Other beds are being got ready for their crowning bloom and rich foliage. Throughout the grounds the grass and walks have a clean and tidy appearance, very creditable to Superintendent James and his men.

The beautiful lawn surrounding the superintendent's residence is also looking well in its bright green verdure.

Monthly Income Insurance

Is your wife an experienced financier? If not, take your insurance on the income plan.

Is your wife better at saving than at spending? If not, take income insurance.

When a man dies there are three deaths:—
The death of a husband.
The death of a father.
The death of the income.

If you should receive your salary for a whole year in one lump sum on January 1st, how much would you have left on July 1st?

If your insurance is paid in one sum how long will it last?

For husband and wife who have no dependents the life income contract on the endowment form is the best policy. At the end of twenty years the income will begin. It will sustain them both as long as they live, and will provide a life income for the survivor if one should die.

NEW SCHOOL SITE WILL COST $11,000

Board Met Last Night and Adopted Report of Building Committee.

It took the Board of Education only five minutes last night to pass a resolution brought in by Mr. E. G. Patterson, chairman of the Building committee regarding the purchase of a new school site of five acres on the Chamberlen Estate in the south end of the city.

The Report.

The report of the Building committee follows:

As authorised your committee have negotiated further with the representatives of the Chamberlen Estate for the purchase of a portion of their property containing approximately 5 acres and described in their communication of May 3rd and have succeeded in obtaining from them an offer to sell at $11,000, and your committee recommend the acceptance of this offer.

Your committee beg to submit an agreement with Walter R. L. Blackwell, architect, which has been signed by him, and recommend that the same be executed by the chairman and secretary, on behalf of the Board.

Your committee further recommend that the Council of the City of Peterborough be requested to pass a by-law for the purpose of borrowing the sum of $11,000 by the issue of debentures of said city for the purpose of the purchase of a school site for a new Public school for the City of Peterborough, and that a copy of this recommendation be forwarded to the City Council.

Your committee ask that they be authorized to engage Mr. J. W. Fitzgerald, O.L.S., to do the necessary surveying of this property incident to the erection thereon of a school building.

Respectfully submitted,
E. G. PATTERSON,
Chairman.

The report was adopted by the Board.

Mr. Blackwell's Agreement.

The pith of the agreement entered into by the Board of Education with Mr. Walter Blackwell is that Mr. Blackwell is to prepare the plans and specifications subject to the direction of the Board, that Mr. Blackwell is to superintend the work and keep a competent inspector there. As remuneration he will receive 3 per cent. of the cost of the building to be paid from time to time at the discretion of the chairman of the Building committee.

Mr. R. Denne, chairman of the Board of Education, Mr. A. A. Fowler, Mr. E. P. Patterson and Mr. G. N. Gordon were appointed by the Board to go into the question of issuing debentures for the new school site with the City Council at their regular meeting.

To Grow Hair On Bald Heads

Specialist Gives Simple Recipe That Works Fine

Thousands of people suffer from baldness, and falling hair who, having tried nearly every advertised hair tonic and hair-grower without results, have resigned themselves to baldness and its attendant discomfort. Yet their case is not hopeless, the following simple home prescription has made hair grow after years of baldness, and is also unequalled for restoring gray hair, to its original color stopping hair from falling out, and destroying hair dro mfalling outhdrl ll stroying the dandruff germ. It will not make the hair greasy, and can be put up by any druggist: Bay Rum, 6 ounces, Lavona de Composee, 2 ounces, Menthol Crystals, one-half drachm. If you wish it perfumed add 1 drachm of your favorite perfume. This preparation is highly recommended by physicians and specialists and is absolutely harmless, as it contains none of the poisonous wood alcohol so frequently found in hair tonics. Ladies using this prescription should be careful not to get it on the face or where hair is not desired.

UNION GOVT. FAMED

Hon. Robt. Rogers Tells Winnipeg Conservatives.

WINNIPEG, May 14.—Many Manitoba Conservatives gathered here to discuss national organization.

Hon. Robert Rogers said that in view of the fact tha never before in the memory of man have the affairs of our common country been in such a disturbed and unsettled state, due largely, if not entirely to what the fact is, that Union Goverment has failed in their preparations for peace, have failed to grapple with the new opportunities that peace presents for the real upbuilding of our country by reason of their own ambiguity. Fortunately for Canada, the contract under which that Government exists is nearing its end.

Why It Is a Mistake to Delay Your Purchase of The NEW EDISON

Most everything you buy wears out eventually. An automobile for example—or a suit of clothes. So the longer you delay the purchase the longer you'll have it to enjoy.

Not so with a New Edison. It will outlive you anyway. Every month you delay is just one more month gone from your life—another month in which you might have had your life enriched by music—but didn't.

Under our new plan by which payment can be made as low as $5 a month, there's no reason why you shouldn't be enjoying a New Edison right now.

The New Edison cost $3,000,000 to perfect. It is the only instrument which successfully meets the test of direct comparison with the living artiste's voice or instrument. It will bring into your home the world's best music, sung or played by the world's great artistes.

Call to-morrow for a demonstration. "Send it out on approval" will be your verdict.

If you desire it, we will make easy terms of payment.

Salary Increase For Matron of the Children's Shelter

The Case of a Worthless Father Will Be Dealt With by the Magistrate.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Children's Aid Society, held yesterday, it was unanimously decided to raise the salary of the present matron, Mrs. Read, from $600 a year to $800 in consideration of her agreement to become entirely responsible for the upkeep of the garden at the Shelter, along with her present duties.

Chief Thompson said his committee which investigated the question of the garden decided that it would be unwise to make a separate agreement with Mrs. Read's son. He thought that for the good of the children it was necessary to have the exterior of the home as well kept as the interior. It was stated in connection with the resolution to raise Mrs. Read's salary, that the housekeeping at the Shelter was excellent.

A committee consisting of the President, Secretary, Mrs. Evans and Mrs. Gibbs was formed to draw up the new agreement with Mrs. Read.

Fire Escapes.

In connection with the installation of fire escapes and a separate girl's lavatory at the Shelter, Chief Thompson and Ald. Edgar were appointed to take the necessary steps.

Worthless Father.

Mr. Wearing reported that a family in the city, which had already worn out its welcome with every charitable institution in the city, and the father of which is wholly shiftless and worthless, is living under shocking conditions. Two weeks ago there had been no fire in the home for three weeks and the father apparently was determined not to work. Chief Thompson, Adjt. Bunton, Dr. King and Mrs. Knox all testified that there was a lack of any moral atmosphere in the home and the eldest of the seven children, a girl of fourteen years, was practically going to perdition. It was decided to take up the matter before the Magistrate to lay charges against the father and make the children wards of the Children's Aid Society. Provision will be made to send the mother to the hospital.

Coal Committee.

Dr. C. King and Ald. Edgar were appointed to look after the purchase of coal for the Shelter. They were instructed to ascertain if the city has the coal required for the Shelter, and if so, purchase it from the municipal supply.

KAROLYI EMPLOYED NOW BY BELA KUN AT A SMALL SALARY

PARIS,—The Agence Radio has published a dispatch from Sibiuv, Transylvania, reporting that Count Karolyi has accepted employment in the Foreign Office of the Hungarian Soviet republic, under Bela Kun at a small salary.

Karolyi was the first premier of Hungary after the revolution and turned the government over to the Communists, because of the Allies' alleged slowness in providing the country with economic aid.

DOCTOR'S PATIENT GAINS 17 POUNDS

Prominent Physician Continues to Use Tanlac in Practice With Surprising Results.

One of the strongest and most convincing evidences of the remarkable results being accomplished by Tanlac throughout the South is the large number of letters that are now being received daily from scores of well-known men and women who have been benefited by its use.

Among the large number that have been received recently none are more interesting than the following letter from Dr. J. T. Edwards, of Fayetteville, Ga. Dr. Edwards, it will be remembered recently gave Tanlac his unqualified indorsement in a public statement, and the testimonial published below was recently given him by one of his patients. His letter follows just as it was written:

Fayetteville, Ga.,

Mr. G. F. Willis, Atlanta, Ga.,

Dear Sir:—

I am enclosing you herewith statement I have just received from Mr. T. M. McGough. He sold out here and is moving to Turin, Ga. He was here this morning, and came in to tell me what Tanlac had done for him. He says too much cannot be said about Tanlac. It certainly has cured him.

Respectfully,
J. T. Edwards, M.D.

Mr. McGough's statement follows:

"I suffered from indigestion and could not eat anything but what would hurt me. Constipation gave me a great deal of trouble also. My symptoms were indigestion, heartburn, and gas on the stomach after eating. My appetite was irregular and my food failed to nourish me. This trouble caused me to get very poor—in fact I got so thin, and weak I was hardly able to go about.

"I bought three bottles of Tanlac on Dr. Edwards' recommendation, and I am now feeling all right again, and am able to attend to business. I gained seventeen pounds in weight and am doing fine. Tanlac did the work.

"I now recommend Tanlac to everyone who is sick like I was, and wishes take something that will help them."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

Nietzsche Creed Exposed In "Unpardonable Sin"

Big Photoplay, Starring Blanche Sweet, Has Unique Feature for Thinkers

Harry Garson's extraordinary screen production, "The Unpardonable Sin," starring Blache Sweet, under the personal direction of Marshall Neilan, begins an engagement at the Grand Theatre Thursday and will continue there for three days, the final exhibition being given Saturday; the picture will be projected twice daily matinee presentation beginning at 2:30 o'clock and the evening shows at 8:15.

"The Unpardonable Sin", will unquestionably attract to the Grand Theatre a class of patrons which have heretofore been inclined to scoff at the moving picture as a means of telling a dramatic story. Reviews of the picture which have been printed in other cities emphasize the fact that here is one of the few photoplays ever produced that "starts out to do something and does it". One situation follows another in as logical a manner as was ever accomplished on the speaking age, where the human voice was available as an agency to tell those out in front just what might reasonably be expected, and the whole action moves without break or interruption to its final and most powerful climax.

In no sense is "The Unpardonable Sin" a preachment. It is an absorbing tale of love and adventure, with incidents of the World War as a back ground. And yet, those seriously inclined, will find from the manner in which the action is presented, much of a philosophical nature to interest them. The titles for the big production are a clever combination of the clear, straight-forward statements which help the action of the story and footnotes from the writings of Nietzsche, themad European philosopher, whose doctrines are said to have largely contributed to the horrors of the recent conflagration on the other side of Atlantic Just how impossible were the teachings which emanated from this crooked brain, and how terrible would be the final results were these teachings followed, are indelibly impressed by this remarkables picture.

"The Unpardonable Sin" was completed on the Pacific Coast only a few weeks ago, after having been in the process of production for many months. It is from the book by the same title written by Major Rupert Hughes. Supporting Blanche Sweet, the star whose return to the screen will be welcomed by myriads of admirers throughout the world, are Matt Moore, Wallace Beery, Mary Alden and other well-known photoplayers who combine to make a company of unusual excellence.

Independent Labour Party Held Meeting Last Evening

Mr. G. Keen Addressed the Gathering on the "Co-operative Solution of the High Cost of Living."

OTHER SPEAKERS

At a meeting last evening under the auspices of the Independent Labour Party, Mr. G. Keen, general secretary of the Co-operative Union of Canada gave an interesting educational address in The Co-operating Solution of the High Cost of living.

Mr. T. McArthur presided.

Mr. Keen in his address said there were three great movements for the betterment of conditions, which seek to eliminate excess profits; Industrial Trades Union, Political Labor Party; and the Co-operative Society, history shows that for the past 100 years there has been agitation for improved conditions of its age, living, etc. It was then a criminal offence to agitate increased wage. In town of Rochdale union wages were only $1.75 per week average, the scheme was started to open a store, with the object of doing away with the present system of profit by collecting 6 cents from every house; 140 dollars was procured and stocked the shop with 75 dollars worth of goods and here was started the system of profits for the consumer and not the promoters. The co-operative organization of Britain is the most comprehensive in world to-day. It has many manufacturing concerns such as shoes, flour, tea also owns acres for wheat which produces 30 bushels to the acre. Their tea planting grounds are in Ceylon. Raw material for soap is secured from West Africa and the Co-operative Society pay the native labor six times more than their usual pay received from other concerns, wherever it operates a square deal and the spirit of humanity goes with it.

Word Profit.

The speaker objected somewhat to the word profit of the Co-operative Society, he said it was a saving, which lowers the price of goods from 25 to 30 per cent, below market prices. It is the most democratically controlled business in the world. The 1,000 representatives met every 3 months to render an account of their stewardship which carries their own goods exclusively except during the war. The speaker said there was no industrial unrest under the Co-operative system, as the supply was always kept up to the demand, and profits were not regulated by scarcity, instead of cost. The Co-operative Society, he said was a great service to the State it provided more education and better housing.

Fraternal Hand.

The fraternal hand is offered to the whole human race. The speaker said if Co-operative stores are opened in any locality they have the effect to steady prices in the competitive stores though he did not wish to say every store keeper was making excess profits for while the average Co-operative store in Britain supplied the needs in clothing and food to 2,400 people. A town like Kingston had 76 groceries or 270 customers for each competition grocery store. Therefore the success and savings of the Co-operative was due to efficiency, and not waste as in the competitive store. The speaker said that if the worker wished to control the cost of living he should join the Co-operative Society. The purposes of organization were obscured by the magnitude of its prosperity working to promote each others happiness and the whole human race has a common interest by pulling together instead of competing one with another

Other Speakers.

Mr. W. H. Pretty also spoke on the educational side of the issue and brought to the notice of the audience many interesting points that had happened in various localities in the Co-operative movement.

Mr. Carter, chairman of the local Co-operative Board also spoke.

Mr. McArthur closed the meeting with a vote of thanks to Mr. Keen which was heartily applauded by those present.

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's old Favourite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural colour and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of his famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, for about 50 cents.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

We Present in All the Allure of Novelty and Freshness

AN INTERESTING EXHIBIT OF NEW SUMMERTIME MODES

Depicting the Latest Styles in Millinery and Ready-to-Wears

May is the month of sunshine. It is here with its clear blue skies and soft balmy days. Days that remind one that "in the Spring a young girl's fancy always turns to thoughts of clothes." It may be thoughts for a trusseau, or thoughts for vacation days, or it may be about those important stay-at-home costumes. Whatever it may be we are ready to help you, to meet all times we have the things you need for the big or lesser moments.

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday, May 15th, 16th and 17th, we invite you especially, to inspect our charming displays on the second floor, of SUMMER MILLINERY, FROCKS, BLOUSES, SUITS and WRAPS.

Enchanting in Their Airy, Fairy Loveliness Are the New Summer Hats

And "Flowers gayly bloom on ladies' hats." Large hats, summery and drooping, or small round turbans, all succumb alike to the vogue of flowers. And a pretty fashion it is too, which deftly turns each model into a thing of beauty.

There's a pattern hat that is almost "too lovely for words." A medium large shape with a dust color georgette brim, slit at one side, and a crown of dust color Batavia cloth. Trimmed with wheat and poppies in shades of sand, Nile green and victory rose. The price is $16.00.

For sports wear, we are showing a stunning little hat, somewhat on the Jockey shape, made of white corded ribbon with under brim of white silk straw. Trimmed white wool flowers and green wool leaves. Priced at $10.00.

A very attractive matron's hat, is a small shape with a deep roll side, made with a Milan straw crown and miline, braid trimmed brim. Trimmed with a glycerined Ostrich mount. The price is $17.00.

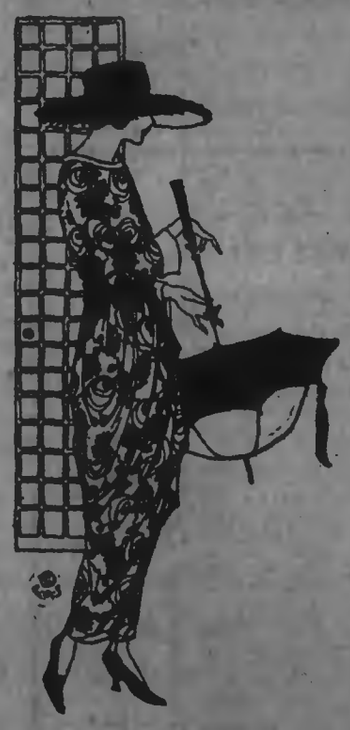
You cannot overlook the charm of the new Watteau hats, as artistic as their inspiration. And there are countless other hats—in all the new transparencies and braids, just ready to blossom out into the summer sunshine.

Irresistibly lovely! one could safely say that about a large drooping hat. The crown is made of all-over black lace and protrudes in points out into a brim of Leghorn. There are tiny rosebuds in pastel shades around the crown and pipings and streamers of French blue corded silk ribbon. The price is $15.00.

Another pattern model comes in a novelty shape, with a white silk braid facing on the brim which turns directly over at one side to hold white wings in place. The crown and top of brim are of jade green taffeta. Priced at $13.50.

White miline straw trimmed with white ostrich, is used to fashion a very pretty little poke hat. It is moderately priced at $9.50.

Newest Originations in Frocks and Wraps



Just the daintiest frocks imaginable! Combining a smart appearance with cool comfort, are late arrivals, in plain and printed georgettes, foulard and georgette combinations, trim taffetas, crepe de Chines and fetching little muslin gowns. Tunics, embroideries, sashes, flare sleeves, short sleeves, are employed to fashionable advantage. Some have lines and others are the most lineless dresses that have ever been seen.

Decidedly new and altogether lovely, is a dainty model of combination white georgette and figured georgette in rose shading. Made in a Russian blouse style, with narrow roll collar of white organdy, and short frill sleeves. At the neck, waist and sleeves, there are bandings and bows of turquoise blue velvet ribbon. Price $60.00.

Rajah promises to be very popular this season. One style is in pongee shade and made in coat fashion. Plain narrow skirt, with coatee bodice with tailored sleeves and vest of self material trimmed with rows of rose silk wool embroidery. Priced at $33.00.

Charmingly simple, is a dress of white jersey. Round collarless neck, narrow belt, and wide bands of white silk braiding around bodice, sleeves and skirt. The price is $49.00.

In a very few words one might state the way of the mode in wraps — coats of cape lines, coats short and jaunty for sport wear, and capes in a diversity of graceful, clever developments. Each model that we are showing is a distinct achievement in grace and practicability combined. Lengths vary from three-quarter to full lengths. Drapes play a fashionably important part.

Picturesque, yet eminently serviceable withal, is a Dolman wrap of elegant quality charmeuse, in wisteria shade. It is lined throughout with white satin. A large shawl collar is gathered into the front lapels. Fastened with a tie sash edged with fringe. The price, $67.00.

Dust color tricotine, of fine quality, is used in the making of an exceedingly smart cape coat. Lined throughout with blue plaid silk. It has a cape collar and an over-collar of navy charmeuse. About the feet it is gracefully drawn in and trimmed with buttons. Belt fastening in front. Priced at $85.00.

In Blue Devil shade, comes another Dolman cloak, of lovely soft French velours. Panel effect in the back with two rows of large grey buttons at the bottom. Over collar of quaker grey velours. The price, $49.00.

BOARD OF HEALTH DOUBTS THE PRESENCE OF C. LECTULARIUS IN THE BIG FURNITURE DRAYS

With only four patients at the Queen Mary Isolation Hospital, convincing testimony of the apparent and no doubt actual healthfulness of Peterboro, the Board of Health might have been excused last night if they had decided to knock off work for a month or two to give the subdued legions of bacilli, germs, or whatever the common disease carriers may be called, a fighting chance. But, instead of suspending hostilities, they were somewhat vaguely informed that an old foe was suspected of having discovered a new scheme, or more exactly a place of vantage from which it was possible to distribute himself and numerous family from one household to another. The subject of the Board's concluding discussion is not perhaps a public enemy. Its ways are intimate and preferably domestic. It may be correctly, if not generally termed, the Cimex Lectularius, and although it is unknown to most persons except through Keeting's advertisements, it is said to have the run of some houses where the Gold Dust Twins and the Old Dutch Cleanser are not on the visiting list, and in which the standard of cleanliness are the reverse of scrupulous.

Well, these are moving days, and the big bulky vans are said to be capable of transferring the effects of two and sometimes three households in the working hours of daylight. And this is where the above mentioned C. L. invites the suspicions of the Board of Health. There is some apprehension, whether well founded or not, that the C. L. may become separated in the disturbance of moving, from the bedroom or other furniture of one household and be overlooked in the transfer only to attach himself to the goods of another family, hiding himself securely from sight until everything is straightened out in the new home, and he may venture out ultimately to be discovered and start a wholesale housecleaning, together with much uneasiness as to his entry and presence.

Such are the possibilities as they were unsparingly presented in the Board's discussion, and although the C. L. might be multiplied indefinitely some members regarded the question as someting of supposition, and concluded that it was not of their concern. If the C. L. did become dislodged from his regular habitat, how was it to be dealt with? Should the Board for the purpose of assuring themselves give instructions that the vans were to be examined with microscopes for C.L.'s, to be swept out after every moving, and given a treatment of insecticide. And after all, the possibilities were largely imaginary. In short it looked like inviting trouble and the Board decided that they should postpone hostilities in the moving vans until the suspicions were materially verified. But the reference to the subject shows clearly that the Board is not overlooking much in their efforts to protect the citizens against microbes, bugs, etc., and even against some of the people of whose methods of living the C. L. may be regarded as a symbol.

Hospital Report.

The April report of the Queen Mary Hospital showed that there were eight patients on the first of month, five of scarlet fever, and three of diphtheria. During the month two scarlet fever cases and three of diphtheria were admitted. Only one of these was from out of town. Nine patients were discharged during the month, leaving four on May 1st—two each of scarlet fever and diphtheria.

The expenditure during April was $498.85, and a total since January 1st of $2280.06.

VERY COLD SEASON RETARDS SEEDING

Reports received by the Ontario Department of Agriculture indicate that the present spring is the most backward in fifteen years. The cold wet weather has held up seeding in many sections of the Province and unless the sun gets busy at once the arrival of warm weather will throw seeding of grain into the period usually crowded with planting of root and other crops. So far, however, Fall wheat and early planted grain has suffered little, and the retarded condition of fruit trees and bushes saved them from serious damage during the recent cold spell.

The Perfecto Baby Comfort is the only sanitary Soother on the market. It costs perhaps ten cents more than any other Soother, but the difference may save Baby's life.

Cyril Maude at Grand — Thursday, May 22nd

Mr. Cyril Maude and his supporting company, under the direction of Charles Frohman, will appear at the Grand, Thursday, May 22, one performance only, in the new C. Haddon Chambers comedy, "The Saving Grace," which was a great success in London last season and in which Mr. Maude has lately completed a very successful run at the Empire Theatre, New York.

Mr. Maude, who stands at the very head of his profession in England, is best known to playgoers in America through his delightful impersonation of "Grumpy", in which he appeared in this city the season before last. Mr. Chambers, the dramatist, needs no introduction to theatregoers here since his many plays, from "Captain Swift", of thirty years ago, to his "Tyranny of Tears" and "Passers-By" of recent seasons, have made his name and his skill familiar to everyone. "The Saving Grace," is the latest work to come from his pen, and it is a very fine product of his mature genius. It is a comedy of the highest order, inasmuch as its delightful humor is the legitimate outgrowth of the contact between the several persons involved, each one of whom is, in every situation and emergency true to his or her individual nature. Such a play possess a background and a perspective that gives it a value far beyond that of the ordinary light comedy.

The plot of "The Saving Grace" concerns the experiences of Blinn Corbett and his family, dwelling in a small village near London, during the first days of the Great War. It deals not with splendid achievements and glories of the battlefields but rather with the effect of the war upon the thoughts and lives of people not in the public eye. Blinn Corbett, once among the smartest officers in His Majesty's Service; a sportsman in the best sense of the word and now genteel poverty through his amiability and total lack of skill in the small intrigues of business, is secretly heartbroken over the fact that his country, at war, does not heed him. Yet he covers and hides his sickness of soul by entering upon a light-hearted scheme to marry off his charming niece, Susan Blaine, to an enormously rich young gentleman Ripley Guildford by name. His bound less good nature and tact overwhelm the objections of the young man's aristocratic mother, and in the end Blinn himself is restored to rank in his old regiment through the secret efforts of his sentimental and devoted wife.

The role of the wife is played by Miss Laura Hope Crews, who finds in it abundant opportunity for the disclosure of those winsome qualities which have endeared her to the playgoing public. Other members of the organization well known in this city are Miss Betty Murray, Miss Annie Hughes, Miss Charlotte Granville, Edward Douglas and Stanley Harrison.

Mr. C. H. Smith, President of the Association, welcomed the War Veterans on behalf of the business men of Windsor, Walkerville, Ford and Sandwich. "PEG-LEG'S" CURSE COMING TRUE IS STATEMENT MADE

Said All His Jurors Would Die With Boots On and His Grave Would Not Sink.

Many weird tales have arisen out of the famous trial of "Peg-Leg" Brown, which took place in the Courthouse in London, Ont., in the spring of 1899. It will be remembered by those who attended it that after the jury had found the prisoner guilty of murder, and he was asked if he had anything to say, he arose and declared that every juryman who sat in the box during the trial would die "with his shoes on." He also said that his grave would never sink.

At that trial there was a man who, interested in this strange statement, took a list of the names of the jurors. This man, according to James Gumb, a turnkey at the local jail, lives in East London. Mr. Gumb met him recently, and, strange to say, it was reported that every man who was on the jury and who has died since, has died in the manner that "Peg-Leg" said he would. One of the jurors died about a year ago.

Although every other grave of a murderer who was buried in the courtyard of the jail has sunk, the mound over Brown's grave is still as high as it was when he was buried.

PRESENTATION OF "THE CHAPERON"

Last evening a large audience witnessed the second appearance of "The Chaperon," a play in three acts, presented by Mrs. P. B. Wright's "Whatsoever" class of Trinity Methodist church. The stage at Victoria Hall was decorated with the bunting of the Allies and real scenic effects were introduced.

The Plot.

Miriam, a gypsy, wanders on to the campus at Crandon Hall, a school for girls and is taken into the college by Joyce Dynecourt, one of the college girls. The gypsy explains that she has lost her way. Miss Morong, the French teacher, tells Joyce when she reappears with the "gyps" that she is not allowed to take beggars to her room. The girls show Joyce an invitation which they have received to visit Cousin Geoffrey's art studio, and straightway the girls plan to have a good time and they decide that a real chaperon is unnecessary. Joyce Dynecourt impersonates her mother and goes with the party to the studio. The French teacher happens to be at the studio before the girls, but the irrepressible Nora, Mrs. Dynecourt's maid, locks the French mademoiselle in a room, and the girls tease her to their heart's content before she is released. Jill, a waif, who has posed for some of Geoffrey's pictures in company of Miriam arrive at the studio to see one of the pictures, and Joyce impersonating her mother as chaperon, pretends to be asleep. The gypsy, who is perfectly aware of the ancestry of Jill, writes a note and places it on the supposed Mrs. Dynecourt's lap. Jill faints as she enters the studio and Joyce finds a locket, a replica of one worn by herself. She immediately gets curious about the note which she found on her lap and reads of the history of Jill. Her real name is Margaret Dynecourt, a sister of Joyce, and when she was only a baby she was lost in a railroad wreck in the west. She was found by a wandering band of gypsies and since that she and Miriam have been the best of friends. Joyce decides to keep the revelation from her mother, at present at least. Jill also finds out the secrt of her birth, but reveals nothing to Mrs. Dynecourt, her mother. The gypsy is accused of stealing a sum of money from Mademoiselle Jeanne by Miss Morong, the principal of Crandon Hall.

Closing Act.

The third and last act opens in Mrs. Dynecourt's drawing room, where Mrs. Dynecourt is relating to those present the story of her past life and the loss of her child. Mrs. Morong tries to console her. Joyce is on the point of telling everything when the gypsy enters for the purpose of telling the whole history to Mrs. Dynecourt, but finds that Mrs. Dynecourt never received the note which the gypsy thought she left on Mrs. Dynecourt's lap in the studio. Joyce explains the whole situation and reveals to her mother that Jill the waif is really her sister. The French teacher lifts another cloud and tells how the money which the gypsy was accused of stealing wasn't really stolen, but that she (the French teacher) wished to do Miriam an injustice. The mother and her long lost child were brought together after many years of separation.

Miss Daisy Stocker as Nora, Mrs. Dynecourt's maid, scores heavily throughout the play, and Fred Preson, the dummy, is realistic in the extreme.

SCHOOL PROPERTY SUFFERS DAMAGE

Police Will be Asked to Deal With the Matter.

Depredations on school property are assuming serious proportions and Mr. A. A. Fowler, chairman of the Property committee stated at last night's meeting of the Board of Education that windows by the dozen had been broken in the different schools of the city. Not stopping at this some of the buildings have been broken into and different articles stolen. Mr. Fowler was of the opinion that the culprits were not school boys but others who visited the school premises on Sundays and at night. The matter will be taken up with the Chief of Police and the nuisance will be stopped immediately. One member of the Board suggested that the janitors of the city schools be sworn in as special constables so that the guilty parties might be arrested by the janitors. The caretakers of the city parks have the authority to arrest trespassers and others whose room is more desirable than their company.

Whatsoever a man reaps someone must have planted.

BASEBALL

The summer weather of the last couple of days is appreciated by the local ball-players. The warm sunshine is also putting Riverside Park in good shape for Saturday's games.

The Orientals and Veterans had a practise game at Riverside Park last night. The teams exchanged batteries for the evening, Wade and Carney of the Veterans working for the Orientals, while McNeeley and Kirn on the slab and Head and Garner behind the bat were the Oriental battery candidates who worked out with the Veterans. It was a good practise for both teams.

The Orientals will practise at Riverside Park to-night at 6.30 o'clock. Every player is requested to be out.

There is great interest in Saturday's double-header, which will open the City League. There will be a parade from Central Park at 1.30 o'clock, and the first game between the Veterans and Orientals will start at 2 o'clock sharp. Matthews-Blackwell and De Laval play the second game. Mr. Alex. Kay will officiate at both contests.

Wade and Carney look like the Veterans battery for Saturday's game with Orientals. The latter will likely use both Kirn and McNeeley on the slab.

The De Laval squad are keeping their lineup dark, but at that the MatthewsBlackwell team had better watch their step on Saturday.

On Monday evening, on Queen Mary School grounds, the South Central team defeated the King George nine by a score of 12-7. Batteries: King George—Legon, Taylor; South Central—Parrington, Pethick. Mr. Bert McGill proved an efficient umpire.

HIGH ROLLERS TAKE TWO FROM THE PRINTERS.

Last night in the Business Men's Ten-Pin League, at the Water Street Alleys; the High Rollers took two from the Printers. Henderson rolled the League record of 644 for his three games. Cairns for the Printers rolled 520. For the High Rollers Thompson had the high single of 232 and high three games of 587; Solomon with 533.

FIRST VENEREAL DISEASE CASE TO BOARD OF HEALTH

City is Required to Pay for Treatment of Indigents—Board Objects to New Law.

The first local case coming under the new Provincial law dealing with venereal disease was brought to the attention of the Board of Health last night. Dr. E. Wood wrote that a patient had consulted him for treatment of venereal disease, but was unable to meet the cost, which would be considerable. Delay might be disastrous. Under the new law, the municipality is required to pay the hospital and medical attendance bills.

A letter from Dr. McCullough, Provincial Officer of Health, to Dr. Wood stated that in these cases patients may be directed by the M. O. H. to some practitioner for examination, for which the city is required to pay $5.00.

"Why should we have to send the patient to another doctor when we have one of our own?" asked Mr. W. H. Buller. "Why should we have to pay any attention to Dr. Wood's letter?"

Dr. Amys: "The law requires you to do it."

"Why should the law compel us," persisted Mr. Buller. "We will find out from the City Solicitor first whether we've got to pay this in that way."

Mr. Harry Morgan moved, seconded by Mr. James Murty, that the solicitor be asked for his opinion as to whether the city had to pay other doctors for this work or could have it done by the city's Medical Officer of Health.

Miss Mowry's Position.

It was rumoured that Miss Bertha Mowry had accepted a civil position in Toronto. The Board decided to write her asking if this were true. If Miss Mowry is engaged in non-military work, the Board will likely appoint the acting superintendent of the Queen Mary Hospital, Miss Price, to plenary responsibility.

Bread Wrapping.

The Board discussed bread wrapping again, but hesitated to go the length of ordering local bakers to conform with this regulation which Toronto recently adopted.

Mr. Morgan feared an increase in the price of bread if the bakers were ordered to wrap each loaf, and at this time any increase would be a hardship to many persons.

"The people want the price down more than they want the bread wrapped," declared Mr. Murty, who said he was willing to take a chance on the alleged contacts in delivery.

Another member stated that one company was prepared to wrap the bread, but was afraid of antagonising its competitors.

Ask Police To Help.

The Board requested the Police Department to assist in discovering what persons have been guilty of dumping rubbish on the old railway at Benson Street and in other parts of the city where unofficial dumps are being formed. It was also made clear that the city will not pay for the removal of dogs from private property. There is a case of this kind in Ashburnham now. The owner of the property and dog called on the city to remove the carcass, but Dr. Amys instructed Mr. Stapleton to order the people to clean up their yard, which meant that they themselves had to get rid of the nuisance. The owner was told that the body would be taken away by the garbage collector if it were put out. The last incident was the issuance of instructions to the police that the affair was transferred to their hands to take whatever action they deemd necessary.

LETTER CARRIERS PRESENTED CLUB BAG TO W. STEWART

The letter carriers at noon to-day presented one of their members Mr. Wm. Stewart, who is leaving for Toronto, on Friday, with an address and club bag as an appreciation of his friendship during the past years and also as a remembrance of their association as fellow workers. The address was read by Mr. John Grisdale and Mr. Arthur Moscrop made the presentation. Mr. Stewart was taken by surprise in his evidence of fellowship, but expressed his thanks to the letter carriers stating that he would always remember the men with whom he had worked during the past eleven years. The address was as follows:

Dear Friend and Fellow Worker:

We the members of Branch No. 22, Federation of A. L. C. have learned with regret that you have decided to leave the service after having served the public so well and faithfully for the past eleven years.

We, who have been so closely identified with you in our joint work wish to hereby testify to your sterling qualities of character. You have ever been a conscientious worker, faithful to your duties and courteous to your fellowmen generally. The public will lose a valuable servant and citizen, but we, your fellow workers, will bear the loss most.

As a slight token of our appreciation of your friendship we respectfully request you to accept this club bag, and trust that you may often use it in coming back to the city, where you may be sure you will find a royal welcome, especially from your old friends the letter carriers.

Wishing you and yours every success and prosperity in your new home, we remain,

Yours very sincerely,
J. Edgar, Postmaster,
Ernest E. Lee, President
Arthur Moscrop, Secretary,
Branch No. 22 Federation of A.L.C.

Voice of The People

To the Editor of the Examiner,

Sir,—Please allow me space to call the attention of those wishing to build boat houses. Do not be deceived by the assertion of some who wish to take liberty on the river bank and talk about government reserve, there is no such reserve in the deeds for building boat houses, or shacks or any other kind of domiciles. When hard working people rent land on the river front, do they want to be imposed on and annoyed by folks who want a summer outing at other people's expense. There is no right or justice in such doings. Some talk of obtaining permits (so as to intrude) and build boat houses on property east of "Crawford's Grove, near the poultry plant. No person has any right or authority to grant any such permits to build boat houses or any kind of building. No one has obtained liberty of the owner to intrude in any such a manner, on people who pay rent for the place.

There are numbers of city folks who rent land for camping purposes, nearly a mile below Crawford's Grove, a respectable class of people who arrange for a suitable place to camp and pay for it. A much better way than to try and impose on peoples tenants and the talk about Goverment reserve that does not exist and permits that no one has any lawful right to grant. Thanking you for valuable space.

STARTED TO-DAY

MONTAUK POINT, N.Y., May 1.—Five men, in addition to Lieut. Commander Coil, comprised the C 5's crew. The services of three hundred sailors were required to haul the dirigible, buoyed up by 160,000 cubic feet of gas, out of its hangar, and walk it to the beach. A south wind was blowing at 15 miles an hour when it took the air. In addition to Dirigible C 5, the United States to-day despatched another hydro airplane, N. C. 4, from Chatham, Mass., to join N.C. 1 and N. C. 3, now at Trepassey Bay, Nfld. The United States, therefore, now has three hydro airplanes and one dirigible as prospective starters in the trans-Atlantic air contest.

To Raise $15,000

For the Purpose of Wiping the Debt off the new Club Rooms of the Association

"It would be unnatural on our part if we were not anxious to assist them in every way to accomplish so worthy an object"

"The project to establish a headquarters at Peterborough for the men who have rendered naval and military service to their country during the Great War, is one which should appeal to the sympathy of all.

"The imminent peril to which our country, our homes and our institutions have been so recently exposed has, in God's mercy, through the instrumentality of these men, been at last averted. It is natural that they on their part should wish for facilities which will enable them to keep unimpaired and strengthen the bonds of the close comradeship and brotherhood which the hardships and sacrifices and the imminent perils and dangers encountered have cemented so strongly. It would be unnatural on our part if we were not anxious to assist them in every way to accomplish so worthy an object.

"But quite apart from any benefit that the Veterans of the Great War may themselves derive from the undertaking, it cannot be doubted that the whole country will be strengthened by the creation of such a memorial of the struggle through which we have passed.

"The spirit of service and sacrifice which it commemorates and which it is designed to keep alive and foster, will be an inspiration to future generations, and of infinite service to the country should it ever again be necessary to call upon its manhood to take up arms in defence of their homes."

"GIRLS' CAMP WILL BE ESTABLISHED AT LAKES FOR BENEFIT OF Y.W.C.A. GIRLS

Annual Meeting of the Y.W.C.A. Was Held Last Evening—Board Members for the New Year—Interesting Reports Indicate a Year of Marked Progress.

At the annual meeting of the Young Women's Christian Association held last evening in the Green Room, the reports read by the officers indicated marked progress and an increase in all departments of the work of the Association. On account of the indisposition of Miss Dickson, Mrs. W. D. Scott occupied the chair, and extended a cordial welcome to the large assembly. Devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. R. J. Webb.

Summer Camp.

Miss Parker announced, to the delight of the girls assembled, that after years of endeavour to have a summer camp for girls, the Y.W.C.A. had finally been successful in securing an ideal cottage at Stoney Lake near Burleigh Falls. There will be accommodation for parties of from ten to twelve girls. The camp will be open from June 15th to September 15th, to all girls who wish to enjoy the advantages it provides.

Splendid Programme

Between the different reports, an entertaining programme was provided by Miss Ida Lynn, who contributed a voial solo, Miss Lora Logan a violin solo, and finaly a pageant, "The Wayside Piper," symbolising the thought and meaning of the Y.W.C.A., was artistically presented by about twenty members of the Expression Class. The title role was played by Miss Murray, assistant secretary of the Y.W.C.A.

Board Members for 1919-1920

The Board members nominated by Mrs. Turner and seconded by Miss Kennedy, were as follows:—Miss M. Dickson, Mrs. W. D. Scott, Mrs. Walsh, Mrs. Cressman, Miss E. Morrow, Mrs. Wood, Mrs. Roger, Mrs. Robert Neill, Mrs. Hall, Mrs. V. Eastwood, Mrs. Nugent, Mrs. Gardiner, Mrs. R. Turner, Mrs. Cruikshank, Mrs. Adam Hall, Mrs. Kenner, Mrs. Harvey, Mrs. Greer, Mrs. George Macdonald, Mrs. Dr. Eastwood, Miss Florence Cameron, Mrs. Widdess, Mrs. Ingall, Miss Annie Walton, Mrs. Fraser, Mrs. Abbott, Mrs. Waddell, Miss McVannel, Mrs. A. A. Perrin, Miss Alberta Myers.

Managing Board

The report of the Board of Management of the Peterborough Young Women's Christian Association, 1919, follows:—

The events of the year have been wonderful, a year never to be forgotten. "The year the war ended" will be the matter of time for many decades. It seems fitting that your Board of Management should be able to report that the year of the great victory has been in many respects the banner year of the Association.

The first important event was the formal opening of the swimming pool, by W. C. Morrow, Esq., who with other members of the Advisory Board, had given fully of their time and attention to this work during the building of the same. Miss Littlefield delighted the onlookers by performing many clever feats, and also conducted charming folk dances on the lawn in connection with the Garden Party, which was held on the same evening.

During the first month that the pool was in operation there were sixty-one members gained to the Association. Though it was deemed wise, owing to the fuel situation to close the pool at the end of the summer, the exhibition as given at the "closing" was a most creditable showing and many applicants are anxiously awaiting the opening of the 1919 season.

Flu Epidemic

In spite of the serious handicap at the commencment of the year, due to the influenza scourge, the size and work of Miss Littlefield's Gymnasium Classes have been unparalleled in this city. All who witnessed the closing last week could not but appreciate the splendid success of Miss Littlefield's work.

In speaking of the flu epidemic, it may be stated that Mrs. Morrison, who is recognized by all conversant with the workings of the House as a most capable superintendent, won fresh laurels, acting in the capacity of nurse, caring for some twenty cases, all of whom recovered.

Several young ladies attended the Girls' Summer Conference at Longford, and brought back to the September Rally inspiring reports. Our General Secretary, Miss Parker, has been active amongst the girlhood of the city both in the Association and outside of that. Much time has been given to Industrial and Extension Work, making regular visits to the different factories at the noon hour, where interesting little programmes and talks have been given.

Club Work, Open House on New Year's Day, Valentine teas, Masquerades, Junior Parties, Saturday afternoon story hour, little group teas given by Mrs. Morrison, have each contributed their share in making the social phase of the work prominent. Miss Murray, of Ingersoll, who was engaged in January to take over the duties of the assistant secretary, has been not only an acquisition to the office, but through her musical attainments, has served in that capacity as well.

A Banquet

Early in Februarv a banquet was tendered to young women of Peterborough by the ladies of the Board, this being preparatory to the launching of the membership campaign, which brought the Association membership up to seven hundred and fifty one.

A grant of seventy-five dollars was made to the foreign work and fifty dollars was sent to the Dominion Council. The Board is indebted to the Estate of the late Robeft Innes for a bequest of three hundred dollars.

Owing to lack of space and the extreme length of this report, the bulk of it was withheld until to-morrow's issue.

McCullough Informant Has Laid Plans to Conceal Identity

Man Who Squealed on Toronto Murderer Gets Away With His One Thousand Dollars.

LOOT STOLEN

TORONTO, May 15.—The steps taken by the man who gave the information leading to the arrest of Frank McCullough, reveal a carefully thought-out plan which makes it next to impossible that his name will ever be made public. His reasons for doing so are known best to himself, though it doubtless has not escaped his notice that many people in Toronto are not in sympathy with that which led to the recapture of the murderer. The fact remains, however, that there are possibly only three people in Toronto, in the world, who knowthe name of this informant—his solicitor, the solicitor of the Attorney-General's Department, and Detective Guthrie. The Department of the Attorney-General is probably satisfied by this time that this "mystery man" is entitled to the $1000 which the Ontario Government offered as a reward for the information leading to McCullough's capture. If a decision is arrived at that this man's name need not be published, it probably never will be; and the public will indulge in a nine days' wonder—and then forget all about it.

Used Peculiar Notepaper

The story of how this man prepared the way for the $1,000 is an interesting one, and begins with the day of McCullough's capture—last Thursday. The city detective department received a letter that morning signed "Citizen," giving the number of the street where McCullough was hiding. In addition to this information "Citizen" stated that he would later make a claim for the $1,000 reward. To substantiate his identity, he wrote the letter on a peculiar kind of paper, he used an old-fashioned pen, and the ink was of an unusual tint. He stated that he would produce, at the proper time, an exact copy of this letter, thereby proving his identity.

Having seen the result of his information in the capture of McCullough, he next had to adopt such methods as would not disclose his identity to the general public. The plan required some thinking, and the clever letter writer was equal to the occasion. He chose a barrister to whom he was an entire stranger and first assured himself that all matters between a client and his lawyer were of a strictly private nature. Then he [illegible] Webb to act for him as an attorney to collect this $1,000, because he said his family did not want to be bothered by the public or by any of McCullough's friends who might be disposed to pay him an unfriendly visit. Mr. Webb intimated that all would be clear sailing and the deal was closed between "Citizen" and his barrister. The way the plan would work out was simple enough. The cheque made out by the Attorney-General's Department would be made out to Mr. Webb, who would collect the money from the bank and hand it over to "Citizen."

Went to Queen's Park

The plan having been carefully conceived, it only remained to work it out. "Citizen," being a clever man, had planned his work and now proceeded to work his plan. His barrister presented the credentials to Detective Guthrie yesterday morning. eDtective Guthrie had no hesitation in stating that "Citizen" was the man whose information led to the arrest of McCullough, and that Mr. Webb was truly acting for "Citizen." Having satisfied Detcetive Guthrie on that point they two then proceeded to the Parliament Buildings, Queen's Park, to interview the solicitor of the Attorney-General's Department. He, in turn, was satisfied that "Citizen" was entitled to the $1,000 and gave his word that his name would not be given out by him. Nor did he see how the name would ever get out so far as he or the Department was concerned, because the cheque would be made out in favour of Mr. Webb.

McCULLOUGH WAS FOILED BY THIEF

Fugitive Failed to Find Loot of Many Robberies—Forced to Wait

There is an old saying that it takes a thief to catch a thief. The real reason for McCullough's capture seems to lie hidden in the truth of this old adage. When McCullough escaped from jail, he believed he had hidden in the old British Welcome League building $1,200 and about $4,000 stolen. When he went to the old building, the spoils of his many adventures were gone. His friends knew the hiding place, but he thought there would be enough, at least, to take him across the border into the United States. His plan was to use a motor boat waiting for him at the Do nRiver and hie for some lonely spot on the American border.

But because someone had stolen his stolen gods, he had to await financial reinforcements which, however, did not come in time. Being entirely destitute, he had to seek temporary lodgings at Bathurst street, where he was finally captured on information forwarded by "Citizen." McCullough boasted that he did cross the border over a year ago when things were being made too hot for him by the police. This was when he stole the motor boat at the Etobicoke River and crossed to the United States.

Detective Guthrie does not believe that McCullough will be called again to give evidence against Vera de Lavelle or that he will need to be re-sentenced. The matter, however, is in the hands of the legal authorities.

LAKEFIELD CADETS ARE INSPECTED TUESDAY BY LIEUT.-COL. GILLESPIE

High School and Grove School Cadets Made a Good Showing.

LAKEFIELD, May 15. — On Tuesday afternoon, the fifth annual inspection of the High School Cadets was held on the school grounds. The beautiful afternoon brought out even more citizens than usual to see the inspection which was one of the best ever held in Lakefield.

Col. Gillespie congratulated the boys on the manner in which they had mastered the new drill. The boys labored under the drawback not only of the new drill but also of having an exceptionally large number of untrained recruits this season. In spite of this handicap their work was good and their drill excellent.

Colonel Gillespie urged a greater amount of musketry drill and asked that some public spirited citizen or citizens offer a prize each year for musketry. This would give an impetus to this branch of the service.

After three hearty cheers and a tiger had been given for Colonel Gillespie, Mr. Simpson (principal of the school) spoke a few words, expressing his pleasure at the splendid showing made by the boys and the number of citizens present.

Among the citizens were Messrs. J. W. Ridpath and Wesley Sherin and Rev. J. L. Taylor, Captain T. B. Marling and Mr. Harold Nelson.

The cadet officers are as follows:

Captain, Edward Bailey.
1st Lieut., Clayton Ridpath.
2nd Lieut., Warren Payne.
Color Sergt., Frank Erskine.
Section Commanders, Roy Everett, Willie Harvey, George Morin, Jack Ridpath.

After the inspection the boys had a baseball match.

After the inspection at the High School, Col. Gillespie proceeded to The Grove, where he inspected the Cadet Corps. He found them well drilled and in first class shape, and a credit to their captain, Jack Langley, who had worked patiently and faithfully. Mr. Max Hamilton had been of great assistance in drilling the boys.

A goodly number of the friends of the boys turned out to see and admire them, and in every way it was a great success.

New Dairy Plant a Very Narrow Escape

Straw Stack Caught Fire on Smith Township Farm.

LAKEFIELD, May 15. — About 9.30 yesterday morning a telephone message was received from the ninth line of Smith township, that the fine new barn of Mr. S. W. McKibbin was on fire. Several automobile loads of men rushed out to see if they could be of any assistance but when they arrived they found a great many farmers of the neighborhood were there, and by their prompt action had saved the barn. It is not known how the fire started. It is surmised that the fire may have started from the straw stack which was very wet from the recent heavy rains. As it was, the straw stack was burned down to the ground and the loose straw in the barnyard, and the end of the barn was badly scorched but not otherwise damaged. The building was well insured.

The barn is a new one erected last fall, and equipped with all the latest modern appliances, replacing one that was burned last year.

The farm is occupied by Mr. Samuel Adams, who only recently moved there from Peterboro.

W. Sherin, Esq.,
Clerk and Treasurer,
Lakefield, Ont.,

Dear Sir:—Re Power Estimates

Referring to your recent request for estimates of cost of power delivered at Lakefield from the development of the Dickson Dam.

We regret to advise that there has been a delay in this matter which has been beyond the control of the Commission. Mr. Goodwill, who is acting in the interest of the Dickson Co., has found it impossible to get this people together to name a price to the Commission on the Dickson Co.'s holdings and, as it is not possible for us to proceed with our estimates until a definitee quotation on the Company's properties is received, the Commission thinks it well that you should be advised as to the cause of the delay.

Mr. Goodwill promised a day or so ago that he would make every endeavour to have the information in our hands in about two weeks time and on receipt of this, the Commission will have the required estimates proceeded with as expeditiously as possible.

Trusting that the delay is not causing any serious inconvenience and hoping that it may be possible to place the requisite information in your hands at an early date.

Yours very truly,
Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario,

Chief Engineer.

GRAIN MARKET

Grain markets were dominated by a rather strong bearish sentiment yesterday. The trend of prices is generally lower, both in the options and cash. The latter, however, has still to come considerably lower than it is at present before any business can be done in the local cash market. Corn is still so high in fact that local business is simply out of the question. Conditions are much the same as regards other feed grains.

A movement was started on foot yesterday in the States with a view to a general lowering of wheat prices, nowithstanding the prices guaranteed by the Government to the growers. The Government in this event would have to make good the difference between the guaranteed and the market price.

POSTUM

"There's a Reason"

"GIRLS' CAMP" WILL BE ESTABLISHED AT LAKES FOR BENEFIT OF Y.W.C.A. GIRLS

Annual Meeting of the Y.W.C.A. Was Held Last Evening—Board Members for the New Year—Interesting Reports Indicate a Year of Marked Progress.

It will be interesting to many girls to know that a committee from the Board is, at the suggestion of Miss Parker, endeavouring to arrange for a summer camp at Stoney Lake.

The Board has regretted the enforced absence of our president, Miss Dickson, for the greater part of the year. Miss Dickson has always been indefatigable in her efforts to further the interests of the Association, and we sincerely trust that she may very soon be with us again. Mrs. W. D. Scott, first vice-president, has taken charge of the work in a most whole-hearted manner during the absence of the president.

Reference has been made to the physical, industrial and social returns of the Association work. Its final yield is something infinitely finer and more valuable than these,—young women whose eyes have been opened to the purpose and meaning of life, whose hearts have been kindled to its joys, whose hands have been trained to minister to others' needs, whose wills have been keyed to service, whose spirits are alive with energy,—an institution whose product is this type of womanhood is surely entitled to the hearty support of Peterborough citizens.

F. DAISY CRUIKSHANK,
Secretary.

GENERAL SECRETARY'S REPORT 1918-1919

Miss Winnifred Parker, General Secretary, presented the following interesting report:

"The purpose of this organization shall be to lead young women into personal loyalty to Jesus Christ as Saviour and Lord, and to associate them in an organized effort to promote their spiritual, intellectual, social and physical well-being, and thus make the Association, in co-operation with the Church, a social factor in the extension of the Kingdom of God."

Such is the purpose of the Young Women's Christian Associations of Canada, and it is by measuring the work according to this standard that it may be known whether or not our mission is being fulfilled.

This organization exists for the girls of Peterborough, and all the departments are open to all girls. The interests of the Association are wider than its own doors and greater than its own membership, and the aim of the Association will not be attained until its influence is felt and its ideals recognized throughout the city in the lives of the girls.

The Association presents this year a report showing marked advance and increase in several of its departments, but while it is gratifying to know that earnest effort has been crowned with some degree of success, the field is so wide and the work is so great that such success may only be taken as encouragement to yet greater undertaking, and more faithful efforts.

While the work of such an organization as this cannot all be tabulated or related, some idea of the activities of the Association during the past year may be given.

Membership

A year ago our membership numbered four hundred. During that year it has almost doubled, and the total number of members now is 751, divided as follows:—

Sustaining members	90
Associate members	222
Active members	439

Of the active members, those enrolled:—

In the Swimming Classes	215
In the Gymnasium Classes	289
In Club Classes	89
In Expression Classes	14

The increase in the membership is due chiefly to the opening of the swimming pool, during the four summer months, and to the successful membership campaign, conducted during the winter.

Physical Department

Without question the foundation of the Association work is the Physical Department. The city of Peterboro is fortunate to possess the fine swimming pool which was opened last summer, and the Association has been most fortunate in having the services of Miss Littlefield as both swimming instructor and gymnasium teacher. The numbers in the classes and the results obtained from the pupils testify alike to the popularity of the teacher and excellency of her work.

Swimming

The Pool, which was opened last summer was a popular place through all the season. Two hundred and fifteen pupils entered the classes, and a number came in for single swims. The swimming season was closed with a splendid exhibition of pupils' work, and it is expected that when the pool is opened again, a greater number than even last year will be enrolled.

Gymnasium

Owing to the epidemic in the fall, the gymnasium classes were discontinued for a month, so that the work was much broken into. But in spite of this, the past year has been perhaps the most successful in the history of the Association. Fourteen classes, including three club classes, have been held weekly, with an enrolment of three hundred and seventy-eight. The largest class in numbers is the smallest class in the size of its members,—Juniors from four to eight number 67.

The enrolment is as follows:

In the 4 Junior Classes	118
In the 3 School Girl Classes	94
In the 3 Senior Classes	55
In the 2 Ladies' Classes	26
In the 3 Club Classes	80

The number of classes held during the season was 303.

As usual the Gymnasium Closing was an unqualified success, the culmination of a season's interesting and faithful work on the part of both teacher and pupils. Two hundred and fifteen pupils took part in the Exhibition, and did great credit to their training.

Club and Extension Work

The work of the Junior Club has been carried along quietly this year. The number of members in this class has decreased, many children having dropped the regular gymnasium classes. Since January, Miss Murray has been conducting a story hour with this class, after their gymnasium work.

The Senior Clubs have not been standing still. The membership in the classes was much increased during the membership campaign. The Athena and Silver Link Clubs have been meeting regularly on Tuesday evenings during the season, under the direction of Miss Pryce and Mrs. Rogers, and the members of these clubs have participated in the Gymnasium Closing, and as usual have been enthusiastic workers in the special undertakings of the Association. A new club, "Merry Maids," has been formed during the season.

Co-operating with the Honeywell Evangelistic party, the Y.W.C.A. gained an entrance into the factories at the noon hour, but this part of the work was seriously broken into in the fall, and for awhile had to be dropped. However, noon hour visits are made to two of the large factories, a brief programme being given, a little music, a short talk and personal chat with the girls. These visits are much appreciated and eagerly looked for. During the year Saturday evenings have been reserved for basketball and games in the gymnasium. A number of club girls, with others, enjoyed these Saturday even-

"Passion, my dear child," said Mrs. Bascom, wife of the Justice for Brabant, speaking softly and with some diffidence, for she disliked the word, "can endure for quite a while once the blood is up and pounding in the head. It would take a good deal to work up dear Enid, but when a woman like that does rise to the pitch under many and abominable provocations, well, I guess she could stay at that pitch a good bit longer than all of us put together. I've thought of nothing else for three days and nights,—the Judge won't discuss it with me,—and I feel convinced that she did it."

"So have and so am I," contributed Mrs. Battle, sepulchrally.

"I'm afraid she did!" Mrs. Gifning heaved an abysmal sigh. "I suspected it when I consulted her about her mourning. She was much too cool. A woman who could think of two kinds of blouses she wanted the very morning after the tragedy, and he not out of the house, must have been exercising a suspicious restraint or else have reverted to the cold-bloodedness with which she planned the deed."

"Dear Lottie, you are so psychological," murmured Mrs. Fred admiringly; but Mrs. Battle interrupted sharply:

"I maintain that she did it in a moment of overwhelming passion. She would be inexcusable if she had done it in cold blood."

"Well, of course I didn't mean that!" said Mrs. Gifning with asperity. "I guess I'm as fond of Enid Balfame as anybody in this room, and I guess I know what she must have gone through. What I really meant was that she has more courage than most folks."

"Oh, that indeed!" exclaimed Mrs. Lequer, who was quite happy with her husband, the fashionable doctor of Brabant. "Matrimony is a terrible trial at best, and it's a wonder more women don't—well, it's too horrible to say. But I'm afraid—well, you know."

There was no dissenting voice. Alys raised her eyes and glanced about the room. Mrs. Cummack was not present. No doubt she had been carefully omitted from the conference. So had four members of the inner twelve who were comparative newcomers in Elsinore. All of these women had known Enid Balfame from childhood, consistently admired her; when she was in a position to make her social ambitions felt, had quite naturally fallen into line.

"Isn't it rather a hasty conclusion?" Alys asked. "There are a good many others who might have done it, you know."

"Everybody suspected has one grand alibi." Mrs. Gifning's sigh was rather hypocritical this time. "We'd be only too glad to think there was any one else likely to be arrested. No hope! No hope!"

"I suppose"—Miss Crumley's tones were tentative, although the irresistible words almost cost her her breath—"that there was no man in love with Mrs. Balfame?"

"Alys Crumley!" All the women had shrieked the name, and Mrs. Battle swung herself to her pointed toes. "I'm most mad enough to put you right out. The idea of insinuating—"

"Dear me, Mrs. Battle, it never occurred to me that it was worse for a married woman to have a man in love with her than to commit murder. I did not insinuate or even imagine she cared for any man, or even encouraged one. But such things have happened."

"Not to her. And while I could forgive her for shooting a perfectly loathsome husband under the influence of sudden passion, I'd never forgive her—Enid Balfame!—if she had stooped to anything so paltry and common and sinful as philandering; for believe me, a man doesn't commit murder for a woman's sake unless he is reasonably certain that he will have his due rewards. That is life. And how can he be certain, if there has been no philandering. No!" Mrs. Battle was once more magisterial in her chair, and in command of her best Friday Club vocabulary. "But there is this much to be said: Enid did not necessarily shoot to kill,—merely to wound perhaps,—for nothing would have punished Dave Balfame more than a month or two in bed on gruel and custard. Or maybe she just didn't know what she was doing—just fired to relieve her feelings. I am sure it would have relieved mine after that scene at the Club.

"Oh—I apolgize. Let us assume then that Mrs. Balfame did it. How do you propose to act in the matter? Of course you will not accuse her, but shall you cut her?"

"Neither the one nor the other!" Mrs. Battle brought her plump little hands down on the arms of the chair with a muffled but emphatic smack. "Never outside of this room shall we breathe our convictions, or our certain knowledge that she kept a revolver in her room—may I not speak for all?" There was a hissing murmur caused by the letter s. "And it will be no negative defence, either. We'll stand by her publicly, visit her constantly, keep up her spirits, never give her a hint of our suspicions, and attend the trial in a body. Our attitude cannot fail to impress the world. We are the representative women of Elsinore; we have known her all our lives; it is our duty to flaunt our faith in the eyes of the public. The moral effect will be enormous—also on the jury."

"It is very splendid of you," Alys sighed. Their motives were mixed, of course, poor dears; brains were not their strong point, and they were all feeling young again with their sense of participation in the great local drama, but there was no questioning their loyalty, even that of Mrs. Battle, who would inherit the reins of leadership were Mrs. Balfame forced to retire. Alys wished she could be swept along with them, but indorsement of their programme was from the head alone.

"What do the men think?" she asked.

"I guess they don't know what to think," said Mrs. Battle complacently. "They're not as clever as we are, and besides, they never could understand that type of woman. Whatever they think, though,—that is to say, if they do suspect her,—they'll never let on. They weren't any too fond of Dave these last years, and they're no more anxious than we are to have Elsinore disgraced—especially with all those lots on the edge of the West End unsold. They're hoping for a boom every minute. The trial will be bad enough. And those terrible reporters! They've been here a dozen times."

"That reminds me," interrupted Alys. "I promised four of the best of the women reports I would try to get them an interview with Mrs. Balfame. Do you think you could manage it? She might not listen to me. And—and—if she is a murderess, I don't think I can see her just yet."

"Youth is so hard!" Mrs. Battle sighed. "But I suppose it is as well that you, an unmarried young woman, and with your way to make, should keep in the background. But why should she see those women? Answer me that. It would be more dignified for her to ignore the press hereafter."

"Perhaps. But they are predisposed in her favour, being women, and would write her up in such a way as to make friends for her among the public. It is important, if she is to be tried for her life, that she should not be thought a monster, that she should make all the friends possible. The jury might convict her, and it would then be necessary, appeals failing, to get up a petition."

"You always did have brains, Alys!" It was Mrs. Frew who expressed herself with emphasis. "I'll persuade her myself. Don't you really think it would be wise, Letitia?"

"I guess you're both right." Mrs. Battle stood up. "Now let's go out and have tea. I ordered it for five-thirty. New York's got nothing on us."

But Alys, protesting that her mother was old-fashioned and still prepared supper for half past six, excused herself and left the house. She found that Colonel Roosevelt had gone home and was not sorry to cover the half-mile to her own, briskly, on foot. What course she eventually should take was still unformulated, but she was glad that she had not parted with any of her deeper knowledge to those kindly women who, perhaps, would have found it the straw too many. Let Enid Balfame keep her friends if she could. Let her have the whole State on her side if she could, so long as she lost Dwight Rush!

What is Indurated Fibreware?

EDDY'S Indurated Fibreware is wood without any of the drawbacks which are commonly associated with wooden household utensils. It is made in one piece without joints or hoops, it will not splinter, will not fall to pieces if dropped, and is impervious to taints and odors. And with all those qualities it has all the lightness and the resiliency of wood.

Eddy's Indurated Fibreware
Washtubs, Pails, Butter Tubs, etc.

are made from wood-pulp, ground so as to preserve the long fibres intact. It is moulded to the required shape, in a single piece, under tremendous hydraulic pressure. This welds the fibres into a homogeneous mass, stronger in texture than the original wood itself.

The moulds are then dipped in oil, put into huge ovens, and baked for hours with intense heat. This produces a hard, glazed surface, which is impenetrable to liquids, and which effectively wards off every outside taint.

The next time you buy a washtub, a milk pail, a household pail or butter tub, ask for Eddy's Indurated Fibreware. You will find it much easier to lift, much easier to keep clean, and much more economical than the ordinary wooden or metal container.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

For the Country

By S. B. HACKLEY

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"If the boy who goes over there can go with his heart aglow with good cheer he will be magnificently prepared to endure! Oh, friends, you who sit here eager to do something for the country; if there is any trouble you can smooth by money, or word, or sacrifice, smooth it. Don't let your soldier, or any other you can help, go to France with a heavy heart!"

In their courthouse the Hallettsburg people listened in breathless enthusiasm to the Red Cross worker—the little pale woman with a scar on her forehead a splinter of shell had made.

Margaret Rue, the daughter of Hallettsburg's one rich man, felt her heart swell. She'd been knitting, and making bandages, and sewing on stout garments ever since the war began, but that wasn't sacrifice.

Sacrifice! She looked at the diamond ring on her left hand's third finger, and her face blanched. That ring had no business to be there; she knew it when Lloyd Shannon put it there six months before. But Lloyd Shannon was so desirable, and she had loved him so long! Across the aisle from Margaret sat Frances Thompson, beside a slim boy of fifteen, whose crutches leaned on the bench beside him. The young girl's pretty oval face was tense with the weight of responsibility. The little brother had long been in need of an operation that might restore him to health, but they were orphans, with but their little home, and Frances' small salary as telephone girl to keep them.

But Margaret looked across and wished that she were Frances, the girl that Lloyd Shannon loved! Why Lloyd had asked her to marry him she could only guess. It must have been that Frances had refused to marry him and, with his hurt heart craving sympathy, he had recklessly turned to her.

Lloyd—good, jolly, comradely Lloyd—had evidently made compact with himself, never to let her know by word or act that he didn't truly love her, but she knew.

He never spoke Frances' name, but by one pretext or another he avoided the street on which was the little Thompson house, and whenever he happened to see Frances, try as Margaret realized he did, he could not keep a telltale, wistful yearning out of his eyes.

They had been engaged only two weeks when he enlisted as a private—the first, the very first, of the town to volunteer. How Margaret had gloried in her patriot! And now he was to leave for France, he thought, soon.

"The utmost we can give the country, friends, when we think of what our boys are enduring and giving is little," the scarred nurse concluded. "If sacrifices will send a soldier over there at ease in mind, and happy, then let us all sacrifice and count it a privilege!"

As Margaret passed Frances helping her brother down the steps, all at once she knew why the other girl had sent the man she loved away! And Lloyd's ring felt like a strip of molten steel!

A letter awaited her, addressed in his firm handwriting. He wrote that he was to sail on the fifteenth, that he was desperately sorry he couldn't get leave to come and bid her good-by, and that she must write to him very often and tell him all the news. There wasn't much more—he never wrote long letters—but on the back of the last sheet was a two-line postscript.

"Please tell Philip Thompson," he said, "that I want him to write to me when I get across. Poor little Phil will feel that he's doing something for the country, and I'll be hungry for letters."

That was all—but it was enough. In his delicate consideration for her, his sense of honor and rectitude, he would not mention Frances' name, but Margaret read between the lines. His heart could not help making its appeal to her from the girl he loved!

Margaret had resolved to surprise him by making Aunt Cyrena go down to the camp with her on the twelfth, but—she read the postcript again—would he be a thousand times more glad if it were Frances that waved him Godspeed when he left?

"Send your soldier over there at ease in mind and happy!"

Margaret rose at last and got into her car and went to her father's office.

"Daddy," she said abruptly, "instead of buying me a new car next summer will you give me the money this fall?"

"For the country, dear?" he asked, as he wrote her a check.

"Yes, daddy," she said, and kissed him.

From the office of the telephone exchange manager she drove to the little Thompson cottage.

"Do you think Philip would like to make a few days' visit to my home?" she asked Frances, who met her, "while you and I and Aunt Rena go on a little auto and camping trip together? He loves books, I know, and he could entertain himself in father's library, and Uncle Zenas could take him out driving every day. And you—you're not looking well—I believe a few days outdoors would do you good."

Frances colored with pleasure. "Philip'd love it," she breathed, "and so would I—it's lovely of you to ask us—but I can't get off now."

"Yes you can," interrupted Margaret; "I've seen the manager, and he says under the circumstances—picnicking for your health—you might have the week off. Now you'll go, won't you?"

"Lloyd Shannon sent a message by me to Philip," she remarked a moment later. "He wants him to write to him when he gets across. You know Lloyd is leaving the fifteenth."

Frances started and her pale face lost every vestige of color.

"So—soon?" she stammered, trying to conceal her agitation.

Margaret took her shaking hands in hers.

"You—you love him, don't you, dear?"

The girl's white lips moved, but no sound came through them.

"Don't be afraid to tell me," Margaret encouraged her. "I—I'm not engaged to him any more! Shouldn't ever have been," she added lightly, "with him loving you all the time! But he just turned to me for—for comfort, I guess, when you—why did you refuse him, Frances?"

The girl covered her face with her hands.

"I—I thought I couldn't put my burdens on him," she sobbed, "and I pretended I didn't care. But it broke my heart!"

Margaret kissed her. "There—don't cry. Things will come right. In the meantime we'll go on our picnic—start early in the morning."

The next day at noon, while Mrs. Hermans and Frances—both innocent of their proximity to a training camp, for they did not know the roads they had come over—rested at one of the city hotels, Margaret went to see Lloyd. His eyes lit at sight of her, but in his bronzed face there was a suggestion of weariness, a hint of a mind not at ease.

"Do you want to be married before you go—would you like to be married this afternoon, Lloyd?" she asked him abruptly.

For a second he paled and something like consternation constricted his mouth, then he tried to smile.

Margaret laughed softly and held up her bare left hand. "Not to me—I knew where your heart is, Lloyd—but to Frances Thompson? You see, married to you, even though you're away, with your allowance and the government allotment she'd have an easier time. I'm going to pay for Philip's operation at once with the money daddy gave me for a new car. Tell me, do you want to be married, Lloyd, to her this afternoon?

As she rested her eyes on his brown face and watched it go white, then red, then white again, she did not need to be told his thoughts.

"Does she—does Frances know you're asking me this?" he asked when he could bring his voice to unsteady speech.

"No, but I saw she was breaking her heart because you were going, and so I brought her down here with me. She thinks we're going on in an hour or so. She doesn't even know we're near the camp you're in."

He tried to take her hand. "I feel an awful cad, Margie!" he groaned.

"Nonsense! It's perfectly darling of Cedric to send me these wonderful Indian blankets? It's so like the dear boy. Though—always thinking of others rather than himself!"

"I'll wager he'll send you some souvenir of his western trip, too, Pa."

"He has already gol-blink him!"

"Oh, has he, Pa? What is it? Do let me see!"

"Here it is."

"—th' bill fer them gol-blamed blankets!"

INFLAMED GUMS— THE CAUSE OF TOOTH-BASE DECAY

Just as the strength of a building is dependent upon its foundations, so are healthy teeth dependent upon healthy gums.

Permit the gums to become inflamed or tender and you weaken the foundation of the teeth. This condition is called Pyorrhea (Riggs' Disease). Loosening of teeth is a direct result. And, spongy, receding gums invite painful tooth-base decay. They act, too, as so many doorways for disease germs to enter the system—infecting the joints or tonsils—or causing other ailments.

Pyorrhea (Riggs' Disease) attacks four out of five people who are over forty. And many under that age, also. Its first symptom is tender gums. So you should look to your gums! Use Forhan's, which positively prevents Pyorrhea if used in time and used consistently. It also scientifically cleans the teeth—keeps them white and clean. Brush your teeth with it.

If gum-shrinkage has already set in, start using Forhan's and consult a dentist immediately for special treatment.

"Will Morning Never Come?"

"If I could only sleep I believe my nerves would soon be all right, but night after night I lie awake and think about everything under the sun.

"What chance is there of getting better so long as this goes on?"

"None. Nerve force is being exhausted nearly twenty-four hours of every day, and there is no rest and sleep in which to replenish the waste."

"One thing sure I cannot stand it much longer, for I know that every week—yes, every day—finds me more restless and nervous, and less able to stand the strain of the day's work."

"I suppose the doctor could give me something to make me sleep, but I don't want that. I am weak enough now. I want something to build up strength rather than to tear down the tissues of the body."

"I believe I will try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I have often heard of it, but never thought I would need to use it. I was always so strong and healthy."

"This nervous trouble is a peculiar ailment. No one would believe what I suffer from sleeplessness and nervousness. I do not look like an invalid, but I certainly am one."

"One thing sure I shall not spend another sleepless night before I begin using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I expect it will take a little time to get my nerves right, but I shall get half a dozen boxes and give it a try out. Something seems to tell me that I shall not be disappointed."

The Easiest Way To End Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp, and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all that you need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

ing frolics, which usually ended with refreshments.

Immigration

Recently, with the opening of transportation, since the end of the war, reports have been sent from the Y.W.C.A. Immigration Secretary at the ports of St. John and Halifax, of young women coming to Peterborough. A number of calls have been made on those whose names have been received. In most cases they were found to be soldiers' wives, and they were glad to be greeted by the Young Women's Christian Association in this new land.

Religious Work

The Religious Work Committee outlined a programme which was sadly interfered with by the break in the fall. The World's Week of Prayer, coming when all was at a stand still, was not observed in the usual way this year. Three group Bible Study Classes have been conducted by the Secretary.

Expression

Fourteen pupils are enrolled in the Expression Class. In March a Green Room recital was given by some of the pupils.

Dominion Council

During February Miss Jones, National City Secretary, and Miss Yeomans, Girls' Work Secretary, spent three days in the Association, conferring with the Board Members and the staff, and bringing suggestions and counsel. In connection with this conference a mass meeting for girls and a public meeting were addressed by Miss Jones, Miss Yeomans, and Miss Harcourt, of the Hygiene Department of the Dominion Council, Y.W.C.A. Acknowledging its debt to the general and foreign work of the Young Women's Christian Association of Canada, the "Y" has subscribed $125 to the Dominion Council, to be applied to these departments.

Social

Several social events have been enjoyed by the members this year. A masquerade party in December, when 80 members were present, and a Valentine Party in February, when 130 were present, were the two large membership parties. The Juniors, too, had their big party at Christmas time, and the Ladies' Class had their party in February, with an attendance of 60.

The events under the direction of the Social Committee of the Board were—the Garden Party at the opening of the swimming pool in May, when 300 were present, and $87 realized. The opening rally in the fall, when 100 were present, a party given by the Board to the House Members and the Normal Students, 100 present; and a splendid banquet prepared at the launching of the membership campaign, 100 present.

The special events during the year, besides those just mentioned, which have added to the income of the Association were: the swimming pool exhibition at the closing of the pool in the fall, $70; Victory Bazaar in December in which gym classes, club girls, house members and Girls' Auxiliary, worked heartily, $223; membership campaign lasting one week in February, when teams representing each class and club, and the house girls handed in names and fees for 350 members, amount realized, $465; Eastertide cantata given with the assistance of outside talent $15; gymnasium closing, over $250; making total of $1,110.00.

That the Y.W.C.A. should prove its right to be recognized as a centre for the young womanhood of Peterborough, and in co-operation with the churches and Sunday Schools be a power for good among the girls of this city, is its great ambition, and to some extent this ambition is being realized. The Girls' Inter Sunday School Council, which grew out of the Girls' Conference of last year, and which is composed of representatives from the various Sunday Schools, has its centre at the Y.W.C.A. Another outcome of the Conference is that several Sunday Schools have now organized Secondary Divisions. It is right and fitting that the Association should be linked up with and take a leading part in all work of this kind.

Several women's organizations hold their regular or special meetings in the Green Room, among them, the 57th, Otonabee, and Peter Robinson Chapters of the I.O.D.E., and Local Council of Women, W.C.T.U., and Business Girls' Club.

To attempt to record in detail the business of the office would be useless. The number of people passing in and out of the Association, the good use which is made of the library and reading room, the employment bureau, the chats with girls, the many and varied calls made upon the time of the secretaries, though small perhaps in themselves, would loom large in the aggregate.

The Association has held itself in readiness to serve the community—and in return has gratefully to acknowledge many services and favours, and at this opportunity would voice its thanks and appreciation to those who throughout the year, have generously given of their time and talent to assist on various programmes given in the Association, to the girls who have helped in many ways on various occasions, to the business men who have responded so heartily with donations to the bazaar, and have allowed posters to be placed in their windows, and have shown interest in the work carried on, to the papers who have given much space and persistence to the activities of the Association, and to all those who have given encouragement and support to the work during the past year.

WINNIFRED PARKER,
General Secretary.

SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT FOR 1918-1919

In the late fifties of the last century, the first Young Women's Christian Association home was opened in North London, England, where the nurses going to the Crimean War might be boarded and prepared for their work before sailing, and received on their return home. In 1861 this home was enlarged to make room for that large class of young women employed in business, and now all over the world there are Y.W.C.A. Boarding Homes for young women, of which ours is one.

During the year just past, our home has provided comfortable accommodation, and we have tried to make it a real home for girls in commercial life, teachers and students. Our home has been practically filled since January 1st. During the past year one hundred and ninety different girls have lived for a longer or shorter time in our Association home, as well as two hundred and seventy-five transients. In addition to these we have had a number drop in for meals, and several come regularly for dinner. Our capacity is seventy, including an official and domestic staff and eleven. We have served approximately during the year sixty-five thousand, seven hundred individual meals. Our total receipts amounted to $11,488.91.

The ever-increasing cost of food, and for a number of months the urgent necessity for conserving food, has made this a most difficult year in the Home Department, but on the whole the girls have shown a fine spirit and have fallen in line. On account of the increased prices on all sides, we found it necessary to increase the price of board, the board and room now ranging from $4.75 to $6.00 per week, according to the location of the room. Certain extra expenses have been incurred along the line of furnishings and repairs. There have been two of the large rooms on the top floor painted, and cork carpeted, which for a long time had been badly needed on the halls on the first floor, is being laid. Mats and runners have been put in all bedrooms on the second floor. These will not only add greatly to the comfort to the girls, but also the appearance of the rooms.

From petty cash has been bought curtain material for the second floor, table linen, sheeting, towels, cups and saucers and glassware, and many other things which are required to keep a home in good running order.

Last summer and in the early autumn the following quantities of fruits and pickles were put away: Five hundred quarts of fruit, two hundred and fifty quarts of pickles, and canned tomatoes; one hundred quarts of grape marmalade, and a quantity of rhubarb marmalade.

When our home filled up with returning girls last September, it unfortunately did not remain so very long. The "flu" epidemic began to creep in, and by Thanksgiving Day we had eight or nine cases. From that date until Christmas, there were only a few days without one or more cases in the home. Eight were taken to the hospital and twenty were nursed here. We are thankful to say that all recovered, and that we began the new year free from sickness, and throughout the winter we have not had a case of illness.

A very pleasant time was spent in the home at Christmas, cake and coffee was served. A large Christmas tree was placed in the hall, and decorated with gifts received by the house girls, these were distributed by Miss Littlefield, disguised at Santa Claus on Christmas morning. Special dinners were served on Christmas and New Years, and a jolly little party was given on New Year's night. The girls deciding that it was the happiest festive season they had ever spent in the home.

Little groups of girls are being entertained to birthday parties by the Superintendent in her sitting room, all the girls will have been included by the end of June. The girls enjoy this little touch of home and the break in the regular routine of the home. The House and Social committees provided an evening's entertainment for the house girls and Normal students, during the winter, which was much appreciated. In entertaining our girls we feel that it not only provides pleasure, but it also gives us greater opportunity of becoming more closely acquainted with each other, for in this way can one of the most helpful influences be exerted.

During the Membership Campaign, our house girls entered most heartily into the competition, with the result that they received the coveted pennant. The banquet at the launching of the campaign was served in our dining-room.

Every evening immediately after supper, the girls assemble in the Green Room for prayers, a house girl taking charge once a week. On one occasion representatives of the Religious Work Committee took charge of an evening prayer service.

Our home throughout the year has been comfortable and happy, and we feel sure, equal to any other Association Home. To the House Committee I would voice my appreciation of their hearty support and kind encouragement, and the kind interest and confidence shown by the members of the Board is an added incentive to the carrying on the work of the home.

In these days of unparalleled opportunity, we believe we are together learning to serve in the spirit of Him who came not to be ministered unto, but to minister.

Respectfully submitted.

E. MORRISON,
Superintendent.

HAD SEVERE COLD

AND TICKLING SENSATION IN THE THROAT.

This trouble is most distressing, and is caused from a cold that has settled in the throat.

How many people have lost a good night's sleep by that nasty, tickling, irritating sensation in the throat?

The dry, hard cough keeps you awake, and when you get up in the morning you feel as if you had had no rest at all.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, which is composed of the most soothing and healing expectorant herbs and barks, combined with the lung healing virtues of the world-famous Norway pine tree, will give almost instant relief in all cases of this nature.

Mrs. G. C. Routley, Bright, Ont., writes: — "I take great pleasure in telling you of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

For several weeks I was troubled with a severe cold, and a tickling in the throat. I tried numerous remedies, but found no relief until I used Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, which I had heard so much about, and on taking one bottle got instant relief. I highly recommend it to those who need a quick cure."

So great has been the success of Dr. Wood's" in curing coughs, colds, bronchitis, etc., it is only natural that many imitations have been placed on the market. The genuine is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25c. and 50c. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Millbrook Correspondence

MILLBROOK, May 14—Gunner Milton Carr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Creighton Carr, Cavan, has returned from overseas. He enlisted in January, 1916, went to England in September, and to France on 15th November of the same year. He was with the 87th Grenadier Guards of Montreal. He was wounded in the shoulder on 11th April, 1917, at Vimy Ridge, and was in hospital and a convalescent camp until 13th July, 1917, when he was transferred to the 48th Battalion and returned to the lines. He was in much of the fighting, but escaped further injury. He sailed for home on 14th April on the Olympic, and arrived on 24th April. He went over on the s.s. Corsican.

Mother's Day Observed.

Mother's Day was fittingly observed by all the churches in the district last Sunday. Special and eloquent sermons were delivered by the minister and appropriate music was rendered.

Special services were held in the Methodist Church last Sunday. Eloquent sermons were delivered by the Rev. W. H. Higgs morning and evening, and those who have not held their mothers in the high esteem and respect that they should, would be well advised if they weighed fully the inspiring words of the preacher along those lines. Every man, woman and child has reason to be proud of a good mother. "The hand that rocks the cradle rules the world" is an old but true saying. When you think that you are forsaken the dear old mother, if she is still living, will cling to you. The services were made still more interesting by several splendid selections by the men's choir of 25 voices.

105 Chicks from 120-Egg Incubator.

Mrs. David Henry has probably made a record with her 120-egg incubator, which produced 105 chicks from one setting. She attributed her success to using the moisture pan and having cooled the eggs under a woollen shawl. Can any chick raiser beat this record?

Officers Elected.

The annual meeting of the Epworth League was held on Monday, 12th May. Reports were given and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

The Voice of Authority.

Millbrook was again favoured with a delightful entertainment in the town hall on Friday evening, when that interesting and very amusing farce-comedy, "The Voice of Authority," in three acts, was given by the following representative characters:

Jean Campbell—Miss Lillian Clark.
Priscilla Carter—Miss Bertha Callum.
Martha Stearns—Miss K. Callum.
Gladys Cushing—Miss Nettie Handley.
Margery Whiting — Miss Florence Clarke.
Elizabeth Kennedy—Miss Eleanor McBean.
Dr. E. T. Simpson—Miss Janet Neville.
The Voice of Authority— Mr. Wesley Hutchinson.

Where each one took her or his part so creditably well, it would be invidious to particularize. The large audience was kept in high good humour throughout the lengthy and interesting acts.

The play was interspersed with a choice musical program by the following high class artists: Mrs. Allen and Miss McLean in piano duetts, Mr. Balcombe soloist, Mr. Frank Whitehouse, violinist of Peterboro.

The girls auxiliary of St. Thomas Church deserve great credit for providing such a pleasant evening's entertainment.

Miss Hampton's S. S. Class has been requested to give the interesting play, "Aunt Susan's Visit" at Omemee and will do so next Monday evening.

Every woman should have a small package of delatone handy, for its timely use will keep the skin free from beauty-marring hairy growths. To remove hair or fuzz make a thick paste with some of the powdered delatone and water. Apply to the hairy surface and after two or three minutes rub off, wash the skin and it will be free from hair or blemish. To avoid disappointment be sure you get real delatone.

Metal fabrics are used for entire evening dresses.

Open cuffs are cool and pretty for summer dresses.

It all happened on a journey between Glasgow and Aberdeen. The well-known benevolent Scots minister stepped into a third-class carriage at the former city and took his seat opposite a working man, also a Scot. Presently the two got into conversation, and the working man confided in the clergyman that he had been a coupler on the railway for seven years. "Oh, oh!" laughed the benevolent old gentleman, "I can beat that hollow. I've been a coupler for twenty years." The working man eyed him for a moment with stern disapproval, then: "Ay, ay," said he; "but I can uncouple, and ye canna!"

KEMP DEFENDS ARGYLL HOUSE

States He is Going to Show Up General Smart and Colonel Pratt.

OTTAWA, May 14.—For the first time since the Union Government was formed Sir Edward Kemp, of East Toronto, took his seat in the House of Commons Monday afternoon. The Overseas Minister of Militia left Toronto for London before the result of the election was announced and has not since been in the Capital when the House was in session. He had a cordial reception from Government supporters upon entering the Commons Chamber, but the questions fired at him indicated that he will have ample opportunity later on to defend Canada's Overseas War Office, better known as Argyll House, the headquarters of the Canadian Expeditionary Force in London.

Kemp Defends Argyll House

Nor is the Overseas Minister unprepared for criticism. He brought with him a bulky report of the doings of the Canadian Expeditionary Force in England and France, copies of which were distributed to members of the House and Senate and the press, and he intimated that he would give an account of his stewardship and reply to his critics after a brief holiday in Toronto. He claims that Argyll House is inhabited by slackers and safety first soldiers, but by very competent professional men, doctors, bankers and the like, who are, at great personal sacrifice, serving their country in the trying period of demobilization. Morevoer, he says, they have saved Canada millions of dollars by masterly adminstration of our forces across the sea. He is going to show up Colonel A. C. Platt, M.P.P., Brig.-Gen. Smart, M.P.P., and others who have said nasty things about the way business was transacted by Sir Geo. Perley, Sir Edward Kemp and company.

City Delegates to the G.W.V.A. Convention Want to Protect the Membership

President Jeakins' Report Was Adopted in Spite of Report of Special Committee.

CONVENTION NEWS

(Special to The Examiner.)

WINDSOR, May 15.—The recommendation of the special committee that the part of President Jeakins' address to the Ontario Great War Veterans' Association' convention yesterday, which referred to a resolution of the Calgary association for $2,000 gratuity as a "half-baked" scheme, be deleted before the President's address appeared in published form, caused a heated discussion before the convention.

"I move that the report go right back to the committee," said Comrade McLean, of Hamilton. "The acclamation we gave our President at the time of the reading of the address should have been sufficient indication to the committee of our attitude."

Asked for sections to be deleted, the chairman answered that cutting out of those portions of the address advising the various branches against hasty and half-baked resolutions, and declaring himself against the $2,000 gratuity given prominence by the Calgary resolution, was recommended by the committee. "This is the first report from any committee of the convention that I have considered a joke," declared a Brantford delegate.

Defended Report.

Comrade Brockbank defended the report, stating that certain expressions of opinion of the President might be taken as endorsation by the convention.

"We believe the President exceeded his authority in giving his opinion on subjects which are bound to be very contentious ones at this convention," stated Comrade Stephenson, a member of the committee.

"The address I thought was a masterpiece," stated Major Hartt, M.P.P. of Orillia. "It met with my approval, and from the applause it received I thought of the approval of every man in this hall. But what is the use in sending it back to this committee when they have already expressed their opinion?" (Cheers and applause.)

"The amendment to send the report back means nothing," asserted Comrade Wigle, of Hamilton. "We are giving them no different instructions so their report will be the same. Glory in the attitude the President has taken. I do not approve of the report. (Hand applause.)

Report Will Stand.

"This is a personal matter upon which I feel very keenly," remarked President Jeakins, "and I beg leave to withdraw the address from the committee." (Cries of no, no.) "I know of a thousand men who have refused to join the association because of the statement of one officer on one of these questions," stated Comrade Everingham, of the Toronto Central branch.

"Is it fair to have all this discussion over this matter? It strikes me that the whole convention endorsed this address when it was given. I say let it go as it stands," said Comrade Turcott of Cobourg.

A vote showed only six delegates willing to receive the report of the committee and a vote of thanks to the President for his address was passed with rousing cheers.

To Protect Membership.

The Peterborough delegates to the convention purpose to bring in a motion which will make membership in the association considerably harder to secure. They will ask that each applicant be forced to wait until his antecedents can be looked into by a committee appointed for the purpose, and those not suitable be rejected. This will do away with initiation en bloc which at present prevails. This motion will be supported by delegates from other towns, who claim undesirable members are injuring the Association in the eyes of the public.

BRITAIN'S TRIBUTE TO EDITH CAVELL

High Officials of the Government Represented—"A Brave Woman."

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, May 15.— Great Britain paid tribute to Edith Cavell, English nurse executed by Germans at Brussels Oct. 12, 1915, here to-day, when her body, en route from Brussels to her native city of Norwich, was taken to Westminster Abbey for an impressive memorial service. It was a public funeral, in which it seemed every resident of the great metropolis endeavored to participate. Streets through which the cortege moved were congested with crowds, and every inch of standing room in the neighbourhood of the Abbey was occupied by a densely massed multitude, which was eager to do reverent homage to "that brave woman," as the Bishop of London described her, "who deserves a great deal from the British Empire." The congestion at the Abbey included high officials of the government, representatives of foreign countries and men prominent in many walks of life. King George was represented by the Earl of Athlone, brother of Queen Mary.

Rev. J. Wright Gave Address on Trinidad

Speaker Illustrated Lecture With Some Splendid Views.

Under the auspices of the Fraser Mission Band last evening in St. Paul's Church, Rev. J. Wright, B.A., a former Ashburnham boy, gave a very interesting talk on Trinidad. With some splendid views which he had taken himself while in Trinidad recently Mr. Wright took his audience on a trip through the beautiful scenery of the country, and graphically described the different points of interest. Reverend Robert Pogue occupied the chair. Rev. Mr. Wright's visit to the city proved a happy occasion to many f his old friends in the city. He was a student at the schools in East City before leaving for his college course. Later he was appointed to a charge in the Yukon and subsequently located at Levis, Quebec.

Special Holiday Attraction

In packing theatres wherever it has been shown, "Turn to the Right," the reigning comedy-drama success to be presented at the Grand on 24th May, matinee and evening, has demonstrated that the public is incurably religious, and that it is only necessary to get down to where individual religion resides and "mix laughter with the sterner stuff" to evoke an expression. That the stage with all its sins of commission, is capable of reviving the merest lingering spark of religion has been demonstrated by such offerings of essentially stimulus as "Ben-Hur," "The Servant in the House," "The Wanderer," etc.—all dramatic versions of imperfectly-remembered Sunday School lessons. They have illustrated what the actor's art can do with the saving message of the Church, plus stage accessories.

"Turn to the Right" is the New Testament with the brilliant comedy and worthily directed rascality thrown in. But the mother-love that never faileth — mother-love linked with the Book and prayer — permeates the play in a way that persuades one that the theatre is not an unfit place wherein to erect a family altar. The central figure of the story, Mother Bascom, is the sort of old-fashioned praying mother that is enshrined in the hearts of millions of men and women whose environment has dimmed their recollections of Sunday School teachings.

PEACE CONFERENCE

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, May 15.— The Council of Four has declined to consider the note from Count Von Brockdorff-Rantzau, chief of the German peace mission, relative to International Labour legislation. In a note sent to the German delegation, Clemenceau says the Allied and Associated Governments are of the opinion that their decisions give satisfaction to the anxiety which German delegates profess for social justice and insure realization of reforms which the working classes have more than ever a right to expect after the cruel trial to which the world has been subjected during the last five years.

TORONTO BABY FARMER ARRESTED

Eight Children Removed From Home—Mother Distracted.

TORONTO, May 15. — Although "baby farmers' in the city, under the supervision of the Public Health Department are allowed as a rule to board only two children, Mrs. W. Gill, who was arrested on Tuesday night for keeping a baby's boarding house without a license, was looking after no less than eight infants. The discovery of the unlicensed "baby farm" at 111 Strathmore avenue, occurred on Monday, and Mrs. Gill, the proprietress, later appeared in the police court charged with losing one of the babies placed under her care. She was remanded and bail was refused.

The charge is that Mrs. Gill had received a baby from an unwedded mother and was looking after it for $5 a week; the mother came often to see the child, but that she took sick and was away for some time, and finally when she was able to go to see her baby once more she was told that the child had been taken away by two women.

The mother charges that when she asked Mrs. Gill what had become of the child the woman told her it had been given away, and that the present whereabouts of the child was unknown to her.

Detective Archibald is investigating the case, but so far has discovered no trace of the missing child.

On Tuesday night shortly after 6 o'clock, the eight little children were taken away from Mrs. Gill's home at 111 Strathmore avenue by order of the court and distributed by agents of the St. Vincent de Paul Children's Aid Society among the various institutions throughout the city maintained for the purpose. It was the St. Vincent de Paul Children's Aid Society which had placed the babies with Mrs. Gill, but the officials claim that they were unaware that Mrs. Gill did not hold the necessary license or that her former license had been summarily revoked some time ago by the civic health authorities.

Mr. J. A. Hyland, agent for the St. Vincent de Paul Society, admits that he was responsible for placing the children with Mrs. Gill. He said she was a good mother, had raised children of her own, and was absolutely the best person for looking after children that he had experienced in the conducting of his work.

The child now reported to be missing Mr. Hyland said, was not one he had placed with Mrs. Gill. "As I understand it," he said, "Mrs. Gill received a visit from two women from London, Ont, who said that they had been sent for the child by the mother. They took the little one away, and no record was kept. A few weeks later, Mrs. Gill, I am told, received a letter from the mother, telling her how happy she was the child had found such a good home."

Officials of the Medical Health Department said that there were about 100 licensed baby boarding-houses in the city. There were inspected regularly by the Public Health nurses, and it was very seldom that one woman was allowed to look after more than two children.

Mrs. Florence Gill will appear in the Police Court on May, 20th, to answer four charges, three of which have been laid by Inspector Wilson, of the Medical Health Department, and the fourth by the mother of the missing boy. Until the boy is produced Crown Attorney Corley has refused to grant bail for Mrs. Gill, who has been in jail since Tuesday. The charge laid by the mother of the child against Mrs. Gill is that she took away her boy with intent to deprive the mother and guardian of the protection of the child.

BOLSHEVISTS SUFFER ANOTHER DEFEAT

BERNE, May 15.—Ukrainian Press Bureau announces the capture by Admiral Kolchak's forces of Samara, an important city on the River Volga.

Investigation Has Been Withdrawn

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, May 15. — Andrew Bonar Law told the Commons yesterday that Premier Lloyd George had asked Frank P. Walsh, Edward Dunne and Michael F. Ryan, representing Irish societies in the United States, to call upon him. He had planned to lay before them the British case and have it widely reported in America, where it is insufficiently understood. Mr. Bonar Law said the Premier has withdrawn the invitation, the leader said, because while he is willing to receive Americans, he is unwilling to receive those who come to Ireland and not only take part in the politics of Ireland, but also in rebellious movements.

CANOE BUILDERS RETURN TO WORK

Men Were Back in Both Local Factories This Morning—No Concessions Granted.

Nearly all the employees of the Peterboro and Canadian Canoe companies retured to work this morning. They went on strike several weeks ago when their demands for the recognition of their Union and a slight increase in wages were refused. It was believed that some of those who did not report for duty this morning had not been notified of the men's decision which it is understood was arrived at last night. From representatives of the companies it was learned that no inducements nor concessions have been held out to the men, but it was hoped there would be complete harmony and understanding.

STRIKE LAUNCHED IN WINNIPEG TO-DAY

Twenty-Seven Thousand Men Walked Out, Including the Firemen.

(Canadian Press.)

WINNIPEG, Man., May 15.— Precisely at eleven o'clock this forenoon a general strike was launched, and approximately [illegible] Unionists left their work. Street cars were taken to the barns, building elevators stopped running, postal employees went home, all deliveries of milk, bread and other foodstuffs ceased, and about 3,000 clerks, bookkeepers and stenographers struck. Except for a specially organised life-saving crew, all the firemen walked out. Policemen have been ordered by the Strike committee to remain on duty, although they had voted solidly to strike, and some strikers have been delegated by the committee to offer their services in the interest of maintaining order. Water supply and hospital service has been arranged for by the Strike committee. A Citizens' committee of one thousand is being enrolled to maintain order.

2,500 DRAFT DODGERS TO BE ROUNDED UP AND TRIED

A post-war round-up of slackers located in Brooklyn and the towns on Long Island is being arranged by government officials. A conference in the Federal Building, Brooklyn, was the aftermath of the crusade, and by Tuesday morning the machinery will be set in motion for the capture of 2,500 young men who failed to do various things required by the law of the United States.

At the meeting yesterday were Judge Edwin Gavin of the federal court, Brooklyn; Marshal James M. Power, James D. Bell, United States District Attorney, and Harvey H. Harwood, Mr. Bell's assistant.

Of the 2,500 slackers, whose whereabouts are known, a large number are foreigners. Some of them failed to register for the draft; others registered and then failed to file questionnaires. Still others were [illegible] preliminaries, but dodged [illegible] by changing their addresses. Court martials await them all, Marshal Power announced.

CO-OPERATIVE MOVEMENT

Annual Meeting of Toronto Division of Canadian Manufacturers—A Daisy Report.

COMMON APPEAL

(Special to Examiner.)

TORONTO, May 15. — Cooperation between capital and labor is the urgent need, according to the report to the Committee on Welfare submitted to the annual meeting of the Toronto division of the Canadian Manufacturers Association held this afternoon in the Board of Trade rooms.

The report took up eleven typewritten pages and gave in much detail the result of various industrial plans to establish better relations and closer harmony between capital and labor. The war is cited as the cause for this cooperative movement.

Better Understanding.

It is recognized by all thoughtful people, states the report, that a better understanding between capital and labor is necessary if the grave problems of reconstruction are solved with the maximum success and benefit to Canada. Between 1,500,000 and 2,000,000 persons will be affected vitally by demobilization and consequent industrial changes.

Unless there is sympathetic understanding and sincere cooperation between employers and employees, industrial machinery cannot be adjusted to the new conditions without severe loss to capital. Extensive unemployment and individual distress, conditions which are the cause of the present labor troubles must be corrected, or graver disturbances will mark the course of the reconstruction period. Much of the present disquiet is due to the high prices, and much of it also to specific industrial causes. Amongst these are the failure hitherto of capital to admit the human rights of labor, the domination of extreme elements in labor organizations and the ancient, and still active, distrust between it and capital.

Causes Removed.

The causes must be corrected in the interests of industry and of the nation. The war, as nothing else in human history, has broken down the wall of partition between classes. All have responded to a common appeal, and all have shared in common sacrifice and common glory. Unless there is a mortal and ineradicable defect in our civilization there will be fruits of sympathy and understanding from all this common effort.

ARMED LUNATIC LOOSE IN WOODS

Wounds Several After Setting Fire to Barn.

MONCTON, N. B., May 15.— Telephone messages from the village of Rexton, Kent county, report Robert Childs, alias McIntosh, apparently insane, armed with three revolvers, hiding in woods near there, after wounding his sister-in-law and her son and two men named Hebert, father and son. Two of the victims are in serious condition. Childs came to Rexton last night and proceeded to an old homestead, of which he claims part ownership, but is in possession of John Childs, his brother. He set fire to the barn, and when Mrs. Childs and her son attempted to save the live stock he shot both. The Heberts, who lived nearby, also attempted to save the cattle and both received bullet wounds.

AUSTRIA ARRIVES AT PEACE TABLE

A Sharp Contrast to First Meeting With the German Delegates.

(Associated Press.)

PARIS, May 15. — The Austrian peace delegation arrived at St. Germain-en-Layne at 5.50 o'clock last evening.

The delegation was met by Pretet Chaliel and representatives of the French Government and the Allied and Associated Powers.

The first meeting with the Austrian delegates presented a sharp contrast to the first meeting with the German delegates because of its greater ease and friendliness. The delegation was headed by Karl Renner, the Chancellor. He appeared in the doorway of the car with his hat in his hand and with a contagious smile that put the Reception committee quickly at its ease.

Dr. Renner, a plump, round-faced man, with a black beard and bald head, and with his eyes shining brightly behind a pair of gold-rimmed spectacles, bowed courteously to the Reception committee. There was no handshaking.

The head of the Austrian delegation was followed by Dr. Franz Klein, Peter Eichoff and Dr. Richard Schuller. After them came the other members of the party, which numbered about sixty.

M. Chaliel, advancing and bowing, addressed the Austrian Chancellor, saying he was delegated to meet the Austrian representatives and treat them with friendly courtesy. He added that he would turn them over to Major Bourgeois, who would establish relations between them and the Entente Powers.

POULTRYMEN MET LAST EVENING

The local Association will send one delegate who will be appointed next Monday evening at a meeting called for that purpose.

There were a number of birds on exhibition last evening, chiefly Barred Rocks and Golden Wyandottes. Mr. Harry Lush was an efficient judge. At the next meeting the English and Asiatic varieties of poultry will be shown.

The annual meeting of the Trinity Methodist Church congregation was held last evning in the Reid Street Sunday School Hall. A short programme was rendered, after which the following officers were elected as representatives of the congregation to the Quarterly Board: Messrs. W. P. Adamson, Andrew Brown, Ira D. Moore, Robert Neill, Dr. F. C. Neill, H. E. Hodgens, Norman Moncrief, Thomas Cruickshanks, W. R. Wildess, and Dr. Bruce Marshall.

Reports from the various organisations of the church were read, all of which indicated a healthy growth. During the year the pastor, Rev. F. E. Mallott, received one hundred and fifteen new members, but owing to deaths and removals, the net gain was reduced to forty.

Refreshments were served at the close.

THE VETERANS' CAMPAIGN

The drive on behalf of the Great War Veterans which will begin on Monday, is for $15,000, which is the amount required to complete the building of the new club rooms and to secure the furnishing and equipment that are needed. The sum is not a large one, if the people of the city realize their responsibility and we all prepared to do their part in bringing the objective within reach. Peterborough is asked to show her gratitude to the men from this city who served by subscribing $6 for each soldier who left here during the war. That is what raising the full objective would mean.

The personnel of the various committees have been published. A glance over the names of the citizens who are assisting the Veterans, shows that the men who were always ready to doff their coats and go to work on behalf of every patriotic effort that needed a helping hand, are once more taking up the task. They are co-operating in the Veterans' campaign, because they are thoroughly convinced of the merit of the cause and because they realize that the debt of Peterborough to her soldier sons should be liquidated. It will not be the fault of the committee if the obligation is not written off by the end of next week. Their energy and enthusiasm are being thrown into the campaign and in so far as their efforts are concerned there is no need for any anxiety as to the result.

But to carry the drive through to a sucessful finish as the veterans so often completed their attacks over there, the people generally must do their part. The canvassers should receive a cordial and warm-hearted reception when they start on their rounds on Monday.

THE LIQUOR POLICY

The Dominion Government in its liquor policy has evidently followed the line of least resistance and has shifted the responsibility practically off their own shoulders to those of the Provinces. This was undoubtedly the easiest course to follow, but the Federal Government has shown very little courage in thus disposing of the problem and adopting a policy that leaves the issue to be settled by the provinces instead of having the law for the Dominion made uniform. It is not surprising to find that the executive council of the Dominion Alliance is very much disturbed by the retrograde policy of the Federal Government and that a strongly worded protest has already been sent to the Acting Premier. The Alliance protests that the proposition proposed by Sir Thomas White "does not meet the needs of the present situation or measure up to the standard of public opinion in Canada, but on the contrary that will open the door for serious abuses and grave complications." It was the hope of the leaders of the Alliance and of temperance advocates generally that the prohibitory order-in-council passed last year would be made permanent. That hope will be shattered by the legislation that the Government has introduced.

The keynote of the protest made by the Alliance is found in the following paragraph: "The liquor traffic is a national foe. To provide by legislation for its continuance anywhere in Canada is against the best interests of our Dominion; nor is prohibition safe anywhere in Canada so long as liquor is sold in some other part of the country. If Canada should permit the liquor traffic to regain a foothold in any section of the Dominion it would be to give our country's enemy a vantage-ground from which it could maintain its propaganda, hinder and impair the efficiency and enforcement of prohibitory enactments in other parts of Canada, and perpetuate an evil which the nations of the world everywhere are seeking to overcome.

THE HOUSING QUESTION

Until the Hunter Street Bridge tangle is finally unwound it seems like crowding the aldermen to refer to any other matter, but the fact remains, nevertheless, that the housing problem is looming ever bigger in the public eye and there is apparently no relief in sight. There is a dearth of houses in the city at the present time, particularly of the size that is most in demand for workingmen's families. The return of the men from overseas, many of them bringing with them an English bride, has added to the scarcity and there is practically no building being done.

The only solution seems to be a consideration of the Provincial Housing Scheme which may offer some relief if prompt action is taken. No fewer than forty-eight Ontario municipalities are already taking advantage of the Government plan, the list containing the names of nearly all the cities in Ontario, including Windsor, Fort William, Galt, St. Catharines, Sault Ste. Marie, Ottawa, Sarnia, Woodstock, London, Guelph, Niagara Falls and Brantford. Houses are already under construction in some of these cities and in several of the places named the municipal councils have purchased land and is planning the erection of houses on a large scale. The Peterboro County Council has placed Peterboro county in the unenviable position of being the only county in the province that has not adopted the Good Roads System; the inactivity of the city council seems destined to make the city of Peterboro the only city in Ontario that has not embarked upon a municipal housing scheme. The failure to take any steps to solve the problem may have serious results for Peterboro when the industrial boom that is expected to follow the present period of reconstruction makes its presence felt. Homes for working men are sadly needed even in the face of the present slackness in industrial conditions. When Peterboro's factories are once more operating at full capacity and more industries have located here, the lack of housing accommodation will result in conditions that will do harm to Peterboro's chances of advancement.

THE HABIT OF BOASTING

There is a good deal of argument on both sides of the line on the question, "who won the war?". Much is being said in the newspapers that might just as well be left unsaid and over here in Canada we are inclined to grow resentful over the boasting of Americans as to their share in the war. But after all is not this boasting natural? Don't we do it ourselves? And don't the people of each military district in Canada imagine that the troops from their locality were the finest in the battle line? And when you read the Toronto papers don't you often wonder if the 3rd Battalion and the 48th Highlanders were the only Canadian troops in action?

The situation seems to be just the same in the neighbouring republic. Each section is so proud of what its own soldiers have done that there are no thoughts of all the other gallant lads who were fighting.

The New York Times comments on this failing in an editorial reference that is worth reproducing because it reveals a condition of affairs that is very familiar.

It is with regret that we notice a peevish tone in The Montgomery Advertiser's praise of that admirable regiment, the 167th (Alabamians) says the Times. If there were some effective way of replying to The Advertiser, we should certainly make use if it; for it says things that hurt the feelings. It says that "so far as the New York editors are concerned, only New York outfits participated in the war. To the New York editor, the old 69th was the Rainbow Division, and the 27th and 77th Divisions were Pershing's army."

These are hard words, and they are made harder by The Advertiser's next remark, "The soldiers of New York however, gladly acknowledge that they had assistance." There is not a city, State, or village which is not fully as guilty as New York. Has The Advertiser been up at Boston lately? If it has, can it truthfully assert that any Bostonian or New Englander has ever given the slightest indication that he does not think the war was won by the 26th Division? Let The Advertiser roam around Texas and report honestly what it learns of public opinion there. What is the view taken of the services of the Wildcats in their home country?

Brethren, we have all sinned, doubtless, but let us wait for one with out sin to cast the first stone. It is no ignoble feeling that prompts us to cheer our home folks, whether we live in New York or Montgomery and if New Yorkers and Montgomerians and Chicagoans and Philadelphians and Bostonians fix their eyes so closely on the log from near door or across the ocean that they don't happen to notice the equally deserving soldier from Chattanooga or San Francisco, it is of amiable weakness. There is no call for hard language.

A PLAIN WARNING.

Advocates of the Bolshevik doctrine will not be able to extract very much comfort from the eloquent address of Rev. C. E. Jeakins, President of the Provincial Branch of the Great War Veterans at the opening of the Ontario convention in Windsor yesterday. Capt. Jeakins, who was a chaplain with the 1st Canadian contingent, is one of the most prominent leaders of the G.W.V.A. movement in this province and his references to the Bolshevik policy stamp him as an official of the right calibre and a fitting spokesman for such a body as the War Veterans. "Does the future of our land lie with the lowest type of the Bolshevik element?" was one question that Capt. Jeakins asked and he proceeded promptly to answer as follows: "The Association is prepared if it lives up to its ideals, to give an emphatic 'no' to all such questions and attitudes. We must mobilize our strength as an Association that we may combat with all our power those unorganized masses of people which are trying to organize their strength to destroy all existing institutions. There is no place for Bolshevism within the confines of this land and we call upon the Government to run the land at once of any and all who agitate such a programme."

That is the kind of talk that is to be expected from the leader of an organization composed of men who have fought for freedom overseas. The returned soldiers have no desire to see the institutions, as a protection for which they offered their lives, destroyed by the fanatical propaganda of a movement that has made Russia a place of horror and suffering. The Red Flag wavers should take heed of Capt. Jeakins' address. It is a plain warning that the thousands of returned soldiers in this province are utterly out of sympathy with the disloyal mouthings of the agitators who are seeking to made trouble.

Incidentally Peterborough people should note that Capt. Jeakins will be here on Monday night to take part in the opening ceremonies in connection with the new G.W.V.A. Hall.

FRANK McCULLOUGH

They will take him out and hang him one of these days—this man McCullough—because he killed another man. He killed this other man either in passion or because something was wrong with his moral sense. This moral sense had wasted away, or perverted, or was missing altogether. Before he dies, it would be interesting to have him tell what he thinks is wrong with himself. He has been told what is the right path by having sentence passed to indicate that his way means death, violent and horrible. A psychologist should not let such a chance escape to search this man's heart and mind and to ascertain what made him press a revolver to another man's side and shoot.

Society has been discussing the problem of the killer for a long time. It takes up the question spasmodically and then drops it again, not knowing which is the right thing to do. The final or the easiest solution seems to be to say "It is law," and not to go deeper. When that is said, we vote for the complete responsibility of the individual for his actions. We simply find evidence to prove the crime was committed by the accused. The immediate motive also makes interesting reading, but seldom does a murder trial reveal what made the man that made the crime.

If your Bertillon expert can show the criminal tendencies unmistakably charted, and in the case of McCullough the experts have said he has the fixed marks of weak mentality, how much has the criminal to do with his crimes? If he was shaped for crime could he avoid the logical conclusion? Or, to reverse conditions, if a man who is incapable of crime, who is temperamentally unfit to shoot another human being, is to be charted on the white side of the ledger, what made him so typically non-criminal? It may be that the students of the problem will never clear it up; but they may learn to study the characters concerned before they are lost as clinical material. McCullough in the dissecting-room of some medical college may be an interesting exhibit, but McCullough, the live man, about to be hanged, with a crowded life of some kind behind him, is worth a great deal more to society as a study. Is he a product of modern civilization or of unusual environment? He shot a man, it is true, but how many other men of his type, with the same viciousness of face and habit, are walking about, are being born or shaped every day? McCullough no doubt could tell of the tangled pathway that leads to a death cell. It may be drink, or he may never have had a drink; he does not crave cocaine, apparently; it may be the looseness of domestic surroundings or it may not be. But something made him what he is. It is worth far more to the nation and to the world to ascertain what made McCullough than merely to destroy his life. Ninety-nine per cent. of the people might vote tomorrow to save his life, but that is not so much the question as the prospect that the world is each year gnawing crops from the same seed, nourished by the same impure streams, harvested for no sane purpose, allowed to blow on the winds of chance, until they perish in a storm of cold official wrath. Life was worth nothing to McCullough if it be lived to die on a gallows. Nor was his life anything but a harmful thing for the society of which he is one kind of fungus outgrowth. We exterminate the man, but we do not cure the disease by any means with our executional machinery. In dealing with social problems we have not yet learned to look for the contamination at the source as we have learned with epidemics of physical disease such as typhoid fever. We think we have a cure in the isolation of death; we haven't begun to develop a science of moral preventives.—London Advertiser.

A Reception in Apsley to Several Returned Soldiers

Presentations Made to Privates William and Robert Scott and John Coones.

A grand reception for the returned soldiers was given at the "Union Hotel," by Mr. Benj. Coones, on Friday evening, May 9th. As well as the returned soldiers, about 200 guests were present and a most enjoyable evening was spent by all. When all were assembled the old familiar and beautiful song of "Home Sweet Home," was sung. Then Mrs. W. Staples was called upon to read an address of welcome to Ptes. William and Robert Scott and John Coones, the former being presented with chinaware and the two latter with fountain pens. The presentation was made by Mrs. A. Jones. Presentations had been made to other soldiers previously. The following was the address:

Apsley, May 9th.

To Ptes. William and Robert Scott and John Coones:

Dear Friends: We the people of Apsley and surrounding country have assembled here to-night for the purpose of welcoming you home and to congratulate you on your safe return to the spot of all the earth most dear to you.

We are proud of the part you have played for it was no selfish ideal nor glory of conquest that called you to exchange the comforts of civil life for the sufferings of war and risk of death. The Empire will for all time to come have among their most cherished traditions the story of your going forth, of your daring and your doing; of your sufferings and of the glorious victory that has crowned your efforts.

Your labors in the arduous role of soldiers is now ended and you are here this evening safe and sound in the midst of friends who rejoice over your return.

We know that this community counts among its sons men who have proved themselves to be the peers of mankind, some of whom have paid the supreme sacrifice, and others have come back to us laden with honors, manifest in the scars of wounds and in the splendid distinguished order.

There is nothing we can do that would adequately indicate our feeling of the debt that we owe to you for what you have done and suffered in our cause. We have reason to thank you among our Allied Soldiers that our homes are protected our liberties secure and our fears quelled.

We ask you to accept these gifts as a slight token of our "welcome home," and friendship, and hope that your future lives may be crowned with happiness and prosperity.

For every cloud a silvery light,
God wills it so,
For every vale, a shining height;
A glorious morn for every night,
And birth for labor's throe;
For snow's white wing, a verdant field;
A gain for loss.
For buried seed, the harvest yield;
For pain a strength, a joy revealed,
A crown for every cross.

Signed on behalf of your friends.

The Reply.

A most suitable reply was made by Pte. Robert Scott on behalf of himself and the other returned heroes. Three cheers were called for by Rev. C. A. Spence, Anglican clergyman. Then all joined in singing "O Canada."

During the evening, music and singing was rendered by Rev. J. H. and Mrs. Beck and by Rev. C. A. Spence, which was very much appreciated.

Many of the young people who indulge in dancing spent part of the evening in tripping the light fantastic in the town hall. At 12 o'clock a grand supper was provided at the hotel and during the evening all were treated to ice cream. All went home with the thought of having spent one of the most pleasant evenings of their lives.

Interesting Variety in the Spring Modes

The Lace Collar Is Revived.

NEW YORK, May 14.—What a galaxy of colour and splendid magnificence Fifth Avenue assumed for the triumphant return of the home boys. A maze of flags, representative jewels hanging artfully from huge, stately towers and archeries meritorious design were part of the pagan and artistic decorations that lately transformed.

The Long Box Coat.

The effects of the glad home-coming upon the spirits of their kin was obvious by the happy expression that appeared on the face of every observer. Nor was the festive spirit confined to the mental manifestation alone. All the feminine world, with a keen appreciation of the event, set forth to beautify itself for the occasion. This resulted in the resemblance of the gala day to former spring Sundays. The lateness of Easter this year caused many to take advantage of the memorial day for the debut of the Spring Costume.

Small Fur Pieces For Neck.

Suits were most in evidence and it is predicted that they will be more favoured for Spring than the one-piece dress. The smartness of many of these suits lay in the charming little waistcoats that were worn. The suit may be of the simplest lines and most usual design but the presence of an individual little waistcoat will give these whole an air of distinction and style. It is in these details that the secret of the smartness of a suit or frock lies.

Around the neck of every fashionable woman was rightly fastened a single skin which clung closely to her neck. These skins are preferably of sable, but this expensive fur may be substituted by the less pretentious kolinsky, fitch or mink. The fur tightly around the neck gives a charming effect, especially if the wearer has a tailored suit coat showing beneath. For neater in appearance are the single skins than the heavy capes and cosies of fur for Spring.

Other Details of Importance.

A touch of your personal self in a dress always enhances the beauty of it, for your individuality is revealed and the creation harmonizes with the wearer to an almost perfect degree. The newest way sponsored by the critical Dame Fashion of expressing individuality is through the medium of hand-painting This, however, is rather limited to the Russian blouse, that is at present just holding us spellbound. The ease and comfort of these things, plus the style, makes them one of the most valued and favoured fashions of the day.

A FARM PROFIT SHARING SCHEME

(1) Oats grow well in Alberta.
(2) An Alberta wheat field in autumn.

Profit-sharing is often heard of in connection with our industries, but a large farm operated on this basis sounds altogether novel. Such a scheme has, however, been carried on with great success in Southern Alberta for a number of years. It is a hobby of C. S. Noble, who in 1915 made a reputation all over the world by harvesting what was claimed to be a record crop of wheat on 1 two acres the average yield per acre on this area working out at well over fifty bushels to the acre. This is a record that has not been equalled anywhere outside of Alberta, though it is claimed that it was surpassed by another farmer in Alberta in that year of record grain crops.

Mr. Noble has devoted considerable study to the subject of profit-sharing. His belief is that every worker is entitled to a share of the wealth he creates, and in the Noble Foundation, the name under which his company is incorporated, he and his associates have tried to put this theory into practice. This company owns and operates farm property, stores, elevators to the value of over two million dollars.

Any employee who has been long enough with the company to prove his value may become a participant in the scheme and the method of acquiring stock is very simple. The employee is required to pay for ten per cent. of his stock in cash and give a note for the balance at eight per cent. interest. He then makes monthly payments of a certain amount to pay off the note, to which also his dividends are credited. In this manner his stock is paid off fairly rapidly.

Needless to say, many of the employees avail themselves of the opportunity to become shareholders. Last year they drew a dividend of fifteen per cent. on their investment despite the fact that last season was generally considered a dry one. In 1916 a dividend of twenty-five per cent was paid, and in addition a considerable sum was placed in the reserve fund.

The results of the operations of this company are a striking example of the productive capacity of the soil in Southern Alberta and the kind of crops that may be expected if careful and proper farming methods are followed. It is questionable if the land they own is any better than millions of acres of other land in the province, yet last year, which was the dryest season ever experienced, the average yield of wheat was twenty-four bushels of wheat per acre, and, and of oats fifty bushels per acre. Still more interesting is the average for the years 1911 to 1917, which was no less than thirty-eight bushels of wheat and seventy-two bushels of oats. With such yields as these the dividends need not cause any misgiving.

An instance of the prosperity of the Noble Foundation and the faith in the country was the purchase in the fall of 1917 of a large ranch of about 20,000 acres. On this property thirty-five miles of studded post have been constructed, sixty miles of three-wire fencing put up, several first-class buildings erected, five wells drilled and 10,000 acres broken.

The profit-sharing scheme has been successful beyond expectation, many employees have availed themselves of the opportunity to invest their savings in the company and are drawing dividends on their stock. Mr. Noble has proved that a large farm can be operated successfully in good years and bad under good management, and the future of his profit-sharing scheme will be watched with great interest.

0-0-0'S PILED UP RAPIDLY IN RIVAL'S KISS QUOTA, SAYS WIFE

"Other Woman" Promised to Forget "Matinee Idol" Husband, But Asked to be Allowed to See Him "Occasionally," Declares Mrs. Anna H. Speare in Alienation Action.

NEW YORK, May 15.—By the simple addition of three ciphers, kisses sent to Frederick Harvey Spears, young actor, by one of his many admirers, reached the figure of 1,000,000,000, almost as much as was asked in dollars by Carter Glass in putting forth the Victory Loan.

Tearfully, Mrs. Anna Speare, wife of the actor, told a jury before Justice Giegerich, in the Supreme Court yesterday, the story of how her husband was overwhelmed by a deluge of missives breathing of love and kisses. She said the writer was Miss Frances Goldstein, a Brooklyn music teacher, from whom she wanted $25,000 for alienation of her husband's affections.

The osculatory wave; said Mrs. Speare, travelled through the correspondence exchanged between her husband and the young music teacher. First Miss Goldstein sent him one million kisses, she said, and then multiplied the amount generously.

Many fervid letters were produced in court in which Miss Goldstein was alleged to have signed herself, "Your Faithful Babby," while the actor was addressed as "My Darling Boy," "My Heart's Darling," "My Sweetheart Papa," and "Sweetheart Mine."

Being the wife of a matinee idol is not an ideal existence, assured Mrs. Speare, who is a practicing physician. She discovered Miss Goldstein had been attracted to her husband when he appeared at Aeolian Hall. At that time the young music teacher believed Mr. Speare unmarried and, according to Mrs. Speare, "found herself head over heels in love with him."

But after Miss Goldstein learned the matinee idol was a married man she called upon Mrs. Speare at the latter's home to admit her affection for him. "After we had talked a few minutes she was in tears and asked me to permit her write him a letter," testified Mrs. Speare.

"She was just a young silly girl, the kind who fall in love with matinee idols, and my husband was a matinee idol. She told me of seeing my husband at Aeolian Hall and the effect it had upon her."

Mrs. Speare's attorney then read the letter the music teacher wrote to Speare in his own home, in which she confessed she had been blinded and that their friendship must end. Mrs. Speare, she wrote, should be placed on a pedestal.

But contrary to this penitent act, asserted Mrs. Speare, the young woman renewed her relations with the actor. Finally Mrs. Speare in desperation arranged for a meeting of the trio in her home. "My husband admitted his love for her to me, but complained that she, like other women, was running after him, and that he had to make love just to rid himself of her attentions.

"He kissed me and spoke affectionately to me while Frances was looking on. She pledged me on her honour as a woman to break with him. Then, to cap the climax, she asked me if she could see Frederick once in a while, and I said yes, once in a while in my house."

Later Mrs. Speare discovered they were meeting again, and she telephoned to the music teacher for an explanation. Miss Goldstein, said the wife, answered, "I love your husband too much to put him out of my life I am sorry. I have a right to take him from you and keep him, and I will."

Another letter submitted by Mrs Speare contained advice from the music teacher to the actor on the way he could evade the draft. The trial will be resumed today.

KERLOUS' FACE NOT DISORDERLY; THE "KERLESS" ONE WAS MARY

They Met in a Darkened Movie, and His Head Was Carefully Bandaged, but Judge Ruled That She Ought to Have Looked at His Jaw First.

NEW YORK.—A romance with dark and serried details was set forth in the West Side Court when Mary Polius, seventeen years old, had her husband, Kelrous Polius, arraigned on a charge of disorderly conduct. He was discharged after Mrs. Polius had admitted that she could remember more clearly the circumstances of her courtship and its faults than she could the details of the alleged assault for which her husband was arrested.

It appears that the night the armistice was signed, Mrs. Polius, whose maiden name was at that time operative, went to see a motion picture based upon the somewhat novel theme of love. She saw the greatest of celluloid coddlers win the girl of his heart in eight reels and became so engrossed in the play that she began conversing with the person nearest her seat. It was Mr. Polius, who had just received a dislocated jaw in an automobile accident and had come to the motion picture theatre for the express purpose of forgetting his face.

The conversation, lightly entered into, switched from liniment to love, and the following morning, be it known to all concerned, Mrs. Polius was the wife of her husband and went to live with him at No. 440 West Thirty-ninth street. Nothing marred the first day of the honeymoon, but the necessity of peering through the assorted gauze which partially concealed the bridegroom's recently repaired face.

Days passed, as is customary in all narratives, and finally the jaw was so robust as to permit the ceremony of unveiling it. Mrs. Polius looked with wavering glance upon her husband's jaw minus the portiers and gave forth a cry. After which, according to Mr. Polius, love leaped through the transom.

The Court indicated that Mr. Polius could hardly be expected to do better than feature the only face he owns, and made a brief address on the subject of avoiding courtships in the dark and marriages in haste on the morrow.

GOULDS CHARGE FRAUD AGAINST THEIR BROTHER

Family Quarrel Over Administration of Estate of $83,000,000—Family Divided.

NEW YORK. — The heirs of Jay Gould, the railroad financier, who accumulated one of America's greatest private fortunes, are in a quarrel over the administration of the $83,000,000 estate he left them. His son, George J. Gould, chief executor of the estate, is required by a state Supreme Court order signed here to show cause why he should not be removed.

Gould is charged with frauds "perpetrated by him even on his own brothers and sisters," and which resulted in an aggregate loss to the estate of $25,000,000, in affidavits filed in the Supreme Court by his brother, Frank J. Gould, his sister, the Duchess de Talleyrand, formerly Anna, Countess de Castellane, and the guardians of a number of the Gould children of the third generation.

In an answering affidavit, George Gould denies the charges and is supported by a deposition made by Mrs. Helen Gould Sheppard, his sister, formerly Miss Helen Miller Gould. Mrs. Sheppard declares that the charges are "inaccurate and distinctly misleading." Four of the six children of Jay Gould, George, Helen, Edwin and Howard are co-trustees of their father's estate, Frank and Anna were not included as both are residents of France. Frank Gould lives in Paris, where he recently obtained a divorce from his second wife, Mrs. Edith Kelly Gould, a former actress.

Miss N. Quirk, of the United States Department of Agriculture is in charge of the laboratory for research work in contagious diseases.

A suggestion has been made to New Orleans, La., by the Countess de Bienville Amarzit that her daughter be made godchild by the city in honour of her ancestor, Lemoine de Bienville, who founded the city in 1713.

IT'S AN ILL SPRING THAT BLOWS NO GOOD

Late Season Saves Province $40,000 In Forest Protection.

TORONTO—While the lateness of the spring has caused a delay in farm and garden work it has had certain advantages. One of the greatest of these in a financial way, has been the saving which the Department of Lands, Forests and Mines has been able to make because of not having to send its fire rangers into Northern Ontario to patrol the extensive forests as early as customary.

In recent years, the fire rangers, of whom a large number are employed, have begun their duties on May 1st, although a few years ago this patrol work began on April 15th. This year, however, because of the backwardness of the weather and the heavy rains the rangers are not to be sent north until May 15th, although the staff is already complete. This has resulted in a saving of about $40,000.

Quaint Letter From a Belgian Girl to London Man's Wife

Remembers His Advice and Sends a Thousand Kisses to Her.

The following quaint little letter written by the hand of a Belgian girl to the wife of a London, Ontario, soldier, breathes something of the care and affection with which they watched over the Canadian soldiers while they were on foreign soil fighting the battle for freedom, and with what sweet reluctance they now return them to their Canadian loved ones.

"Good-day, Madame: The first time that I write to you it is to tell you that your Monsieur Pat set out for Le Havre on the 8th of April. He was at our home for two and a half months. O madam, if you could only know what distress it was for us to let him go. But a single fact consoles us. We know that he is to return to Canada, that above all he is to return to his wife, for he has spoken so much of you, madam. Monsieur Pat was always talking about how good you were, madam.

Speaks No French.

"He does not know how to speak French, but we understand him by his manner. We understand that he is treading to return, because he is going over the water, and we hope that he arrives in good health.

"As you would understand, Monsieur Pat surmises that madam now has a little boy. I tell you, madam, I love little children very much and I send a thousand good kisses for the little one without knowing him. If the little one resembles his papa he will be noble and honourable.

Not To Walk Alone.

"I shall always remember the words which Monsieur Pat said to me the day he set out. While drinking his coffee he advised me not to go out walking alone. With my mother if I wished, but not alone. I will never forget that. Still, I am seventeen years old. He always had a laughing face and was like a brother in our home. He used to have breakfast with us and always dined with us. O madam, how sad it will be not to wait on Monsieur any more!

We wish that Monsieur and Madam would come to say good-day to us. But alas, it is too far. However, one never knows. And it is easy to come to Belgium now. But while we are waiting can you not give us news of Monsieur Pat as soon as madam gets him back from England? I ask you, dear madam, as soon as Monsieur Pat has returned home, that is to say, in a few days afterwards, to let us know of his safe arrival and send us your photograph, for that will please us very much. Good-bye, madam; a thousand kisses for you, even although we do not know you. I love you already. My parents send you their best wishes."

PRESENTATIONS IN OMEMEE TO THE REV. AND MRS. MACINNES

Sisters Will Exchange Pulpits—Omemee News of Interest—Visitors to Village.

OMEMEE, May 14. — On Friday evening the members of the Presbyterian Church gathered in the basement of the church to spend a social hour and to bid farewell to Rev. and Mrs. MacInnes and daughter, Miss Marie. A short programme was given, after which the following illuminated addresses read by Mrs. Harry Lamb and presentations made by Misses Lillian Lamb, Helen Mackay and Evelyn Sandy:

Rev. and Mrs. MacInnes and friends,—It is with mingled feelings that we have met this evening — sorrow, when we think of the many happy and enjoyable hours we have spent in your company, but rejoicing when we realise that this may be the last time we shall thus meet together.

When you came among us, we have found you, Mr. MacInnes, ever ready and willing to help us in any work that tended to the good of the church and community, and you have shown yourself honourable in all your dealings with us. We would ask you to accept this cane, as a very small token of our respect and esteem for you. Mr. MacInnes and Marie, while you will be missed in every part of the church, it is in the choir that your absence will be particularly felt. Your assistance has been most valuable and greatly appreciated. Realizing this, we would ask you, Mrs. MacInnes, to accept this purse as a little gift from us, and Marie, we give you this ring to be worn in remembrance of your Presbyterian friends in Omemee.

Wishing you all happiness and prosperity in your new home.

Signed on behalf of the congregation,

Mr. F. Sandy, Mr. H. Lamb, Mr. R. Boyd, Mrs. S. Wilson, Mrs. O. G. Williamson.

L. O. L. Presentation.

On Wednesday evening of last week the members of L. O. L. No. 113, Omemee, met in the hall and presented Mr. MacInnes with the following address:

Rev. J. P. MacInnes, Omemee.

Rev., Sir, and Wor. Brother,—It is with feelings of the deepest regret that we, the officers and members of L.O.L. No. 113, Omemee, have learned of your intended departure from amongst us, and we could not think of letting you and your family depart from our midst without showing in some tangible form our deep and heartfelt sorrow at your removal.

We well remember, sir, that when the call to arms was sounded to drive back the Hun from Flanders fields, that you, although a man needed at home, in the church and community, threw everything aside and donned the khaki for God, home and country as a private, although you could have gone as a chaplain with an officer's rank. The Orange Order in this district, aye, in the county, have always held you in the highest esteem, and your name will long be revered among the members of both Primary, District and County Lodge, as you have always been a fearless exponent of the principles of which the Orange Order have always stood. You are well-known in the Grand Lodge, Ontario East, and we feel sure that in the West, the land of great possibilities, you will do much for our noble Order.

Now, Sir, we would ask you to accept this gold piece as a slight remembrance for the many Orange friends you leave in Omemee and Emily, and we hope in the future to have you visit us.

Hoping that God's blessing will always be with you, and knowing you will always take a prominent part in the deliberations of the Orange Order, no matter where stationed, and that our loss will be their gain.

Signed on behalf of the L. O. L. No. 113.

Rev. J. P. Lewis, pastor of the Methodist Church, has made arrangements to exchange circuits with the Rev. Mr. Stillman, of Vancouver, for the coming year, which will begin after Conference. Mr. Stillman has many friends in Omemee, being a son-in-law of Mrs. William Elliot.

MINSTREL SHOW AT THE LYCEUM

The minstrel show put on last night by the Dixie Minstrels, the dramatic section of the Holy Name Society, under the direction of Mr. Frank Murty, in the Holy Name Rooms at St. Alphonsus Lyceum, was in a class by itself. It was not only funny in spots, but funny right through. From the time the curtain went up on the seven coloured gentlemen seated in leisurely fashion about the stage till it dropped after the last insistently encored feature, the audience was kept in side-splitting roars of laughter.

Local Hits.

The local hits, and these were many and varied, were levied against the Council in a great many cases. Even their sports were shown up when one coloured gentleman drew attention to the fact that the councillors could play euchre, pool, etc., but made a poor thing of "bridge." Prohibition came in for a few thrusts, and one member of the cast anounced that no prohibition existed in East Toronto, since McCullough has opened two bars.

As an interlocutor, Mr. Robert Leonard, who made his debut in the role, made a big hit and used every opportunity to bring out the fun in the programme. The end men responded to his lead splendidly.

The Cast.

The end men were: Bones, Tim Collins; Ambrose, E. J. Picard; Sambo, N. E. Girard; Rastus, Dan J. White; Snowball, Wm. J. Moher; Rufus, Mac J. Murty. The clowns were composed of Dode Kelly, Arthur Donahue, Alfred Weatherbead, Harry Rudkins, Willie Carrol, George Leonard, Laurence Embery, Charles Carson, and Freldie Shanpon. The solos given by the end men and chorus members merited the enthusiastic applause they received. Added to these were solos, "Sing Me the Rosary," by Miss M. Allen and "A Story Book Ball," by Miss D. Garliner. A comic sketch by Jack Primeau was much appreciated, likewise a dance by Miss Conroy. Mr. Mark Murty sustained the enviable reputation he has already male for himself by his step lancing. Other features keenly appreciated were a step dance by Sam Houlihan, banjo solo by Frank Park, and a trio by Miss Allen, Mr. Picard, and Mr. Leonard.

Miss M. Allen sang two excellent solos, "The Rosary" and "Till We Meet Again."

The Orchestra.

The orchestral selections were rendered by: Pianist, Miss E. Delaire: first violin, Miss C. McCarthy; serond violin, Mr. Ed. Cassiano; drums and traps, Mr. Frank Lynch.

WAR SAVING STAMPS ARE NOT SUCCESS

Scheme Will Be Modifed or Abandoned—Receipts Are Still Under $2,000,000.

OTTAWA, May 15.—The war savings certificate plan, which was inaugurated by the Government last summer, and which was designed to encourage thrift and bring in money between the larger loans negotiated by the Government, is working, but not working well. Recent reports that the scheme was to be abandoned right off are not justified, but it is only a question of time, seemingly when they will be abandoned or modified. Return to peace conditions has, undoubtedly, wrought a very considerable change.

The issue authorized was $50,000,000, and a very considerable organization was built up to carry out the plan, and a rather extensive advertising campaign in different tongues was inaugurated. Up to date, however, the total receipts are close to but under $2,000,000. The expense thereby attaching is out of proportion to what is coming in.

From the experience it would appear that little "goes" these days without an aggresive campaign to boost it. While the war saving stamps have been advertised in the press and in public places, subscription is, essentially, a voluntary matter. There has been little or no systematic canvassing. The advertising has been cut down of late.

Doesn't Replace Loan

The plan, it is stated, was never designed to replace the war loans, because the maximum amount authorized is only about a seventh of an ordinary war loan, and, when the next one comes in the fall it may be as heavy as those which latterly have preceded it. The national obligations are tremendous and money has to be borrowed, but, if such plans as war savings stamps were relied on, little result could possibly be accomplished. Peace, undoubtedly, put a crimp in the plans at the very start, and the recovery has never taken place. With less than two millions out of fifty millions subscribed, the results are not anywhere near what was hoped for.

Works Well in Schools

The plan has worked well in the schools, where thrift is being encouraged, even though the total receipts are, necessarily, small in the aggregate. After building up an organization there objection to its discontinuance may be forthcoming, and some modified plan may be adopted. At present things are drifting along. Some people are "taking their change" in stamps, but it takes a lot of stamp sales to amount to much, and it is clear that if ever so intended, the plan cannot ever replace the loan system.

FAKE OFFICER HELD IN ARMY SWINDLE FLEES FROM FORT JAY

NEW YORK — Frank Edward Speicher of Arlington, N.J., formerly a sergeant in the Motor Transport Corps of the army, has added another chapter to his spectacular career by escaping from the military prison on Governor's Island. Word to that effect reached Police Headquarters when an officer of the Army Intelligence Bureau, at No. 303 Broadway requested the police to send out a general alarm for him. The officer said that at nine o'clock last Friday night with the aid of two sergeants, Speicher obtained a forged pass and escaped from old Fort Jay, the military prison.

Speicher, in the uniform of a captain of the army, was arrested in Danbury, Conn., several weeks ago by detectives of the Military Intelligence Bureau. The manner of his arrest caused a panic among five hundred residents of Dabury. As Speicher drove up in an automobile he suddenly was surrounded by military detectives, who covered Speicher and a fashionably dressed woman seated beside him with pistols.

More Serious Charges.

It was announced at the time Speicher was wanted as a deserter and on an additional charge of impersonating an officer of the army. The detectives said, however, that more serious charges were pending against him which government officials still were investigating.

As told exclusively in the Herald at the time of his arrest in Danbury, Speicher was suspected of being the master mind in a scheme to swindle the government out of automobiles valued at upwards of $500,000 stored in army camps throughout the country.

The officer of the Army Intelligence Bureau informed Police Headquarters yesterday that investigation by army officials had revealed that Speicher some time ago forged an order from General Drake, in charge of the motor transport service, permitting the deserter to sell 1,000 automobiles and accessories then at Camp Holabird, Baltimore, Md.

Speicher appeared at the camp with the representative of a syndicate of automobile dealers, and, after showing his alleged authorization to a sergeant at the store house, picked out 492 automobiles, which he sold to the representative. He came to this city with the dealer and received $7,500 as part payment for the automobiles, which he sold for $400 each, an aggregate of $196,800. In addition to the sale of the automobiles Speicher arranged to sell to the syndicate thousands of automobile tires.

Flees From City

After he received the $7,500 Speicher fled from the city in an automobile with a woman whom the army intelligence authorities assert was his wife. The automobile, the army officer said yesterday, he purchased for $3,500.

A few days later the representative of the syndicate learned he had been swindled, and army and government detectives immediately began a search for Speicher, which resulted in his capture in Danbury. The disgraced soldier also is wanted in Jersey City for jumping $1,500 bail furnished when he was arrested at Camp Humphries, Va., on an indictment charging embezzlement of more than $30,000 through fraudulent automobile deals.

The crime was committed before he was drafted into the Motor Transport Corps, ad when his case was to come up for trial it was found he had fled. It was said at Governor's Island yesterday that the two sergeants who had aided Speicher to escape have confessed their connection with the affair and are held in solitary confinement in the old prison.

It's Easy to Peel Off All Your Freckles

The contrast between the freckles and the clear skin usually is so great that no bleach can be more than partially successful in obliterating the disfigurements. Ordinary mercolized wax is far better; it literally peels off the freckles. Get an ounce of it at the nearest drug store and to-night spread on enough to completely cover the face; remove in the morning, with warm water. Repeat daily until every freckle has disappeared.

Rough, blotchy, pimpled skin, also common at this season, may be entirely gotten rid of by this same method without discomfort or inconvenience. The effort is decidedly worth while, the new complexion obtained being so clear, smooth and youthful.

Voice of The People

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir, — Please allow me space in your valuable paper to answer 'Interested Ratepayer."

Mr. Ratepayer says: "Do not be deceived by the assertions of some who wish to take liberties on the river bank, and talk about Government Reserve in the deeds for building boat houses."

Now, Mr. Ratepayer, I for one have a boathouse in the locality mentioned and I made sure that I was on Government land before I built. Again Mr. Ratepayer says: "No person has any right or authority to grant any such permits to build boathouses, and no one has obtained liberty of the owner to intrude on people who pay rent for the place." Who is the owner, Mr. Ratepayer I think you are claiming a little more land than you are paying rent for. If you would call on Mr. Peck, the solicitor for the Township of North Monaghan, and ask him to show you the original map of North Monaghan, you might have your eyes opened to the fact that it is you that is intruding as much—and more so—than I.

Mr. Ratepayer, you may have a little more than you bargained for if you try to interfere with any person building a boathouse in the locality mentioned. You would no doubt like to be able to collect rent for the boat houses mentioned but I am afraid you would be badly stung if you tried to collect rent from me. If a government surveyor were to go over the land mentioned I think you would have less land to work, as according to the original map there is 66 feet of a roadway extending from Crawford's grove along the river bank to the Lock's bridge, and you can see for yourself who it is that is intruding.

How about Mr. Reid's boathouse at the G.T.R. bridge? He does not own the property but has a permit and pays a yearly rental, and Mr. Rye is also on a Government lease. This is all Government property, and if they see fit to open this road you and I will do just as they say and if ordered to move our boathouses will have to do so, and vacate the 66 feet of the river bank.

Now, Mr. Ratepayer, my boathouse is there to stay until I get orders to move it, but when I do move it the orders will come from other sources than Mr. Ratepayer's. Drop into Mr. Peck's office, give the map the once-over—and pull in your horns.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space, I remain,

Boat-House Owner.

To the Editor,—

Sir: In your edition of the 6th inst. I noticed that "Jimmy" Gates would soon start his spring cleaning, and might possibly receive $1.25 for each "stray and wandering" dog he takes into his fold. The following suggests a salary.

As a taxpayer and dog owner, appreciating the many difficulties the official dog-catcher is up against I would recommend that he change his tactics this year. Last year it was probably necessary "to put the fear of the Lord" into many careless dog owners, but now that "Jimmy" has shown us he means business, why not occasionally give us a note of warning through the press, and enlist the services of the dog owners. As a start "Jimmy" give us a list of the "limits of the life of dogdom."

Yours for the elimination of "useless bad feeling" and the promotion of "healthy co-operation."

A Taxpayer.

Two Years' Supply of Meat Products to be Sent to Europe

WASHINGTON, D.C.—A method of disposing of about 100,000,000 cans of beef and more than 50,000,000 pounds of bacon, included in the surplus food stocks of the army, has been agreed upon between the War Department and representatives of the packing industry.

The department announced that it had accepted the recommendation of the packers that the goods be disposed of for export to relieve the food situation in Europe, but that should this be impossible, the director of sales would control the sale in this country, fixing the prices and method of distribution, with the packing industry acting as an agent.

The surplus products to be disposed of were said to represent the combined output of American packing houses for five months during the war, when the plants were kept in operation continuously, and to equal a normal production of over a period of two years.

Locomotive cranes, railroad cars and other equipment to the value of $16,000,000 have been turned over by the War Department to the Railroad Administration for sale to the railroads at market prices. Included in the equipment is all the 80 pound rail which has been declared surplus by the War Department and about 1,300 tank cars.

Spooning Couples on Steps of Church Rebuked by Pastor

Father Varron, of Brooklyn, Also Publishes Criticism of Boy Gamblers and Rent Profiteers.

NEW YORK.—Spooning couples on the front steps of the church, boy gamblers in the vestibules and profiteering landlords are the subject of an article printed in the Monthly Messenger, official organ of the Roman Catholic Church of Our Lady of Perpetual Help, Fifth avenue and Fifty-ninth street, Brooklyn. The Rev. James Varron is pastor of the church.

The article, which is in editorial form, says in part:

"As the summer season approaches lounging about the church recesses is bound to be renewed. The coping about the church terrace is being used by lazy fellows and is a rendezvous for frivolous boys and girls.

"Spooning couples of older ages also use the inner vestibules for trysting places. The Sixth avenue entrance has become a 'gambling den.' A change of these conditions is imperative. If this warning does not produce a greater sense of propriety and decency in the guilty ones drastic measures will have to be adopted to put an end to the abuse."

Asked yesterday for the reason for the publication of the article, Father Varron said he was surprised that the parishioners had so little respect for the church property. He said that many complaints had been received, and that when appeals from the altar were ignored efforts to bring the abusers of the church grounds to their senses was resorted to by publication.

Landlords of the parish who have steadily advanced rents of the parishioners to such an extent that many of the church members have been compelled to move," are criticised in the article.

Champions of American Expeditionary Force Return to Paris After Tour of Area of Occupation.

PARIS, May 15. — The champion boxers and wrestlers of the American Expeditionary Forces returned to Paris to prepare for the Inter-Allied games, after a two weeks' tour of the area of occupation. The champions drew large crowds of soldiers throughout the area based on Coblenz. They were sent on tour because very few soldiers were able to get to Paris to see the championship bouts.

While the touring party was at Neuenahr, a watering place near the Rhine, Leo Paterson, a negro and the lightweight champion of the A.E.F., bathed in the tub formerly used by the former German Emperor.

Tells How She Killed Chicago Publisher Over a Miniature

Mrs. Trepagnier Says Volland Defrauded Her of Washington Painting and Choked Her.

CHICAGO, Ill.—Mrs. Vera Trepagnier, of New Orleans, who shot and killed Paul F. Volland, a publisher, at his office, talked freely to-day of the shooting, the cause of which was a miniature of George Washington. The painting, which is more than a hundred years old, was known as the "John Trumbull miniature," she said. It was presented by Trumbull to a Virginia bride as a wedding gift and many years after came into the possession of Mrs. Trepagnier, now a widow sixty years old.

"In my State men may lie, gamble, cheat in business, but they do not lay hands on women," she said. "I cannot deny shooting Paul Volland; he choked me. I do not remember firing, but I recall his saying, 'You've killed me.' His finger relaxed from my throat and he fell before me. Then I grew faint and fell, too. I had not meant to shoot him. He had robbed me, I felt, of the only dear thing left to me. He had evaded me for two years."

She said she was born in Belfast, Ireland, the daughter of a shipbuilder, and came to America when a small girl. She married Ellis Trepagnier, of New Orleans, a sugar planter, who died after the loss of his fortune, she said. Friends obtained for her a position in Washington, where she met Volland. He was reputed a connoisseur on art, and as she had studied art in her early days, she showed him the miniature, whose history he knew. He wanted the publisher's rights of reproduction, and they reached an agreement as to royalties. Thereafter, she said, she could get no satisfaction from the publisher. It became known to-day that the art publisher, who was forty-five years old, was engaged to a young woman of twenty-two.

Mrs. Trepagnier was held for the Grand Jury without bond on a charge of murder. On the advice of counsel she declined to testify at the inquest.

PROTESTS FREE IMPORT OF MACHINERY BY CORPORATION

Agreement Between Government and Dominion Iron and Steel Corporation Criticized by Senator Nicholls—Must Take Every Opportunity of Augmenting Finances.

OTTAWA, May 15.—In the Senate Senator Nicholls protested against the agreement between the Government and the Dominion Iron and Steel Corporation which permits the corporation to import free of duty certain machinery and supplies. Senator Nicholls said that a return brought down in the Senate disclosed that no specific order-in-council had been passed permitting such free importation, and he asked under what regulation such authority was given. He maintained that in view of the financial situation which faced the country, it was not the time to permit goods from other countries to enter Canada duty free, competing with Canadian labour and manufacture and, at the same time, decreasing revenue.

Financial Stringency

The financial situation was a very serious one. A national debt which before the war stood at $46.50 per head, now stood at $271.80 per head. Commitments for the coming year were $800,000,000, with estimated revenue to meet them not higher than $300,000,000. There was therefore a very grave gulf to bridge; and, manifestly, with the great need for production, for sufficient work to absorb our returnnig armies, it was not the part of wisdom to include a clause in such an agreement as that made with the Dominion Steel Corporation admitting millions of dollars of duty free material into Canada, depriving Canadian manufacturers and Canadian workingmen of the profit and work of making it.

At the request of Senator Turriff, discussion of the point raised was adjourned until next Tuesday.

Amendment to Judges Act

When Senator Ross' bill to amend the Judges' Act came up for a third reading, Senator Power moved to amend it by striking out clauses three and four, which require judges to file a statement at the end of each year with the Minister of Justice, declaring that they have drawn remuneration from no source other than provided by their salaries. Senator Power argued that this requirement imposed an indignity upon the judges of the country. After considerable discussion, the amendment was rejected by a vote of 29 to 23.

Senator Power then moved another amendment aimed to except judges who lecture at law schools and colleges from the provision of the bill which requires them to devote their entire time to their judicial duties. This amendment was carried by a vote of 21 to 20.

A SUMMARY OF FARM CONDITIONS

Fall Wheat is Looking Very Promising—Cattle Market.

The following is a summary of reports made by Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:—

Vegetation is considered to be about two weeks backward, but there is much vigor apparent in that which is showing, and growth is likely to rush forward with the warm weather.

Only a very small acreage of field crops was got in during the week, as it was impossible for some to get upon the soaked ground. While a few farmers on high or well drained land have practically finished sowing their spring grains, others have very little in; generally speaking, probably not more than half of the intended spring field work has as yet been done. There are scattered reports of mangels being sown, but roots generally will have to wait for the tardy grain sowing. The Elgin representative, however, says that some land intended for oats will be planted to corn. Tobacco beds in Essex are in good condition. Essex also reports that a considerable acreage of early potatoes has been planted.

Fall wheat is still looking very promising, more especially on well drained land.

Clover Uneven

Clover is much more uneven in appearance, as last year's seeding did not do very well, and some early spring heaving has left its mark.

Peach trees are in bloom in some counties, and are making a good showing. Apples, cherries, and small fruits generally also look very promising.

Cattle are on pasture in large numbers, in some cases rather too early. Shipments of beef animals are said to be light; prices range from 10c to 11½c a lb. Milk is in good flow, and dairy cows continue to be in strong demand. In Haldimand they are bringing $145.

Hogs are not moving in such large numbers as usual. Prices given range from $20 to $21.50 a cwt. Little pigs are treasured. In Wentworth they are valued at $20 a pair, and have sold in Brant at from $11 to $12 each. A farmer in Frontenac had an offer of $135 for a litter of twelve.

Horses are not in much demand generally. They are selling in Norfolk at from $100 to $175, the average for good farm chunks being $126.

Hay is scarce at from $25 to $30 a ton. Many farmers are also short of ensilage, which has been forcing them to put some cattle to grass a little too soon.

Roosevelt Defended Story

Late ex-President Proved Quick and Doughty Champion of "The Unpardonable Sin" When New York Library Balked.

The late Theodore Roosevelt, ex-President of the United States, who was engaged in adding to his reputation as one of the doughtiest of American fighters in any field where right seemed to need a champion, when his untimely death resulted, had an important part in the controversy which developed in New York City soon after "The Unpardonable Sin," Major Rupert Hughes' well-known book, remarked not long ago when Donable Sin," Major Rupert Hughes' well-known form by Harry Garson; well known producer, with Blanche Sweet in the leading role, under the direction of Marshall Neilan, at the Grand, to-day, Friday and Saturday matinee daily.

Major Hughes, who will always be grateful to Colonel Roosevelt for the part he took in defending this book, remarked not long ag, when he saw the picture version in New York, that it would always remain one of his regrets that Colonel Roosevelt had not lived to see the power for good which had been evolved from the story and so strikingly presented in the photoplay.

"The Unpardonable Sin," in story form, first appeared as a serial in the Red Book, and was later published in book form by Harper & Bros., New York. It had already achieved national popularity, when Major Hughes himself, quite by accident discovered that New York City public library officials were hampering the circulation of the story on the grounds that its subject matter was not conducive to the best interests of the general public. Investigation proved that while The Unpardonable Sin' was available in a number of the branches of the New York Public Library, the number of copies on hand was not nearly adequate to supply the demand of those who wished to read it, and, moreover, that it was of the desire of the public library officials that the general public be afforded the same opportunity to read "The Unpardonable Sin" that was accorded them in the case of other pieces of popular literature.

When this condition was brought to light, ex-President Roosevelt wrote one of his characteristic letters, criticizing the public library people for their unauthorized censorship, and advocating the widest possible circulation of the story in the interests of public welfare.

"The Unpardonable Sin" had sold in the hundreds of thousands before this little controversy developed, but immediately upon the publication of the Roosevelt letter its sales were almost doubled, until it became the best seller of its day.

"The Unpardonable Sin" has a war background—but it is anything but a war picture. Its greatest interest lies in the recital of the love and adventure of two typical Americans—one a plucky little California girl, and the other a young college man from the Middle West. Blanche Sweet, widely-known screen star, makes the most of splendid opportunities offered her in the role of the girl, and Matt Moore plays opposite her in the role of the young collegian

CRERAR AND CARVELL LIKELY TO LEAVE THE CABINET SOON

Borden Will Have Hard Task to Choose Successors — Temperance Legislation Severely Criticized, But Rowell Keeps Silent.

TIME TO STOCK

OTTAWA, May 14.—Sir Robert Borden is coming home. The glad news has flashed under the seas and is confirmed by official Ottawa. Whether he comes to abide with us permanently, or is still emulating President Wilson and just paying us a visit, is a matter of conjecture. One can hardly believe that the peace treaty could be valid without his signature, so the one best guess is that he will merely stay long enough to put his "D.K." on the budget, and perhaps the Franchise Act, nominate successors to a couple of Ministers who don't like the Cabinet climate, and hop back to Paris to make certain that the peace of the world is assured.

As to the retiring Cabinet Minister, there is a whisper from inside circles that Hon. T. A. Crerar is going because he wants to, and that Hon. F. B. Carvell is packing his trunk partially because he is being squeezed out. Fighting Fearless Frank was a lion in Opposition, but as a Minister even his best friends blush when they speak of him as a success. Then, from a political standpoint, he has neither been fish, flesh nor good red herring. The Unionists never felt they were sure of him, while the Opposition have divided their time between wondering if he was coming back, and whether they wanted him if he did come. Now it appears sure that he's going—and neither side appears to care very much where, just so long as he does go.

Who Will They Be?

Of course these are two Liberals out of a Cabinet that the Opposition sometimes declares was never put on a regular fifty-fifty basis. Consequently it will be necessary for Sir Robert to select two Liberal-Unionists to succeed them. He also has to pick two men who can carry their constituencies, so he hasn't a very wide choice. That may be one reason why a whisper has come from a usually well-informed source that one of the selections will be Dr. Manion, the young Fort William doctor, who served with the forces overseas, and the other Mr. Hume Cronyn, of London. Some harbour work, it is said, might help Dr. Manion's chances of re-election, while Mr. Cronyn has a city constituency, and is looked on as a strong candidate, and it must be admitted that Sir Robert might make worse choices. Both have more than average ability and express rather national views on the matters that come before the House. Of course, Dr. Manion is of the Catholic faith, but surely Hon. Chas. Doherty is about ready to retire on another pension.

Votes and Thirsts

But the House didn't even think of Sir Robert, and his Cabinet problem—for a part of the afternoon at least. It was wrestling with prohibition; and when a statesman is called upon to choose between his own thirst, which is generally real, and the temperance vote, which is more or less mythical, and all the more terrorizing on that account, he generally puts in a bad half hour. The resolution, which precedes the bill was in the name of Sir Thomas White, and he was its only defender. Everybody knew that Hon. Wesley Rowell was the man behind, but he sat silent if unashamed while four of his own followers took cracks at his favorite legislation. Nor can it be said that Sir Thomas in his temperance argument in any way reminded you of the late lamented John B. Gough. He laboured like a lawyer talking to an unsympathetic jury. The trend of his remarks was that the order-in-council called for absolute prohibition during the war, and for a year after the signing of peace. Consequently the legislation was simply to carry out the intent of the policy laid down by Sir Robert Borden and approved by the Government.

Stocks Almost Exhausted

The four critics of the measure were all Unionists, and it was noticed that two of them hailed from Winnipeg where the cellar stocks are reported almost exhausted, and of them all Major Andrews made the hit of the day. He was simply, candidly and honestly against total prohibition, and he discussed the question in all its phases with the utmost frankness and good nature. He analyzed the different votes that would be affected, and probably decided he couldn't please them all, so he gave his own views. For one thing he thought he was old enough to know what was good for him and what wasn't. "If I take coffee for a week," he said, "I am sick. But if I take a little whisky and water with my meals a mail right." Everybody, excepting perhaps, Mr. Rowell and one or two of his following, laughed approvingly and applauded. Then the major quoted medical opinion to show that whisky was a sedative, and opined that "the frazzled nerves of a war-racked world" needed a sedative. Also he drew comparisons. He looked at the "beer swilling Englishmen" and found they had done fairly well during the war. He turned to "whisky-sodden Scotland" and found every man that could march had been "on his way" to Flanders. And then he popped up for inspection the unspeakable Turk who, from infancy, had been all his life a temperance man. Also Major Andrews thought "the subterreanean traffic a frightful price to pay for temperance."

Time to Stock:

There was much admiration for the major's courage and also much shaking of heads over his lack of political sagacity. But even prohibitionists admitted that they would like to have an opportunity of voting for such a man. Then somebody remembered that at the last election he had the record majority for the Dominion. It takes a long time to convince some people that honesty is the best politics. Stewart, of Lanark, was the most outspoken of the other critics. He argued that the time that elapsed between the passage of the order-in-council and the date set for going into effect was for the purpose of letting those with the price stock up. He thought it the most dangerous form of class legislation and declared there was no demand for it from the provinces, who, under the Doherty Act, could have enacted it if they had so desired.

Hume Cronyn, of London, proposed an amendment to cut off the sale of native wine in Ontario. He didn't see why one class should sell liquor of no limited alcoholic strength while others had to stick to the temperance grades. He was ruled out of order, but will push his amendment at a later stage.

But, of course, the resolution passed. The temperance men wanted it. The other fellows didn't, but were afraid to say so. They reconciled their consciences with, "Let these fellows go as far as they like. The further they go the sooner the reaction will come."

Well, perhaps!—Telegram.

Everybody Help

Of course we couldn't all go overseas, but those of us who didn't go can show our appreciation of those who did by helping them along in this campaign for funds for their new home. Peterborough may well be proud of the way in which her men responded to the nation's call and we stay-at-homes should help and encourage those of our soldiers who have been fortunate enough to return.

This new home on Murray Street is a memorial to those who fought and fell, as well as being a gathering place for returned men. It is a place where they can gather of an evening and fight their battles over again in comfort. It should have the wholehearted support of every resident in the city—and no doubt it will.

It is now up to all of us to give to the limit that the boys may furnish their clubhouse as comfortably as possible. $15,000.00 is the sum asked from the citizens of Peterborough, and there isn't the slightest doubt but that this objective will be reached as easily as every objective was reached in France by the brave lads for whose benefit it is being raised.

The generosity and appreciation of the Peterborough Public is relied upon in this as in all other Patriotic Campaigns conducted in Peterborough, to put this Campaign Over the Top without a doubt.

STRIKING STORY OF A VERY REMARKABLE BUSINESS SUCCESS

The Discovery of Tanlac and the Perfection of its Formula.

DAILY CAPACITY

(By Harrison Vaughn.)

ATLANTA, Ga., May 14.—This is a story of Success—the kind everybody likes to read. Surpassing interest always attends the telling of how a great business has been built. This city presents a very striking instance of remarkable business success which has been achieved in a very short space of time.

The announcement has just been made here that Tanlac, the well-known medicine, which readers of this paper have often seen mentioned in the advertising columns, is today the most largely sold medicine of its kind on the American market; that in little more than four years' time it has attained a definite position of pre-eminence among proprietary medicines. Without doubt this statement will be read with the keenest interest, not only by druggists but by the general public as well.

Briefly summarized, the outstanding incidents in this story of success are: The discovery of Tanlac; the perfection of its formula by painstaking study, extensive research and exhaustive tests; the beginning of its manufacture in a small way; the instant demand for the product created by successful use, and finally the establishment of the large and magnificent laboratories at Dayton, Ohio, occupying more than 60,000 square feet of floor space, to supply the ever-increasing demand for Tanlac. The daily capacity of 30,000 bottles at this plant has at times, in fact, been found insufficient to supply the trade requirements. A branch laboratory with 8,000 bottles daily capacity has been established at Windsor, Ontario, Canada, in order to supply the Canadian demand.

The marvelous expansion of this business will easily stand comparison with any of the remarkable business achievements of recent times. As one of the largest drug jobbers of the United States said recently it requires some effort of the imagination to realize the amount of business that is now being done by this concern, adding his belief that the nation-wide popularity of Tanlac gained in such a short time is nothing less than phenomenal.

This latter statement was made following the announcement in the daily papers that over twelve million bottles of Tanlac had been sold in four years, up to Jan. 1st, 1919, and that during the first ten weeks of the present year over one million bottles had been distributed—thereby establishing a record which has perhaps never before been equalled in the history of the drug trade.

A Big Seller

The statement that Tanlac is now the most popular preparation and the biggest seller among all ready-made medicines is declared to be neither a surmise nor an estimate, but is based upon careful investigation and is supported by the signed statements of scores of the largest drug jobbers of the United States and Canada. This now famous remedy has become just as well known across the International boundary line as it is throughout the United States.

The broad and progressive policies and the splendid selling organization originated and perfected by Mr. G. F. Willis, international distributor of Tanlac, are among the best examples of method and system yet produced in business and they have been closely followed by many other enterprising and successful concerns.

The Tanlac people have always maintained that the best advertisement is a satisfied customer and to that end have always sought to make customers—not mere sales—and to build up that character of public confidence which means business integrity and spells lasting success. Yet like all concerns doing a nation-wide business, they have also recognized the value and necessity of a general presentation of their preparation by the use of clean, reliable newspaper advertising.

But Tanlac advertising "copy" is essentially different from most others. It consists almost wholly of the direct, signed statements of those who have used the medicine. These people are distinctly identified by name and address. They tell very plainly what was the matter with them and what Tanlac has done for them. Tanlac advertising has been happily free from "cure-all" exaggeration. Instead of advancing extravagant claims as to what their preparation "will do," its manufacturers and distributors prefer to let those who have used Tanlac tell in their own way what it has done.

Their sensible business philosophy was briefly but forcefully stated by one of the Tanlac executives recently when he said: "With all due regard to the value of newspaper space publicity alone would not create nor maintain the lasting strength and popularity of this preparation. Tanlac undoubtedly has merit and extraordinary power as a medicine, which have confirmed its value in the minds of the people. No matter where you go Tanlac is a household word and is one of the most widely talked of medicines in the world today."

ELEVEN YEAR OLD BOY DROWNED AT HEALY FALLS.

Ralph Bennett Meets Death When Car Breaks Through Bridge Railing.

Ralph Bennett, the eleven-year-old son of Mr. Bennett, lock master at Healy Falls, was drowned when the automobile that his father had just purchased and was learning to drive, got out of control and dashed through the east railing of the bridge into the river.

The car dropped into the water head-first, and turned around, facing up stream. The father, thinking that it would slide out into the deep water, handed the boy out to Mr. Wm. McLaughlin, who, witnessing the accident, had run to the river plunged in and had waded nearly out to the automobile. The boy's struggles took McLaughlin off his feet, and the two of them went under. The unfortunate lad never came to the surface again, and Mr. McLaughlin succeeded in getting to a dredge nearby after a hard struggle.

Mr. Bennett stayed in the car, which never moved from the spot where it dropped, and was taken off by a boat.

JAPANESE OBTAIN GREAT OIL LEASES IN MEXICO

MEXICO CITY.— A Japanese government commission, headed by Baron Hasegawa, captain of engineers, has virtually completed an investigation of the petroleum possibilities in the Tampico region, it was learned here. The Department of Industry and Commerce states that the commission intends to conduct surveys in other parts of the republic and that concessions for oil explorations in the northern part of the country, particularly in the states of Durango and Chihuahua have been obtained by the Japanese.

These activities constitute only the phase of what apparently is an almost frenzied campaign of exploration throughout the republic by Mexican and foreign interests. Reports are common that indications of oil have been discovered, not only in undeveloped fields in Durango and Chihuahua, but on the Pacific coast and also on the Isthmus in the states of Chiapas and Tabasco.

Mr. Cyril Maude in "The Saving Grace"

Miss Laura Hope Crews, who comes to The Grand, Thursday, May 22, as leading lady with Mr. Cyril Maude in "The Saving Grace", is very well known to local playgoers through her appearance here with Henry Miller, Leo Ditrichstein and other stars. Miss Crews has herself appeared in a stellar capacity, having been seen in New York a season or two ago as a star in "Romance and Arabella". Indeed Miss Crews may be said to have begun her theatrical career as a star, since her first appearance, in California, as Editha in the play, "Editha's Burglar." After playing that, and other child's roles Miss Crews retired from the stage to devote herself to her education, but she was still a young girl when she reappeared as a member of the Alcazar Stock Company in San Francisco. Following her engagement there she played for several seasons with the Murray Hill Theatre Stock Company in New York and then became leading lady with Henry Miller. With his organization she appeared in London a few seasons ago and there met Mr. C. Haddon Chambers, the author of "The Saving Grace," who selected her to play an important role in his earlier comedy, "The Tyranny of Tears". This role she played with very great success in the American production of the play. Miss Crews is at her best in a character such as she plays in "The Saving Grace"—a sweet, very feminine and charming woman of amiable disposition She is most graceful and winsome in the part and in it has made one of the greatest triumphs of her career.

CITY LEAGUE TEAMS READY FOR OPENER

At a meeting of the City League Executive, final arrangements were made for Saturday's double-header, which will open the season. It was decided that the games on Saturday will be seven inning affairs, as will be the games scheduled for next week, after which the fixtures will be of the orthodox length.

The first game at the Riverside Park on Saturday, between the War Veterans and Orientals, will start at 2 o'clock sharp, and will be preceded by a parade from the Central Park, headed by the G.W.V.A. Band.

Although the managers have not definitely announced the batteries, Wade and Carney for the Veterans, and Kirn, McNeeley and Soden for the Orientals look like a probable choice.

The second battle will start ten minutes after the first contest, and will bring together the Matthews-Blackwell and the DeLaval outfits.

Both teams will introduce a number of new faces to the fans, while a number of old favorites, who have been playing the bigger game overseas, will also be out. Butcher, Hagerman, Holyman and Barrie are among the returned men slated to play for Matthews-Blackwell, while it is rumored that Cavanah will be found wearing a De Laval uniform on Saturday. Ray Rose is also likely to be out with the D. L's, and the south end team will likely be strong.

BRITISH FOOD MINISTRY NOT TO BUY CANADIAN CHEESE

LONDON, May 15.—Replying to Kennedy Jones, M.P. for Hornsey, in the House of Commons, Right Hon G. H. Roberts, Minister of Food, said the Food Ministry did not propose to purchase the exportable supply of Canadian cheese in the present season, but to leave it to private traders, who would purchase the cheese on their own account.

GRAND DUKE HAD RASPUTIN FLOGGED

Was the Only Man in Russia who Dared do it, is Claimed.

LONDON, — Lieutenant - Colonel Napier, formerly head of the British military mission with the Russian army in the Caucasian, and who was attached to the staff of the Grand Duke Nicholas, tells a story of Rasputin, the hypnotist monk of the late Czar.

Rasputin one day bounced into the presence of the Grand Duke at General Headquarters exclaiming, "Do you know who I am?".

"Rasputin, aren't you?" the Grand Duke replied.

"Well, I am going to have you flogged this time, and if you come here again I will have you hanged," said the Duke.

Rasputin was flogged and the Grand Duke was the only man in Russia at that time who dared to have it done.

BAN TO REMAIN ON OLEO.

Word Comes From Ottawa—Manufacturers Are Aghast at the Government's Termination of War Industry.

Toronto people in the trade learn from Ottawa that the Government will not lift the peace ban on oleomargarine. At present it is being manufactured and imported under a war measure order-in-Council.

The two manufacturers in Toronto were very much surprised that the industry—practically a war industry—which had grown with such rapidity, is to be wiped out.

O. W. Waller, manager of the Swift Canadian Company, could not believe that the word was true. "It is wrong legislation," he said. "The labouring man will suffer again. Here he can buy margarine for 38 cents, when he has to pay 65 cents for butter. People will certainly be up against it."

A Big Output.

The Swift Canadian have three factories in Canada and have turned out for Canadian consumption during the past twelve months over a million pounds of margarine. The Harris people in their plant have installed the special machinery and also invested heavily for the manufacture of the butter substitute. Their output is about the same.

"A lot of special machinery will have to be scrapped," said another oleo man, "and the companies will have a heavy loss, but I don't think that the information is true."

It is, however, realized that the dairy interests, which seem to have a very powerful influence at Ottawa, have been continuously campaigning against the sale of oleomargarine. Importations of oleomargarine have not been heavy.

ANYTHING YOU WANT IF YOU ASK FOR IT, IS THE BOLSHEVIK PLAN

M. Makowskie, Secret Bolshevik Agent in Berlin, Reveals Amazing Theories—Admits Bolsheviki May Desert Bolshevism—Printing Money.

BERLIN.—The Russian Soviet Government will abandon Bolshevism if it finds that doctrine is not the proper method to reach its goal, communism, M. Makoski, Bolshevik secret agent in Berlin, declared, in an interview.

"The Bolsheviki have no definite program, since Premier Lenine holds that what is 'medicine' for the country today may be 'poison' tomorrow and platforms cannot be made permanent," said Makowski.

"The aim of the Bolsheviki is Communism and equality for everybody. We may find out eventually that Bolshevism is not the proper means for attaining our end. We will then act accordingly and somehow reach Communism by opportunism, but always work toward Communism.

"We believe that ultimately everything must be socialized. Everything must belong to the State and no one must own anything. A person may have anything he wants simply by asking for it. That is our Utopia, which we may not reach for a long time, of course.

"We hold that the greatest enemy of Communism is the capitalistic system. Naturally the capitalists will not divide up equally, so we are abolishing indivdtual capitalists and making the State the only capitalist. Since the State exists for everybody, the entire proletariat benefits. We make everyone proletarian, or worker, either with their hands or their heads, the capitalist who has his wealth taken away by the State becomes a member of the proletariat as a skilled head of a plant.

"This is the point we have reached in Russia. We cannot make the complete Communism in one stride, so we have begun by socialising practically all the wealth. A few industries are still unsocialized. When they have been taken over, and all the wealth is taken over, and production has been brought up to a point above normal, we will abolish money and will simply give every man what he wants.

"Until we have produced enough of everything so that everyone has all he desires, we will have to use money or a card system of distribution. In some things we already have the card system. But we are automatically getting money out of use by printing it as fast as we can. As soon as we can get more machines from America we will print still more.

"Eventually it will become so plentiful and worthless that nobody will want it. By that time our system of State production will be so developed that there will be more than enough of the necessities of life for everyone. The luxuries will be distributed by the card system.

"Of course our credits with other countries will be worthless at first. But we will buy what we need with gold and jewels which the State now controls. You can have our gold. We don't want it. We are glad to get rid of it. It represent capital and we will gladly pay you everything we have that represent money values until we have nothing of the kind left.

"Then we will deal by credit. The State will own everything and by then we figure other states will of necessity be in the same status. At least, all of Europe will be so. It cannot possibly get out from under the debts which this war has heaped upon it.

"Only Communism can save Europe, although Great Britain and America probably can emerge from their load of debts with a capitalistic system, since they are not so far in debt and can profit by trade. They will be the conservative west, which will be pitted against Communist Europe."

RE-SELL LAND TO SOLDIERS AT COST

Authorities Have Power to Act at Once—Receiving Applications.

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, May 15.—The power to act immediately in connection with expropriation of private farming lands in prairie provinces was really conferred on the Soldiers' Land Settlement Board when the order-in-council was passed on February 11th, was the statement made to-day by G. E. Whitaker, of the local soldiers' settlement office. "The Soldiers' Settlement Bill as introduced in the House recently," continued Mr. Whitaker, "only implement the order-in-council, which will only apply to the three provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba. The idea of the Government is simply to expropriate large tracts of farming land now in private hands, and divide them and re-sell to soldiers settlers at cost."

"So far as the loaning privileges are concerned, the conditions are not changed in any particular from what they have been right along," added Mr. Whitaker. "We are receiving applications every day, and the number seems to be increasing during the last few weeks."

COAL DRIVERS REMOVED WHISKEY

One Man Paid a Fine of Two Hundred Dollars and Costs.

Two coal drivers of a local coal company, while delivering coal, stole a quantity of whisky out of an East City residence, which was not missed until it was not in evidence this morning for an early bracer. The Police Department was notified, and soon Chief Thompson's plainclothesmen rounded them up and landed them in Police Court this morning.

Besides the coal driver was another local young man, whose room had been used as a storehouse for the liquor.

The Magistrate was, under the O.T.A., compelled to impose fines on all three, and the two coal drivers drew a fine of $20, and $9.10 costs, each. The other young man, on a charge of keeping liquor in a place other than his private residence, drew a penalty of $200, and costs, $209.10.

NEW YORK.—Howard Beatty, a Porto Rican, of No. 243 East Sixty-third street, New York, was put on trial before Judge Stickel and a jury in the Court of Quarter Sessions in Newark, N.J., on a charge of abducting Viola Mueller, fourteen years old, of No. 20 Baldwin street, Newark, whose disappearance for nine days gained her much notoriety. She was arrested in a boarding house in New York.

The girl testified that she met Beatty in the Hudson Tube station in Newark and asked her to show him about the city as he was a stranger. She went to several picture theatres with him and some days later came to New York to meet him, but he failed to appear. She did not see him again until he was arrested. Beatty's counsel, Frank M. MRS. BALFAME

CHAPTER XXIV

The police, nettled by the sensational coup of the press, made a real effort to discover the identity of the man or woman who had fired the second pistol. For a time they devoted their efforts to implicating Frieda and young Kraus, but the pair emerged triumphantly from a grilling almost as severe as the third degree; furthermore, there was an absolute lack of motive. Conrad had never evinced the least interest in politics; and that Old Dutch should have commissioned the son of whom he was so proud to commit murder when gun-men could be hired for twenty-five dollars apiece was unthinkable to any one familiar with the thoroughly decent home life of the family of Kraus.

Old Dutch's establishment was more of a beer garden than a common saloon, and responsible for a very small proportion of the inebrity of the County seat. He and his sons drank their beer at the family board, but nothing whatever behind the bar. As for Conrad, Jr., industrious, ambitious, persistent, but without a spark of initiative, obstinate and quick-tempered but amiable and rather dull, his tastes and domestic ideals as cautious as his expenditures, it was as easy to trump up a charge of murder against him because he happened to have seen Mrs. Balfame leave her house by the kitchen door a few moments before he heard the shot that killed her husband, as it was to fasten the crime upon the unlovely Frieda because she ran home untimely with a toothache.

Frieda confessed imperturably to her attempt to blackmail Mrs. Balfame, adding (in free translation) that while she had no desire to see her arrested and punished, she saw no reason why she should not turn the situation to her own advantage. When Papa Kraus was asked if he had counselled the girl to demand five hundred dollars as the price of her silence, he repudiated the charge with indignation, but admitted that he did remark in the course of conversation that no doubt a woman who had killed her husband would be pleased to rid herself of a witness on such easy terms, and that it was Frieda's pious intention—and his own—that the blood-money should justify itself in the coffers of the German Red Cross.

All this was very reprehensible, of course; but an imperfect sense of the minor social and legal immoralities was no argument that such blundering tactics were the natural corollary of a specific murder. To be sure, there were those that asserted with firm lips and pragmatical eyes that "anybody who will blackmail will do anything," but the police were accustomed to this line of ratiocination from the layman and knew better.

Their efforts in every direction were equally futile. Behind the Balfame Place was a lane; Elsinore Avenue was practically the eastern boundary of the town, which had grown to the south and west. There were two or three lowly dwellers in this lane, and in due course the memory of one old man was refreshed, and he guessed he remembered hearing somebody crank up a machine that night, but at what time he couldn't say. It was after seven-thirty, anyhow, for he turned in about then, and he had heard the noise just before dropping off. That might have been any time up to eight or nine, he couldn't say, as he slept with his windows shut and couldn't hear the town clock. His cottage was directly across from a point where the second assailant, running out of the grove and grounds, would have climbed the fence to the lane if he had kept in a reasonably straight line. But there had been heavy rains between the night of the shooting and the awakening of the old man's memory and not a track nor a footstep was visible.

The police also searched the Balfame house from top to bottom for the pistol the prisoner indubitably had carried, from the house to the grove; nor did they neglect the garden, yard and orchard, or any of the old wells in the neighbourhood. They even dragged a pond. Their zeal was but a further waste of time. It was then they concluded that Mrs. Balfame had gone out deliberately to meet a confederate and that he had carried off both pistols. But who was the confederate and how did he know at what hour Balfame would reach his front gate? It was as easily ascertained that Mrs. Balfame had telephoned no message—from her house—that night as that she had received one from her husband which would give her just the opportunity she wanted. But how had she advised the other guilty one? The poor police felt as if they were lashed to a hoop driven up and down hill by a mischievous little girl. All the men who had been at Cammack's when Balfame called up his wife had left the house before he did, and proved their alibis. Even Cammack, who had "sweat blood" during the elimination process, had finally discovered that the janitor of his office-building had seen him go in and come out on that fatal night. Did Mrs. Balfame go forth some time after Dr. Anna brought her home from the Country Club, find her partner in crime and secrete him in the grove? If so, why did she not remain in the grove with him instead of returning to the house to leave it again by the devious route that delivered her almost into the arms of young Kraus? Above all, who was the man?

It was at this point that the police gave up, although they still maintained a pretence of activity. Not so the press. Almost daily there were interviews with public men, authors, dramatists, detectives, headed: "Did Mrs. Balfame Do It?" "What Did She Do with the Pistol?" "Was She Perchance Ambidexterous?" "Could She Have Fired Both Pistols At Once?" "Will She Be Acquitted?" "Was It a German Plot?" "If Guilty Would She Be Wise to Confess and Plead Brain Storm?" The interviews and symposiums that illuminated the Sunday issues were conducted by men, but the evening papers had at least one interview or symposium a week on the subject between a sister reporter and some woman of local or national fame. Nothing could have been more intellectual than the questions asked save, possibly, the answers given.

Upon the subject of the defendant's guilt public opinion fluctuated, and was not infrequently influenced by news from the seat of war: when it looked as if the Germans were primed for a smashing victory, the doubting centred firmly upon the family of Kraus and Miss Frieda Appel; but when once more convinced that the Germans were fighting the long and losing game, the hyphenated were banished in favour of that far more interesting suspect, Mrs. Balfame. Certainly there was nothing more amusing than trying and condemning a prisoner long before she had time to reach judge and jury, and tearing her to shreds psychologically. In Spain the people high and low still have the bull-fight; other countries have the prize-ring, these being the sole objective outlets in times of peace for that lust of blood and prey which held the spectators in a Roman arena spellbound when youths and maidens were flung to the lions. But in the vast majority of Earth's peoples this ancestral craving is forced by Civilization to gratify itself imaginatively, and it is this cormorant in the human mind that the press feeds conscientiously and often.

In Elsinore the subject raged day and night, and the opinion of the man in the street may be summed up in the words of one of them to Mr. James Broderick, of the New York News.

"Brain storm, nothin'. She ain't that sort. She done it and done it so deliberately as hell. I ain't sayin' that she didn't have some excuse, for I despised Dave Balfame, and I guess most of us would let her off if we served on the jury, if only because we don't want the county disgraced, especially Elsinore. But that ain't got nothin' to do with it. And there are awful lot of men who think more of their consciences than they do of Brabant, let alone of Elsinore, whose likes as not all of 'em won't have been born—the jurors, I mean. I'm just wonderin'."

Mr. Broderick met Mrs. Thigpen one afternoon at Alys Crumley's. She was not a member of the inner twelve, but a staunch admirer of Mrs. Balfame, although by no means sure of her innocence.

Every Wage Earner An Investor

Every wage earner can be an investor in gilt-edged securities bearing a high rate of interest without sacrifice or worry.

The plan is so simple and secure that it commends itself to everybody.

All of us spend a portion of our earnings thoughtlessly. It is human nature. Yet most of us would be glad if someone would take the money we fritter away and save it for us, because we find it difficult to save it ourselves.

Make your employer do it by means of War Savings Stamps. Say to him: "I want you to take five per cent. of the money in my pay envelope each week and buy me Thrift Stamps. Then with each $4.00 worth of Thrift Stamps buy me a War Savings Stamp. When you have bought each War Savings Stamp, put it in my envelope. Go on doing that for a year."

That is all. Your mind is free. You will not miss that 75 cents or that dollar which you have hitherto squandered on trifles.

But at the end of the year you will have a little package of War Savings Stamps, each bearing the $5.00 mark, but which have cost you but a few cents over $4.00 each. These Canada will redeem in 1924.

In May W.S.S. Cost $4.04

In June W.S.S. Cost $4.05

Canadian Poetess Dies.

One of the earlier Canadian poets passed away at St. Mary's, Ont., recently in the person of Mary A. Maitland, wife of Geo. F. Maitland, formerly of Stratford, St. Catharines, and Hamilton. Her verses, secular and religious, had at one time a wide circulation in Canadian and American periodicals, among the best remembered being "The Girl Who Helps Her Mother" and "Old Letters." Her book "Autumn Leaves" was published some years ago in Toronto. She was a native of Elgin, Scotland, and a devoted Baptist. Mrs. Maitland, who had attained the age of 80 years, had been suffering from neuritis since October, and death came as a relief to months of pain.

MYSTERY IN FOOD SUBSTANCE

Scientists Seeking to Isolate Material That Has Been Found to Be Essential to Life.

Not least among the discoveries of the last decade of years is that a certain mysterious food substance—that is neither protein, fat, nor carbohydrate, nor any of the hitherto known plant or animal constituents—is an infinite quantity essential to life. Lack of this substance in an exclusive diet of polished rice has been demonstrated to be the cause of the disorder of the peripheral nerves known as beri-beri. The disease, with its partial paralysis and dropsical swellings, affects not only man but fowls, rats and pigs, and the small amount of the missing material contained in a water or alcoholic extract of the rice polish is an effective remedy or preventive. While the term "vitamine" has been applied to substances of this class, W. Ramsden proposes substituting "orzanol," meaning a medicine material associated with food. Though the substance for thorough investigation has not yet been isolated it has been shown to be entirely absent from white flour, polished rice, arrow-root, and some other products. Bread from white flour, containing a little from its yeast, has not enough for health. Wheat bran contains a little, wheat embryo has more, and it exists in some amount in yolk of egg, animal fats, milk, cheese, butter, animal fat margarine, green leaves, soy beans, millet, flaxseed, and apparently in oats, rye and maize. Lard is the one animal fat from which it is absent, while none is found in vegetable oils.

Sat Up in Bed To Get Her Breath

Palpitation of the heart, shortness of breath, inability to lie on the left side, feelings as if smothering, oppressed feeling in the chest, dizzy and faint spells, tired weak, worn out feeling, involuntary twitching of the muscles, sleeplessness, restless, etc., all point to the fact that either the heart or nerves, or both, are not what they should be. Any of these conditions should be remedied immediately so as to avoid a complete breakdown of the whole system.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will bring energy to the weakened constitution, strengthen and regulate the heart, and tone up the tired, overstrained nerves.

Mrs. William Steeves, Chemical Road, N.B., writes:—"I have been a great sufferer from nerve troubles and palpitation of the heart, which was so bad I had to sit up in bed to get my breath. I could not lie on my left side at all. I tried doctor after doctor, also several different remedies, but got no help from them. My mother insisted on me trying Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. By the time I had used one box, I was feeling very much better. I took in all three boxes, and now I am in perfect health and can enjoy a good sound sleep, and can lie on my left side without any trouble."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

TOOK NO CHANCE ON "HANTS"

That Batch of Troopers Didn't Intend to Be Caught With the "Goods" on Them.

There was a colored labor outfit in the S. O. S. engaged in quarry work near a base port. A few weeks ago, in the course of opening up some new ground, they discovered an old Roman burying ground with many skeletons, coins and relics. The find made quite an impression on the minds of the finders, and there were many speculations as to whether the shades of the departed legionaries still hovered around in the vicinity of their last resting place. The general opinion was that a man ought to be on his guard when out late at night.

About that time the sum of 60 francs disappeared from the counter of a nearby Y. M. C. A. hut. The captain of this outfit doesn't know a great deal about classroom psychology, but he has learned a lot about it in the field. He called his outfit together one night in the Y hut and told them of the disappearance of the money. Then he outlined the history and characteristics of the old Romans.

"Boys," he said, "there was one thing a Roman hated worse than anything else, and that was a thief. If the ghosts of those old fellows who were buried up there on the hill should learn that somebody in this outfit had 60 francs in his pocket, I don't know just what would happen. I'm going to put my hat here on the table and turn out the lights. The guilty man will know what to do."

There was quite a shuffling of feet and rustling around in the hut, and then all was quiet. When the captain turned on the lights again and looked in the hat he found not only the 60 francs, but 300 more, and a few odd centimes, for good measure.—Stars and Stripes.

Curious Coincidence.

The news of Germany's surrender came midway between Sunday night and Monday morning. It was on a Sunday morning that the world heard of Germany's declaration of war against Russia. Serbia's answer to Austria's ultimatum came the previous Sunday. It was on Sunday morning that we got the news of the firing of the first gun of our Civil war and it was on Sunday that Lee surrendered at Appomattox. Later on, the first tidings of the sinking of Cervera's fleet at Santiago came on Sunday morning, as did that of the signing of the peace treaty between the United States and Spain.

MONKEY MOTHERS.

They Display More Pure Affection Than Any Other Animal.

A wild beast tamer of long experience tells some interesting things of the affection of animals for their young. He had an elephant once, he says, who did all in her power to spoil her young one. She fussed over it and cuddled it up so that when the time came for it to leave the cage it was simply unmanageable. When one of the men made a bold move toward the baby he was promptly butted in the stomach and bowled over in a peculiar way which the youngster had of expressing his feelings toward those whom he disliked. At last by a ruse the mother and son were separated. But there was no such thing as keeping them apart. The baby rubbed the skin off its forehead and trunk trying to get through the bars, and both wailed so long and piteously that the keeper was obliged to put them together again.

A shy baby camel that passed through the hands of this same trainer refused to look upon the world except from its favorite station between its mother's legs. The mother, too, would show her displeasure at any effort toward intimacy by spitting violently at every one in sight.

The kangaroo also is very fond of her offspring and will patiently carry it about long after it is ready to hop on its own account.

But for a display of pure affection the mother monkey beats any other animal, and when there is an addition to the family circle there is general rejoicing. A baby monkey sticks fast by its mother, and, asleep or awake, it seems always in her thoughts.

The Lazy Koreans.

It is hardly an exaggeration to say that the Koreans are the laziest people on earth. All day long they lie about the streets smoking their gigantic pipes. A native pipe is a six foot length of bamboo, with a metal bowl, and is carried tucked into the neckband and down the trousers leg. All work of very nearly every kind is done by the women, who occupy perhaps the most degraded position held by the sex of any nation. The unfortunate female population is collectively a beast of burden and denied even the most elementary recognition as human beings. A Korean girl has no name. She is merely known as "daughter of So-and-so," her father.

Sleep For the Young and Aged.

A four-year-old requires 12 hours; one of 7 years, 11 hours; of 12 years, 10 hours, and of 16 or 18, 9 hours. After that 7 or 8 hours is sufficient until after 60; then the hours should be increased gradually with each decade, as the man or woman of 80 requires as much sleep as a child of 10. And it should be remembered that the most health giving beauty making time is early.

It All Depended.

"Don't we go any higher?" asked the facetious guest in the hotel when the elevator stopped at the twenty-fourth floor.

"Not unless the elevator drops, sir," answered the truthful elevator boy.—Judge.

Jacob Luban, Out on $10,000 Bail, Flees; Has Crime Record

Becker Witness and Investigator in Barf Case Faced Trial as Habitual Criminal.

NEW YORK.—When Jacob Luban, forger, witness at the trial of Lieutenant Charles Becker for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, gambler, and recently investigator employed by the Attorney General in the Baff murder, was called for trial in General Sessions on indictments accusing him of forgery and being an habitual criminal, it was discovered that he had disappeared.

Luban had been released in $10,000 bail on the indictments, and after an Assistant District Attorney, Mr. Sheridan, informed Judge Mulqueen that he could not be found, the bail bond was forfeited. On the plea of a surety company, however, Judge Mulqueen deferred making the forfeiture final for forty-eight hours.

Luban first came into prominence in October, 1912, when he and his brother Morris were brought to this city from Newark, N.J., to testify in the trial of Lieutenant Becker. Both men were awaiting trial on charges of forgery in the city jail at Newark when Charles S. Whitman, then District Attorney, received word that they had important revelations to make in connection with the killingof the gambler.

On the second day of the trial of Lieutenant Becker Morris Luban was placed on the witness stand and swore he witnessed the murder and identified the four gunmen as the murderers. Jacob Luban later testified to interviews he had with Jack Rose, gambler, who procured the gunmen on several occasions prior to the shooting.

After Lieutenant Becker had been convicted and sent to Sing Sing, where he later was put to death, Jacob Luban was tried on a forgery indictment in Brooklyn, was convicted and sentenced by Judge Dike to twenty years in Sing Sing. He had served less than eighteen months of the sentence when he was pardoned by Governor Whitman. Later Luban was employed by Alfred L. Becker, Deputy Attorney General of the State, to run down clews connected with the murder of Barnet Baff, "poultry king." Ever since he appeared as a witness in the Becker trial Luban has contended that he is being persecuted by the police "system," which was the plea he made when pardoned by Mr. Whitman. At the request of Edward Swann, District Attorney, the police sent out a general alarm for him last night.

ALMOST BLIND FROM HEADACHES.

It is hard to struggle along with a head that aches and pains all the time. Headache seems habitual with many people; indeed, some are seldom, if ever, free from it, suffering continually, and wondering why they can get no relief.

In nine cases out of ten, persistent headaches are due to poisoned blood, the blood being rendered impure through some derangement of the stomach, liver or bowels.

The reason Burdock Blood Bitters makes permanent cures of all cases of headache, is because it starts the organs of elimination acting freely, and the poisons and impurities are carried off from the system, purified blood circulates in the brain cells, and instead of pains and aches there is revived mentality and bodily vigor.

Mrs. Geo. Monck, Arden, Ont., writes: "I have been troubled a great deal with sick headaches, and at times would almost go blind, and have to go to bed. I tried different kinds of medicine without any benefit until I was advised to use Burdock Blood Bitters. After taking it, I have not been troubled since."

B. B. B. is a purley vegetable remedy, and has been manufactured for the last forty years by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THE TIGHT SKIRTS THAT WOULD COME BACK

The wise ones in Peterboro said that they would never come back. Women would stand a good deal for fashion, said the critical observers, but there was a limit. Make them uncomfortable enough, was the prophecy, and they will be in the mood to say "Never again!"

Well, they made them uncomfortable enough a few years ago—before the short skirts came in. Skirts were made so tight that a woman wearing one could scarcely walk, and as for a step—she had to jump that, with both feet. The name "hobble skirt" became a term of derision. The thing itself became a profound, and amazing spectacle. Since they wouldn't go over the shoulders the victims had to step into them—as a man might step into one leg of his trousers.

And now they have come back.

Take warning. Never prophesy about the fashions.

When Fashion gets its stride it is just as likely as not to decide that it won't have any stride.

The ultra-fashionable girl of to-day will never get into her stride until she gets out of her skirt.

The long choke-bored skirt that is now in evidence will not permit a woman to take more than one-half of the step that Nature intended. The normal stride of a man is from 27 to 31 inches, all depending upon his conformation. For women, the normal is eight inches less. Now with a skirt that only permits one heel to be deposited ten inches in front of the other, what chance has the athletic girl to be happy

There is but one form of costume known to the world that is in the same class for absolute obstruction of movement. That one is the Japanese court dress, so designed that the long folds fall far below the feet and the wearer, walking on her own dress, has the appearance of approaching the court on her knees.

Foot Binding.

In the old days of China, it is true, the binding of the feet gave to women the same restricted hobble but that was due to the compression of the feet and not the construction of the garments. With the coming of women into politics, war and athletics, and the new freedom of the sex, the new skirt is exciting a lot of comment. The girl who had been wearing something so much like the male uniform that one has to look at the curls under the cap to tell which is which is going to have a tough time trying to cut down her martial step to carry the ball and chain of fashion. And the advocates of physical culture, artists, lovers of the beautiful, do not b yany means, look upon the departure, with favor.

Their viewpoint, however, will cut little figure if the women want to be hobbled, unless the record of centuries reverses itself. There never was a gown designed, however inartistic that did not find a certain number of devotees.

The new skirt has at least these interesting points: it attracts attention, and it excites masculine curiosity as to what the sex will be wearing next.

Dangerous at Times.

The serious objection to it is the fact that it is absolutely dangerous to attempt to navigate it during a rush hour; that it is a time loser, and an inadequate garment for any woman who expects to climb stairs, street cars, busses or taxis.

The trim short skirt which has found favor the past season came in for considerable criticism when it was first worn. There were those who objected in no mild way to the "scandalous expose." However, trim ankles and a bit of hosiery showing below the skirt's hem are Quaker costumes compared with the appalling creations of to-day.

In a recent lecture at one of the best women's colleges in this country, the physical culture teacher devoted her energy in a caustic plea to the young women to refrain from adopting the new style of dress. In part she said:

"Women have been fighting for many years to be given equality with men. We have made a splendiu showing and have earned the recognition of men and nations. The work we accomplished in the industrial and war relief work during the great war gave us our place in the sun. The Canadian woman on account of her splendid physical ability and good health, was able to do, and did do, a man's work in factory, office and shop. Her condition was built up by years of sane athletics, by sensible clothes, by directed effort along the best rules for health. The fine swinging stride of the Canadian woman has given her her wonderful vitality. Is it possible that the Canadian woman will forget for one moment how she has earned the title of the best physical type of woman and hobble herself in clothes that will not permit her to walk?

Style a Monstrosity.

"The style is a monstrosity but I am not here to discuss modes. I am here to impress upon you young women the great need of keeping up your fine record of physical perfection which has been obtained through your physical culture work in the gymnasium.

"One of the young women called my attention to some new gowns that she had just received from New York, and enthusiastically exclaimed over the width of the bottom hem. It measured a scant 18 inches.

"When I commented on its grotesqueness and asked how she possibly expected to be able to walk in it, she naively remarked:

"It's the style, so I'll have to learn."

The instructor wound up her remarks by begging the girls not to wear the hobbled skirt or revert to the silly styles of past ages.

"A certain type of Canadian woman in her madness for fashion loses all sense of proportion. She is spoiling her beautiful body by destroying its fine lines. She does not consider that she is dressing to please the man who cares nothing at all about how she looks but who makes dresses and ribbons and flowers merely to sell."

While controversy is raging it is interesting to note that fashion experts are loud in their praise of the graceful new silhouette, that the manufacturers of hosiery are sending out glorified stockings to wear with this new mode: that the satin pump to match the gown is the favored shoe, and that the heels are quite the highest we have seen in many a day.

MRS. SANFORD'S MESSAGE TO WORKING WOMEN

Laurel, Miss. — "Eight years ago I was suffering with pains and weakness caused by a female trouble. I had headaches, chills and fevers, and was unable to do my work part of the time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me and I took twelve bottles of it, and my health has been good ever since. I am able to run the machine and do dressmaking besides my housework. You are at liberty to publish my letter if it will help some poor suffering woman." —Mrs. J. C. SANFORD, 1207 Second Ave., Laurel, Miss.

Thousands of women drag along from day to day in just such a miserable condition as was Mrs. Sanford, or suffering from displacements, irregularities, inflammation, ulceration, backache, sideache, headache, nervousness, or "the blues."

Such women should profit by Mrs. Sanford's experience and try this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and find relief from their sufferings as she did.

For special suggestions in regard to your ailment write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of their long experience is at your service.

Wash The Kidneys!

After Bad Colds or Influenza Look to Kidneys and Bladder!

Owing to bad colds, over-eating or intemperance, or to the after effects of influenza—uric acid and toxins (poisons) are stored up in the body and cause backache, lumbago, rheumatic pains and stiff joints.

It is most essential that treatment be directed towards prompt casting out of the poisons from the body which cause these pains and aches. This means that the excretory organs—(the bowels, skin and kidneys)—should be excited to their best efforts. Every one should clean house—internally—and thus protect one's self from many germ diseases, by taking castor oil or a pleasant laxative such as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, which are made of May-apple, aloes and jalap. Take these every other day. This will excite efficient bowel action. If you suffer from backache, irritation of the bladder and the kidneys, shown by the frequent calls to get out of bed at night, considerable sediment in the water, brick-dust deposit, perhaps headache in the morning, you should obtain at the drug store "Anuric" (anti-uric acid), first put up by Dr. Pierce.

To build up the strength and improve the blood, take an iron tonic such as "Ironic," manufactured by Dr. Pierce, to be had in tablets at drug stores, or some good herbal tonic such as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, made from wild roots and barks without alcohol, and put up in tablets or liquid.

Henry Ford Suit Depends on What Is An Anarchist?

Chicago Tribune's Attorney Seeks to Prove Manufacturer is One of Several Varieties.

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich., May 16.—Against the charge that Henry Ford was libelled by being called an anarchist, the Chicago Tribune will try to prove he is one in the sense given in a United States Supreme Court decision which defined a half dozen kinds of anarchists. So Elliott G. Stevenson, attorney, announced here in a heated session of court while battling with counsel for the plaintiff over the selection of jurors.

Mr. Stevenson, over bitter objection by Mr. Ford's counsel, got before the talesmen several definitions of anarchy. Also over plaintiff's objections he was permitted to ask the talesmen questions on their competency based on those theories of anarchy.

Alfred J. Murphy and Alfred Lucking, counsel for Mr. Ford, fought every step of Mr. Stevenson's attempt to get his theory of the case before the talesmen.

Floyd Gibbons, Tribune war correspondent, wearing his Croix de Guerre and service stripes, and with his eye still bandaged, arrived here to testify for the Tribune.

To the twelve talesmen who were in the jury box Mr. Stevenson declared the editorial in the Chicago Tribune headed, "Ford is an Anarchist," on which the suit is based, appeared at the outset of the Mexican trouble. He read the editorial, which stated Mr. Ford had announced that the Ford Motor Company employes would not be taken back if they entered the military service.

"It is the claims of the defence," said Mr. Stevenson, "that when that editorial appeared it was necessary that men should be encouraged to aid their country, and that Mr. Ford took a stand before his employes which was inimical to the best interests of the country and in that sense was an anarchist.

"We are not going to show that Mr. Ford is a bomb thrower, but we intend to show that in the sense of the definitions of anarchy he is an anarchist."

Mr. Stevenson read from United States Supreme Court decisions the definition of anarchy. The last one was: "Anarchy is an absence of government, or insufficiency of government."

"In the sense that Mr. Ford was trying to cripple and make insufficient the government, the defence in this case will prove that Mr. Ford is an anarchist," said Mr. Stevenson.

"This case," said Mr. Lucking, "is to be decided on the understanding of that editorial as obtained by the persons who read it and not by the views of some scholarly individuals in the secrecy of an editorial sanctum. It is not the sense meant, but the sense conveyed that is the criterion.

"Senator Lodge and about half of the other Senators might be called an anarchist under the definition applied to Henry Ford."

Judge Tucker interrupted. "If this is to develop into a mere vaudeville performance I should like to have it over with and then go on with the trial of the case. But it would be best to try the case first."

Talesmen examined today generally held that Mr. Ford had a right to his opinions and that there might be an honest difference of views as to what constitutes preparedness.

GEORGE STREET

STAMP OUT THE BOLSHEVIST

The Government that permits Bolshevik agents to operate in this country publicly or privately is as guilty of criminal negligence as a parent that permits a child to fondle a rattlesnake.

These sides of Lenine and Trotzky are the same type of "citizen" as were Lenine and Trotzky when they lived in the east side of New York. It is well known that these Bolshevists are operating in the country. They are operating publicly, as in Montreal and Toronto, and privately in other places.

There are methods of reaching these men, and when apprehended they should be made an example of in as few days as possible after their arrest. They are as dangerous, if not more so, than any German spies could been during the war, and far more dangerous than many of the misguided individuals apprehended in Canada at various times for state offences.

They openly counsel bloodshed and the extermination of every semblance of law and order. They would tear down every institution of church, home and state. They are as cruel as wolves and as unclean as vultures.

Yet the Government permits them to have a wider freedom than a man who got up and disturbed the peace by singing a song too loudly on the market square of any city.

The line between Bolshevism and the most radical socialism is broad. The one sets the worst class against all other classes; the other asks for one class alone.

Bolshevism and its adherents may be exterminated in Canada by some intelligent and fearless action. And it should be exterminated as one would exterminate the deadliest serpent. If a supposed authority says a serpent is harmless a good many people will fondle it, and even make it a parlor pet. The Government's tacit toleration of the Bolshevist in this country makes him appear harmless—until he strikes.—London, Advertizer.

SOMETHING TO THINK OVER.

Sir Hiram Hudover—not Bart.—was to be the worthy President of the Worldover Empire Club in an important Canadian City. He spent a whole week of evenings on the draft of his presidential address, the one sensational point in which was that the total amount of British capital invested in Canadian railways, steamships industries, municipals and mines was the £. s. d. equivalent of 2,914 millions of dollars as against the sum total of only 637 million American dollars invested in Canadian industries, mines, municipals, and so forth. One the heels of this great statement he was prepared to say impromptu:

"Gentlemen, I yield second place to no man in my veneration of patriotic sentiments, my respect for the Imperial nexus—that mystic spiritual tie which binds us all together over the Seven Seas, and my profound regard for the person and sovereignty of His Majesty. But all this, gentlemen, is persiflage unless we can back it up with cold commercial facts. It's investments that count. John Bull is Canada's greatest investor. Canada to this greatest single investment, owes more than four times as much British capital invested in Canada as there is American capital. And when you come right down to rock bottom, gentlemen, it's dividends that are the pillars of Imperialism. Dividends!"

All this Sir Hiram had carefully staged up in his library before a large mirror. It would be the triumph of his career as manufacturer and patriot.

As a mere matter of cold arithmetic, if one should have taken the trouble to investigate — but such things are usually camouflaged away upon such occasions — it happened that 35 per cent. of the members present at the meeting had taken checks from the cloak room for hats made in Connecticut and Chicago, 40 per cent. of them wore boots made in New England, 28 per cent. had shirts and collars made in the United States, 85 per cent. of them employed stenographers who worked on made-in-U.S. typewriters, 65 per cent. of them rode in Yankee-built automobiles, fed with Standard (Imperial) Oil, 47 per cent. had American-made music boxes in their homes, 85 per cent. of their wives had sewing machines built in the United States and read American magazines at home, while their husbands held their meeting in a hotel with an Imperial name owned by American capital and operated by an American company under a sky-scraper copied from Broadway.

But somebody had played a sad joke on Sir Hiram Hudover. Beside his plate he discovered an envelope containing two newspaper clippings; one from the New York Sun, the other from the San Francisco Argonaut, and a short typewritten letter. Sir Hiram read the newspaper extracts first; that from the New York Sun as follows:

"What is this marvellous Canada, our next-door neighbour and good friend, that it can come into our markets, war times or peace times, and buy from us as no other nation, population unit for population unit, begins to do?

"Consider our exports to Canada for the seven months of the fiscal year ending with January. In the corresponding seven months preceding—all war months—we sold to Canada goods amounting to $428,-700,000. That was huge; yet in the seven months ending last January—some four and a third of them war months—we sold to Canada goods amounting to no less than $542,-500,000!"

From the Argonaut he read this:

"According to official figures the total number of Americans that have taken up residence in the Province of Alberta since 1905, including five months of the fiscal year 1918-19, reaches 275,093. Saskatchewan ranks second, with 226,130 immigrants, and Manitoba third, with only 78,789. The total population of Alberta in 1916 was given officially as 496,525. Assuming that the proportion of immigrants from the United States residing in Alberta prior to the organization of the province was about the same as is now existing, the total American population in Alberta today is probably 325,000 out of the entire 496,525 population, or about 65 per cent. The predominance of Americans in Alberta is very marked, and this predominance has a directing influence upon trade with the United States."

The leter came last. It was brief:

"Perhaps you may find the enclosed clippings useful in getting a broader angle on your election speech. It looks as though on a cold commercial basis there is something a little bigger than dividends on capital. You may figure the dividends at 47 millions a year in favour of the British investor. How about the fact that millions of Canadians spend over the counter a million dollars a day more for goods made in the United States than they get from Americans for goods made in Canada? When you stack up an adverse balance of about 400 millions a year against a balance of 47 millions of dividends paid to British capital you have to remember that only a few British investors get the dividends, but millions of Canadians buy the goods. Leave it to your own judgment to decide which have the biggest pull on patriotism—the goods consumed by the millions of Canadians or the dividends cashed away by the hundreds of Britishers over in London. The United States has sent us about five per cent. of our total population — and they send the goods after the people. We have sent them about 3 per cent. of their population—but we don't send the manufactured goods after the people. Put that in your pipe and smoke it, Sir Hiram. Of course, even so broad-minded a paper as the Argonaut may be unconsciously drawing the long bow on the population end, but there's no doubt about the goods end of the argument."

The effect of this upon Sir Hiram was so remarkable that he failed to take his soup and only rallied to complete self-recovery when he got down to the coffee and cigars. He was duly elected President. When he came to his speech he waved the flag and talked about the ethnic, scientific, warlike, and maritime glories of the Empire, and he wound up:

"Gentlemen, I will not debase your exalted conception of our Empire by any utilitarian references to dividends, trade and investments. Our Imperial patriotism is far above that. We do not calculate our devotion to the Empire. It is altogether incalculable, imponderable—yes, sometimes, absolutely incomprehensible."

Then he sat down and asked the waiter for a made-in-Canada cigar.—Canadian Courier.

Cocoanut Oil Fine For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

NEW YORK.—Three charming waitresses hereafter will smile sweetly on policemen attached to Police Headquarters while the blue coats set aside their official duty at the noon hour each day to lunch. The waitresses will preside in the luncheon which will be opened at half past eleven o'clock on the fourth floor of the gray stone building in Centre street, near Grand street.

Heretofore the several hundred policemen assigned to desk work at Police Headquarters have been compelled to vie with shop workers in the vicinity when endeavouring to provide for the inner man at restaurants contiguous to theadquarters. Owing to this fact many of the policeman were detained over the alloted lunch hour, and Richard E. Enright, Police Commissioner, it is understood, decided to overcome that drawback by permitting a restaurant to be installed.

Besides the waitresses a negro chef will be on the job to see that the policemen are provided for in the matter of foodstuffs.

MADE BY SCOTT & BOWNE MAKERS OF SCOTT'S EMULSION

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

When Betty Wilson heard of German atrocities and the appalling casualties, she was shocked in a very perfunctory manner. She felt as if such things ought to horrify her, and accordingly would raise her hands, palms outward, in an attitude of dismay, and with a pretty shudder beg you to desist. It was awful, just awful. It took her mother's unexpected message, "Bobby's enlisted," to make the war a vital thing to her. For, although Bobby himself never knew what place he held in his sweetheart's affections Betty had no doubts that Bobby ranked ace high.

"Bobby's enlisted?" repeated Betty, incredulously. "In what branch?"

Mrs. Wilson advanced toward her daughter. Betty had not taken her own brother's enlistment so to heart. "In the cavalry," she answered. "Is it not wonderful that he was accepted?"

There was a moment's silence and then Betty was crying. "But, my dear," Mrs. Wilson comforted gently, "whatever is the matter? Are you not proud to hear it?"

"Oh, yes, yes," came in a choked voice, muffled in the folds of a handkerchief hiding eyes already sadly red, "but the cavalry is the most dangerous thing in the world. He can get killed most any time."

A ring at the bell interrupted the tearful grievance. As Mrs. Wilson opened the door she whispered a hasty word to the broad-shouldered visitor.

"Where's Betty?" he called out in a husky voice as he entered the living room and pretended not to see her. Perhaps it was because of the whispered warning Cort Bobby was not totally unprepared for the onslaught, for with a cry of "Oh, Bobby, oh, Bobby!" Betty flung the tiny dauntlessness of her person into his arms.

It required but a short conference between the two, consummated by the approval of Mrs. Wilson, to decide the trip to the leading jeweler in town. And a slightly longer conference placed upon the rosy-tipped finger of Betty's left hand the warning solitaire.

And Betty sent him away smiling. She had always felt that if her mother had not been so foolishly prejudiced she would have made an illustrious actress. Here her heart was crying and breaking, but her eyes were dry and there was a smile on her lips. And the train letter she had given him was a happy, jolly letter, full of good cheer, but she hoped he could see where the tears had fallen on the pages.

At the camp post office it was not long before the soldier detailed to sort the mail knew to what troop "Robert Denton" belonged without further reference to the address, for letters and parcels, penned in a very feminine script, came with such regularity and quantity that he often was compelled to remark to the fortunate lad, "I wish you had to sort your own mail. You get more'n the whole regiment put together." At which Bobby would smile and, tucking a box of candy under one arm and a box of "smokes" under the other, would stride off reading a whopper of a letter, as he loved to dub the voluminous manuscripts which Betty spent sleepless hours to compose.

It was the middle of July—a very hot and dry July. Formerly Betty had been the first to suggest vacation, and early June as a rule found her at the seaside. Mrs. Wilson was nonplussed.

"Where are you planning to go this season?" she asked. "I thought of Nanton Hook, Maine. The breezes are so cool there."

Betty shook her head with a decided negative. "Perhaps you may be going to Nanton Hook, Maine. But I am going to El Paso, Texas."

Mrs. Wilson stared. Texas for a vacation! Texas in the summer! Was her daughter in sober earnest? And then she remembered—and remembering, she smiled. For close to El Paso was Fort Bliss. And at Fort Bliss—well, at Fort Bliss was Bobby.

As the hours flew by when the train crossed the boundary line into Texas, Betty kept wondering if there were any end to the Lone Star state. Within short periods the scenery changed with unbelievable rapidity. At early morning she was traveling through a mountainous region—huge, stately hills rising majestically from the ground. Noon saw vast stretches of arid desert land with its network of irrigation canals and ditches. Now it was a plateau unrelieved save for the stubbles of cactus plants and then a deep ravine from which the water had vanished eons ago. Night of the third day brought the travelers to the city of El Paso, picturesque because of its constant competition in architecture, language and population for American or Mexican supremacy.

"Hotel Paso del Norte," Betty directed the taxi driver, and was very proud that he understood her. Perhaps she would have hesitated before complimenting herself upon her skillful use of the Spanish tongue had she known the chauffeur was quite accustomed to understanding the language incorrectly enunciated.

The following morning found Betty urgently hurrying her mother for early departure for the camp. But long after Mrs. Wilson pronounced her toilet completed, Betty still primped before the mirror. She must look her very best, she thought, and later stroll El Passage found a second lieutenant of the head well worth while as the fair-skinned northerner motored by.

At the fort Betty wondered why the soldier on guard assumed such an aggressive position as she smiled her prettiest and asked to be directed to the proper location. "It seemed," she afterward told her mother, "as if he was afraid I wanted to snatch his rifle from him. Bobby's tent necessitated a long climb on foot through a sandy, uphill stretch, and it was a rather breathless Betty who stopped before the tent to which she had been directed. As she saw no one, she petitioned to her mother, imperiously making the ascent, to wait below.

Betty walked a few paces off. She could see no one in or about the tent. A bit off she saw a laborer cleaning a saddle, and behind him a soldier with a rifle. She decided that she would make inquiry of him and advanced.

"Can you tell me—" That man in blue overalls! That man scrubbing a saddle! Betty reeled. It was Bobby! With an armed soldier behind him! He was a prisoner. And he had told her he had won a sergeant's chevrons.

Betty flew down the hill as she heard the soldier says: "Has the girl gone nuts?" And Mrs. Wilson became fully convinced she had been very unwise to accede to her daughter's plans as her arm was grabbed and she was violently pulled down the hill by a very agitated Betty.

"Stop, stop, Betty, my slippers are full of sand!" But her appeal brought no response, nor could she on the ride back to the hotel elicit any explanation for the sudden demand that they return immediately home. But Mrs. Wilson was too eager to leave the hot climate to question very minutely her daughter's change of plans.

The bellboy had already carried their valises into the taxi and Mrs. Wilson was making a final inspection of their room to see that nothing had been left behind. Betty stood dispassionately at the window, gazing at the street below.

"All right, Betty," called her mother, "let's go."

"Yes, let's go," repeated Betty in an unwilling tone. She did not want to leave El Paso, but it was the only alternative.

As the elevator stopped at the main floor and discharged its burden Betty stood aghast.

There was Bobby!

Her Bobby. But looking surprisingly military in a perfectly fitting uniform. And on his arm were the prescribed three stripes of a sergeancy! He tripped and saw her.

"Betty," he cried out joyfully as he made a rush for the girl shrinking behind a huge palm. The hotel guests turned to stare at the unusual commotion. "Betty, my Betty," he called as he caught up to her, "come to me." And as she held off, "What is the matter?"

Betty was choking. She could hardly speak: "But you're a prisoner!"

"A prisoner?" Bobby repeated questioningly. "I'm no prisoner." She ex-

GROWING DEAF WITH HEAD NOISES? TRY THIS

If you are growing hard of hearing and fear Catarrhal Deafness or if you have roaring, rumbling, hissing noises in your ears go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it 1-4 pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who is threatened with Catarrhal Deafness or who has head noises should give this prescription a trial.

NOT ENOUGH TO KNOW LAW

Young Men Seeking Admission to Bar Must Have General Understanding of Many Things.

It goes without saying that a lawyer must know a little something about law, but many persons will be interested to discover that the young men who have taken the preliminary examinations for admission to the bar must know something else.

They were required to write an essay on "The Growth of Democracy"—a very good thing for them to understand. To test their knowledge of literature they were asked to give the name of the author and the work in which any three of seven famous characters appear, including John Alden, Mrs. Caudle, Wilkins Micawber, Sir John Falstaff and Falstaff. They were asked to tell what the Balkan peninsula is and the countries included in it, and to name the five principal countries in Africa, and to bound several American states. And they were asked to tell about the Invincible armada and the origin of the British revolution of 1688, as well as other facts in European history. In addition they knowledge of arithmetic, algebra, geometry, Latin and American history was tested.

Those who passed the examinations may go on with the study of the law. And it is supposed that their general knowledge will expand to keep pace with their growing knowledge of the principles and practice of the law.—Philadelphia Evening Public Ledger.

THIN, FRAIL FOLKS NEED PHOSPHATE

Nothing Like Plain Bitro-Phosphate to Put on Firm, Healthy Flesh and to Increase Strength, Vigour and Nerve Force.

Judging from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making firm people thin, developing arms, neck and bust, and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the soft curved lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who greatly feel their excessive thinness.

Thinness and weakness are usually due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as bitro-phosphate, which is obtained and sold by McDermid & Fitz in Peterboro and most all druggists under a guarantee of entire satisfaction or your money back. By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric food elements, Bitro-phosphate quickly produces a welcome transformation in the appearance; the increase in weight frequently being astonishing.

This increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy, which nearly always accompany excessive thinness, soon disappear, dull eyes become bright, and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health.

CAUTION.—Although bitro-phosphate is unsurpassed for relieving nervousness, sleeplessness and general weakness, it should not, owing to its remarkable flesh-growing properties, be used by anyone who does not desire to put on flesh.

THE GRACE OF GOD—Genesis 6: 8; Exodus/34: 6, 7; 2 Corinthians 12: 9; Ephesians 2: 4-10; Titus 2: 11-14.

GOLDEN TEXT:—We shall be saved through the grace of the Lord Jesus. Acts 15: 11.

1. Gen. 6: 8. What is the meaning of the word "grace" as here used?

2. Why did God extend grace to Noah when he determined to destroy "man..... from the face of the earth?"

3. Was Noah good by the grace of God or did God extend grace to him because he was good; that is, was God's "grace" to Noah the cause, or the effect, of his goodness?

4. Exodus 34: 6, 7. Why would you say, or not, that God was just as gracious, and merciful before Christ died, as he was afterward?

5. Why would you say or not that God extended grace and mercy to sinners in that day, on the same conditions, and as willingly as he does today?

6. Quote scripture which emphasises the grace of God, and say if these two verses are not high water mark of gracious revelation?

7. Ex. 34: 6, 7. Why is it impossible for God to extend mercy to the impenitent, guilty sinner?

8. How do you harmonize with God's gracious character the fact that children do suffer through the sins of their parents?

9. 2 Cor. 12: 9. This verse is God's answer to a request made by Paul; what was the request?

10. Which is better to be free from trouble and temptation, or to have both with the almighty grace of God in our hearts, which, many times, out-joys our sorrow?

11. 2 Cor. 12: 9. Why is it that trouble is made a great blessing to us when our lives are under the controlling influence of God's grace? (See Rom. 5: 3-5.) (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by the members of the club.)

12. Eph. 2: 4. Why would it, or not, be fair and truthful to say that God dispenses mercy with all the prodigality with which he dispenses sunshine?

13. What is your definition of the phrase, "God who is rich in mercy."

14. Eph. 2: 5, 6. What is the extent and nature of God's love for thoughtless, guilty and hardened sinners?

15. When a sinner gives heed to the love of God what happens?

16. Eph. 2: 7. What will be the chief theme of the rejoicing of the redeemed in heaven?

17. Eph. 2: 8-10. What is the difference between being saved "by grace," and being saved by "works?"

18. Titus 2:11-14. Why would you say, or not, that, literally "the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men?"

19. If a person is not living a life of self denial, spending his time and money in helping others, how much does he know of the wonderful grace of God?

20. To what extent, in this life, may we by God's grace, triumph over all sin?

Lesson for Sunday May 25, 1919. Repentance. Jonah 3: 1-10; Luke 13: 1-5; Acts 2: 37, 38.

Winnipeg is in the Throes of Greatest Labour Struggle in History of Western City

Mayor and City Council Grapple With Problem—Government is Powerless to Act—Winnipegers Stock Up for a Long Siege.

INDUSTRY PARALYZED

(Special to The Examiner.

WINNIPEG, May 16.— Rioting started in front of the Labour Temple between indignant citizens who attempted to get into the building, and the police, whose headquarters are close by. The policemen used their batons freely.

(Special to The Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, May 16.— Stereotypers and Pressmen of the three daily papers voted this morning not to return to work at noon today, and no daily papers will be issued to-day and during the strike. Soldiers voted fifty-fifty not to interfere.

The next big Union to go out will be the commercial telegraphers. This will complete Winnipeg's isolation from the outside world. Telephone operators went out at 7.30 this morning.

(Special to The Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, May 16.—Winnipeg is in the throes of the greatest labour struggle of all her history. Fully 35,000 work people in Greater Winnipeg are out on strike, with more to follow to-day. The Mayor and City Council are grappling with the problem of maintaining the essential services of the public utilities, such as police and fire protection as the tie-up grows more and more onerous and effects more visible. All efforts of the city and province have failed to avert the strike. The Dominion Government has admitted its powerlessness to aid materially in affecting a settlement. The Mayor's telegram to the Acting Premier and to the Minister of Labour met with the reply from Hon. G. D. Robertson that 'apparently there is [illegible] remedy.' Strikers and [illegible] of industrial and commercial life, wholesale and retail stocks are tabulated and in many cases closed. Large departmental stores experienced a walk-out and expect to continue giving service so long as their women employees are not insulted nor humiliated at the point of quitting. The main issue is the refusal of three iron works to recognize the Metal Trades Council. This refusal, Union labour interprets as a challenge to its right to collective bargaining.

Industry Paralyzed.

Union workers went out in sympathy with the Metal and Building Trades Workers. Industry in the city is paralyzed and every position in the community is put to inconvenience. Policemen, although they voted to strike, remain on duty on instructions from the Strike committee, to preserve order. The city is assured of a water supply, as the committee promises to keep 30 pounds pressure in the mains. The Fire Department is manned by voluhteers, mostly inspection men. Striking firemen agree to attend all fires to save lives. War Veterans at the Board of Trade building last night organised for service in case of violence. The post office is closed and the postmaster warns the public that no mail service of any kind can be expected until the strike is over and asks that no letters be mailed. Winnipeg homes are well provisioned in anticipation of a long strike. By special permission of the Strike committee theatres and motion picture houses were opened last night, operators and stage hands and musicians going back to their duties.

Prepared For Siege.

Winnipeg is prepared for a siege. All day Wednesday and Thursday housewives of the city continued to lay in provisions in anticipation of a long strike and complete paralysis of industry. Many Winnipegers went home from work to find his cosy apartment loaded to the muzzle with provisions, but utterly unable to protest when he found the rooms filled with food. The big idea with Winnipeg people right now isn't the result of the strike, but how to eat while everything is tied up. Metal Workers employers state: "The proposition that we put up to them was this: On May 1 we would give the men a nine hour day, and pay them for a ten hour day. We absolutely bound ourselves that the moment our eastern competitors granted their employees an eight hour day we would immediately establish the same here. This proposition wah turned down flatly by the Metal Trades Council."

Number of Strikers.

The number of strikers was estimated at the Labour Temple last night at 30,000. The list follows: Bookbinders 400, brewery workers 400, culinary workers 2,100, candy workers 700, clerks and office help 6,000, civic employees 1,800, express drivers 300, electrical workers 400, garment workers 200, metal trades 900, maintenance of way employes 3,000, mill workers 400, postal workers 500, photo engravers 100, railway employees 3,800, railway machinists 4,000, street car men 1,100, sleeping car porters 300, tailors 200, teamsters 2,000, miscellaneous 1,000.

Two thousand telephone operators may go out to-day. The men's side in dispute is outlined by R. B. Russell, business agent of Metal Trades Council, as follows: "Collective bargaining is the principle which cannot be arbitrated at this time. Unions are being recognized by the governments the world over.

"Schedules of metal trade workers were presented to employers April 24, asking increases in pay of 17 cents an hour for machinists and up to 30 cents per hour for machinists. Recognition of unions and 44 hour week also was demanded. Those same demands are being made before the Railway War Board in Montreal in connection with railway machinists.

"On April 30, not having received word from employers as to whether or not they were prepared to accept or to enter into negotiations on the schedule presented by the Metal Trades Council, a mass meeting was called. It was decided, even in face of the fact that our agreements expired that night, to delay issuance of the strike order 24 hours. It was decided to give the employers a final opportunity.

Interviewed Employers.

"Committees of men interviewed each employer and asked for a final decision as to whether they were prepared to negotiate an 8 hour day and recognize the men's organization. At a meeting held May 1 when committees reported that the employers had refused to aquiesce in this request there was no other course to take.

"In these days when governments the world over are recognizing labour organizations and the principle of collective bargaining, metal trade workers of Winnipeg consider they are justly entitled to this generally accepted principle and are determined to have it recognized.

"In interviews held during the past few days with Premier Norris, Mayor Gray and employers, the only offer of arbitration was on the question of whether or not the men's organizations should be recognized. This is a principle which cannot be arbitrated.

"It is such action as taken by the metal trade employers in the City of Winnipeg in refusing to recognise legitimate trades organizations that is driving the members of the working class to solidify their position, in order that they may improve conditions under which they labour."

TELEPHONE OPERATORS HAVE JOINED STRIKERS

WINNIPEG, May 16.—Winnipeg advanced another step towards primitive existence this morning when, at 7.30 o'clock the telephone operators in all local exchanges joined in the general strike. Telephone communication is completely paralysed. Press service over the wire from the south leased from the telephone company by a news gathering association had to be suspended owing to the shutting off of the batteries.

Employers Attitude.

Here is the manner in which L. R. Barrett, Vice-President of the Vulcan Iron Works, N. W. Warren, western manager of the Dominion Bridge Company, and Hugh B. Lyall, assistant manager and secretary-treasurer of the Manitoba Bridge and Iron Works, three of the largest contract shops in the city outlined their attitude in the dispute:

"We have recognized the principle of collective bargaining. We have been dealing with committees of our employees for the past year. We have been prepared always to negotiate all disputes with these committees, which are representative of our own employees. We offered to concede a 9 hour day with ten hours' pay, with a proviso that the 8-hour day would be accepted just as soon as it was adopted by eastern competitors. This offer in all cases was accepted by our own men. We claim this is collective bargaining; that is our interpretation of the phrase. The Union interpretation provides for negotiation through business agents or the Metal Trades Council. We refuse to negotiate with Union representatives outside of our own employ, but do not discriminate against the Union."

No Compromise.

Ald. Ernest Robinson, secretary of the Trades and Labour Council, declared last night: "Now that a general strike has been called, there can be no compromise. Men who are out on strike must have their full demands met. A general strike committee has been formed, including the President, Secretary and five members of the Trades and Labour Council, together with two members from each of the striking unions. Whatever settlement is arranged now must have the approval of this central committee. It has been further decided that no settlement of any single dispute can be made, and before the men return to work all disputes pending must be settled to the satisfaction of the men involved and the Central Strike committee. Unions refusing to obey the mandate of the majority will be dealt with at a later meeting of the Trades Council. In all probability they will be requested to withdraw their affiliation with that body."

THE PEACE CONFERENCE

"What Else Can We Do But Sign?" Declared One of the German Delegates.

AUSTRIAN TREATY

VERSAILLES, May 16. — A distinct impression among some of the subordinate members of the German peace mission that the Germans will sign the peace treaty, is reflected in the remark of one of the secretaries: "What else can we do but sign? We are on the ground, your knees are on our stomachs, and your thumbs in our eyes."

AUSTRIAN PEACE TREATY.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, May 16. — It is expected that the peace treaty will be ready for presentation to the Austrian delegates the middle of next week. The council of four yesterday discussed the military terms of the treaty, and will not sit again until Saturday, as Lloyd George is absent, bidding farewell to a Welsh regiment which is returning to England.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, May 16. — A peremptory answer to the German note registering objections to the treaty arrangements for the left bank of the Rhine and the Sarr Valley, has been drafted by the special commission on territorial affairs, it was reported this morning.

(Canadian Press.)

BERLIN, May 16. — The Police authorities have issued a proclamation warning the public against demonstrations hostile to foreigners resident of the city.

Another Clause.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, May 16. —It developed today that the German peace treaty containing clauses not yet published, providing that ratification by Germany and three of the Associated Powers will bring the treaty into force between the ratifying parties, enabling the immediate resumption of trade.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, May 16.— Reuters agency says it is probable that the Turkish and Bulgarian peace treaties will be negotiated and signed in Constantinople or some other convenient city in the near east.

Premier Norris said: "I met the employers and employees of metal workers, and the Mayor met the employers and employees of building trades. During this conference I found that the two parties were far from agreement, but finally it was suggested that I should nominate a board composed of five men to arbitrate the troubles between the two parties. This was adopted and agreed to by the employers, who said they were willing to abide by the decision of any such board if the employees would agree to the same proposition. The employees informed me that they had no authority to agree to this. Later Ald. Robinson gave a reply to my secretary that they would not arbitrate the question of recognization of their Federated Unions.

Light and power employees and waterworks employees are out, but effor's are being made to continue the water system and to ensure at least enough power for domestic lighting purposes. More than 6,500 men, including clerks, car checkers, are out on strike in the shops of the C.P.R., Canadian National and G.T.P. railway.

Pressmen May Strike.

WINNIPEG, May 16.—At a meeting of the Pressmen's Union, connected with three city daily papers, held last night, the vote was a tie to join the general strike. The chairman refused to give the casting vote. The Pressmen in favour of the strike secured more votes to their side after the meeting and called a session for 9 o'clock Friday morning and indications are that there will be no daily papers in the city to-day or while the general strike is on.

Papers Tied Up.

3 O'clock Despatch:

WINNIPEG, May 16.—Stereotypers and Pressmen decided this morning to join the strikers, and three Winnipeg daily papers consequently will be tied up.

The general strike of Union workmen and other employes which was declared yesterday and has to a large extent tied up business, is the direct outcome of a vote carried at the meeting of the Trades and Labour Council on May sixth by an overwhelming majority. In the words of the secretary of the Trades and Labour Council, it was to help the men already striking to establish better wages, reduce hours of labour and enforce recognition of Trades Unions and collective bargaining. Two weeks earlier Metal Workers and Building Trades workers had presented demands for larger wages and these being refused, had gone out on May first. The Metal Workers then asked the Council to vote on the question of a general strike.

War Veterans Turn Down Resolution

Poll Was Taken at the Provincial Convention Last Evening—To-day's Session.

ANNUAL GRANT

(Special to The Examiner.)

WINDSOR, May 16.— By a poll of 12,461 to 4,734, the Provincial convention of Great War Veterans here last night refused to endorse the Calgary resolution which asked for a $2,000 grant to who saw service in France, $1,500 to those who got as far as England, and $1,000 for volunteers who did not get out of Canada. The resolution for a special committe, to investigate the whole question of the reimbursement of veterans for financial loss for time overseas was carried by a large majority. The convention turned down by about the same majority the proposal to memorialise the government for a grant of $200 a year for ten years to the veterans who reached France and $100 for the men who got only to England. The poll taken indicates the membership represented by the delegates to the convention, and shows a majority against the Calgary proposition of 7,729. Of a possible 18,979 votes, 17,195 were cast, leaving only 1,784 votes not polled. The discussion preceding the ballot occupied practically the whole of yesterday's session.

Want Convention.

Yesterday a telegram was received from the Trades and Labor Council of Peterborough inviting next year's convention to that city. Mayor Duncan and City Clerk Armstrong of Peterboroough had previously addressed the convention, issuing an invitation, although delegates from other towns that wanted the convention objected to this.

Liquor Question Not Yet Mooted.

While the liquor question has not yet put in an appearance, and is not looked for by many of the members, there are others who figure that it may come on the floor. It is intimated that if the Resolutions Committee holds it in abeyance and does not introduce it to the meeting, the sponsors of the motion, who are said to be the Walkerville delegates, will assert their right to move it in open meeting. The resolution calls for the convention to declare for light wine and beer in Ontario, and general opinion does not favor the veterans mixing in the fight either for or against. If the motion is put to the convention there is every indication that it will be defeated.

SENTENCED THREE MEN TO SCAFFOLD

(Canadian Press.)

PRINCE ALBERT, May 16.—When sentencing Joseph Gervais, Victor Carmala and Jean Baptiste of St. Germain to be hanged September 17 for the murder of James McKay at Steep Creek last November, Chief Justice Brown broke down completely before he could pronounce the final words invoking the mercy of the Almighty, and abruptly adjourned the court.

Wood Prices Are Bound to Go Higher

Lay in Your Supply of Good, Clean Wood, Cut This Winter.

We beg to announce a slight change in our price list for the present week. We announced two weeks ago that existing prices could not continue, owing to increased costs of handling wood. This applies particularly to hardwood which we have been selling at ten dollars a cord, cut in stove lengths. This week this class of wood will be sold at ten dollars a cord, cutting extra. We are still selling slabs out at four dollars a load and mixed wood at nine dollars a cord cut. Both of these grades have a good percentage of hardwood, and are good buying at the prices quoted. This wood is not black with age, having been cut and piled in early part of the past winter. Call and inspect it and lay in your supply before prices go higher. Take the advice of one of the largest local coal and wood dealers who anticipates a worse fuel famine than ever next winter. Get your supply in early.

Our prices for this week are as follows:

Hardwood, four foot lengths—$10 a cord, Cutting extra.

Mixed wood—$9 a cord, cut.

Slabs—$4 a load, cut.

LEGAL COMMITTEE HELD A MEETING

Conroy Case Left to a Trio of Lawyers to Deal With.

The Legal Committee yesterday afternoon showed a tendency to clear up the case of the city against E. Conroy and James Bogue, which has been outstanding for a number of years. The City Solicitor, asked for his opinion, stated that Mr. Conroy was not responsible because Mr. Bogue had freed Mr. Conroy of any of the obligations in the agreement entered into between the city and the contractors at that time. Mr. Conroy is entirely willing to settle, and if he receives a bill he will turn it over to Mr. Bogue. The difficulty seems to be that the city cannot arrive at a definite sum which Conroy and Bogue owe the city. One of the members asked if Mr. Conroy would pay over to the city which the city would accept and thus clear the matter up, but Mr. Widdifield stated that it would be almost impossible to arrive at a correct figure as Mr. Bogue claims that he put in a number of extras in the construction of the sewer, and the way that the law stands now, the city is bound to pay for these extras whether the contract called for them or not if they accepted them at the time the work was completed. Another suggestion was that a disinterested arbiter be appointed, but there are numerous difficulties here also.

Mr. Widdifield stated that Mr. Conroy, in case he gets the contract for the new high level Hunter Street Bridge, is willing to allow the city to deduct from his commission any sum that the city may arrive at in connection with the sewer construction case.

SPEEDY SETTLEMENT.

Mr. R. R. Hall was present for Mr. Conroy, and informed the board that his client was willing to make an immediate settlement if the city could determine to what extent Mr. Conroy was financially indebted to the city.

Ald. Phelan moved, seconded by Ald. Hamilton, that Mr. G. N. Gordon, Mr. R. R. Hall, Mr. E. H. D. Hall and City Solicitir Widdifield discuss the matter and endeavour to get all the facts and reach a conclusion. Carried.

ALEXANDER KNOTT TO SHOOT TO-NIGHT

Chemong Redskin Has a Good Record as a Marksman.

At the Windsor Hotel is registered Mr. Alex. Knott, an Indian from the reserve at Chemong, who is in the city to shoot with the Gun Club this evening. Mr. Knott, before the war, was generally conceded to be the best rifle shot in the county, and even now, after months in the front line trenches, there are few in the city who can make as good a showing with the clays as Mr. Knott. He enlisted here with the 93rd Battalion, and in England won several prizes in shooting competitions. In France he kept up his good record, and won a high prize there among several hundred entries. He was badly wounded in his "gun" arm at Vimy Ridge and again in the famous raid carried out by the Canadians on January 17, 1917, and since then he has not been as quick, but it is doubtful if he will meet his match this evening. Mr. Knott is a guide in the Kawartha Lakes district.

Trouble Among Men of 21st Battalion

Canteens Broken Into and Windows Broken—Battalion is Now on the High Seas.

STREET FIGHTS

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, May 16. — Later advices regarding the disturbances which occurred in Canadian camps in Surrey last week are to the effect that a party of men at Seaford became incensed at the action of the military police in arresting a colored soldier. The policemen, it is stated, struck a private, which threw his comrades into an uproar. The two wet canteens were broken into. It is believed the commandant does not defend the action of the military police. The only casualty was one policeman bruised and shaken but not seriously hurt. This was on the third instant. On the following Wednesday night there was trouble among the 21st Batt., commanded by Colonel Pense, of Kingston. Two canteens were broken into and beer disposed of. Windows were broken, but otherwise there was no serious damage.

Last Saturday there was trouble at Guilford. There was a dance at the town hall, and the Imperial discharged men resented the preference that was shown the Canadians by the ladies.

The Canadians on leaving the hall were subjected to insult, which some of them did not submit to tamely and isolated fights occurred.

Last Sunday there was further trouble in the Guilford streets between Canadians and residents and the Canadian military police persuaded their men to take train for Witley Camp.

In recent interviews the Mayor and Chief Constable of Guilford testified to the general exemplary conduct of the Canadians at Witley.

Delegates to Meet Industrial Board

Itinerant Industrial Relations Committee Will be Met by Six Delegates.

(Canadian Press.)

TORONTO, May 16.— Six delegates from the Toronto district of the Trades and Labour Council will meet the Commission on Industrial Relations when it comes to Toronto and which is to-day at Cobalt on its way back from the west. Despite the fact that a keen fight had been anticipated on the appointment of any accredited delegates to meet the commission, the six were elected almost unanimously by the board of the meeting. The result of the vote came as a distinct surprise to a large faction of the labour movement, which had confidently expected that the Commission would be utterly ignored by organized labour when it sat here.

NAVAL PLANE GOT AWAY

American Dirigible Reaches Newfoundland, But Escapes From Aviators.

FLEW 85 MILES ALONE

ST. JOHN'S, NFLD., May 16. — The facts respecting the breaking loose of the American dirigible C—5 are that the airship was making heavy weather, as mariners say, all afternoon, and over 100 men from the Cruiser Chicago's crew were toiling constantly at three tiers of man-ropes on either side of the vessel, besides the hausers, which kept her anchored, and several times the idea was considered of cutting her loose and having her ascend with a crew of ten men on board, and wait in the sky until the wind moderated at sundown. But the officers were unwilling to recall the regular crew of the airship for this purpose after their trying experience on the flight from New York, as they were then asleep on board the Chicago.

Wind Got Stronger.

At 5.15 however the wind changed and became stronger, and Lieut. Little, chief of the aviation experts, who was aboard the machine at the time, with two mechanics, Boyne and Lynch, decided to rip the safety panel in the nose of the gas bag and thus deflate the envelope, which was now being battered severely on the ground by the changing wind. Accordingly he issued orders to the seamen holding down the machine, to let it go when he gave the order, and when he pulled the cord which would release the safety panel. They accordingly relaxed their hold on the machine and he pulled the cord, but the cord broke about four feet from his hand and did not start the panel as it should have done. The result was that the airship, being only held by ropes to the anchors in the ground snapped these ropes like pack threads and began to ascend. Little, therefore ordered his helpers to jump and followed their example himself, and the machine relieved of its additional weight, sailed majestically skyward and then was driven by the wind out across the hills over the sea.

Machine Falls in Sea.

At sundown the machine was over 30 miles off St. John's, and was no longer visible from the signal station.

Late in the evening a radio message received by the cruiser Chicago from a British steamer, stated that the dirigible had dropped into the sea about 85 miles off shore.

The steamship said it was standing by the dirigible. The destroyer Edwards, which went out in pursuit of the blimp after it was blown to sea, was notified by wireless of its position and started at once to salvage the airship.

The United States dirigible C—5, which broke away from her moorings during a windstorm last night is being towed back, having suffered only small damage.

CYRIL MAUDE TALKS OF FIRST NIGHTS

"The first night of a new play," says Mr. Cyril Maude, who appears this season in the very successful comedy, "The Saving Grace," "is an occasion, naturally, of great anxiety to a large number of people. The theatre life is composed of many different units. Beside the actors, there are also to be remembered the scene shifters, the electricians, the property man, the stage manager, the scenic artists, the manager, and house staff—all these, besides the players who appear on the stage. Most important of all, perhaps, in the matter of anxiety is the author.

"Beside the acting on the stage, on an opening night, there is usually a deal of acting going on in the audience. There is, for instance, the regular first nighter who has seen every important premiere for the last forty years; there is the famous critic who must guard his facial expression lest his neighbours guess too much of his opinion of the play, and there are the ladies in the boxes who are very well aware of the fact that the clothes they are wearing will be so closely criticised as the play itself. But with all its anxieties and terrors nobody would willingly miss a first night."

NEXT WEEK'S CAMPAIGN

From the early days of the organization of the local branch of the Great War Veterans Association, the members have been looking forward to the time when they would be provided with headquarters large enough to accommodate all of Peterboro's returned men, and equipped in a manner befitting such an institution. The building is now a reality—the new hall on Murray street that will be formally opened on Monday is just such a place as had been pictured in the minds of the enthusiastic members of the G.W.V.A. As it stands, the new building is an ideal meeting-place for the veterans, but it has just one drawback at present. It is not paid for and the returned soldiers of the city want to feel when they take possession that there is no debt to worry about. They will undertake to maintain the building, but they want to start without a handicap.

That is the reason of the campaign that is being held next week. $15,000 is needed to make possible the desire of the veterans and the civilian committe which is co-operating with the G.W.V.A. In the drive is determined to see that no effort is spared in the task of securing the necessary money. These citizens have been patriotic enough to undertake the arduous work of carrying out the campaign and their efforts are deserving of the united support of the people of the city. The cause they are working for is in every way a worthy one; there should be no hesitation in giving generously to the G.W.V.A. fund. The returned soldier deserves the best that can be done for him and a debt-free, well-furnished and equipped hall will be a tribute to our soldiers of which we may well feel proud. Have your contribution ready when the canvassers call, or be prepared to sign a pledge card.

THE WAR BADGE CASE

The discussion over the recent case in police court in which a man who had pleaded guilty to fraudulently wearing an active service button, was fined $5 by the Police Magistrate, has brought out an interesting development. The active service badge issued to the Canadian soldiers on their discharge is stamped on the back with a warning that misuse of the button will be punished by a fine of $100 or six months imprisonment. Many returned soldiers were therefore naturally indignant that an impostor who was wrongfully wearing a badge should escape with a light fine or a short term in jail. In view of the manner in which the button is marked, their amazement at the sentence recently given can be understood.

But the fact remains that Magistrate Dumble was quite sound in his law on the point. No matter how the badge is marked, the order-in-council passed in August, 9116, regarding the fraudulent wearing of these buttons says nothing about a $500 fine or six months imprisonment. Here is how it reads:—

Any person fraudulently or without proper authority issuing or supplying any badge referred to in these regulations, and any person wearing such badge without lawful authority, or issuing or wearing any badge so nearly resembling th authorized badges as to be liable to cause deception, shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding $100 or to imprisonment not exceeding thirty days.

Just why an active service badge should announce a heavy penalty for misuse, that is not borne out by the regulations, is a mystery. So far as is known this is the first time the point has been raised and local returned soldiers who had been inclined to blame Magistrate Dumble, will transfer their vexation to the Government and endeavour to find out why the two rulings should conflict. There is not much common sense in continuing to issue badges that call for a $500 fine or six months imprisonment if the regulations laid down in connection with the badges contain no such penalty. Magistrates take their law, or should do, from the statutes and regulations, not from buttons.

ANNALS OF VALOUR

The booklet bearing the title which appears at the head of this article has been issued by the Department of Education of Ontario for the purpose of commemorating "Empire Day" in the schools of the province. It is the desire of Hon. Dr. Cody, Minister of Education, that the book should be used in the celebration of Empire Day and that it shall afterwards be given an honoured place in the school library and the pupils encouraged to read it when they may have opportunity.

In the introduction evidently written by Dr. Cody, himself, the mission of the new publication is explained as follows:

"What has the Great War taught?

"The list of its precepts is long but a few of them may be mentioned:— The pre-eminence of right over wrong, the blessings of democracy and the perils of autocracy, the pleasures of peace and the pains of war, the weakness of strength and the strength of weakness, the power of unselfishness, of kindliness, of benevolent brotherliness, the triumphs of personal courage, initiative and resourcefulness. It is to furnish a basis for teaching some of these lessons to the youth of Ontario that this book has been written. The problems confronting the citizens of this war-torn globe will require all the courage and all the resource of which individual and nations can be possessed. Approached with the cheerful and dauntless daring so characteristic of Canada's sons in the last five years, obstacles will vanish, vexatiously intricate problems will be solved."

The decision to issue such a book as this, which should be a most valuable addition to school literature, in time for Empire Day, will be generally approved. This year Empire Day should be more enthusiastically observed than ever before, since it finds the British Empire delivered from the great peril which for nearly five years has been threatening its destruction. The opportunity to inculcate into the children of Ontario the great lesson of the war should not be neglected by the teachers of the provinces, and "The Annals of Valour," furnishes them with an effective means of doing so.

It is a most interesting compilation, featured by graphic records of the brave deeds of individual soldiers as well as giving the wonderful story of the part the Canadian Army played in the final great campaign of the war. The deeds for which Canadian soldiers won the Victoria Cross are described, but not all of these are mentioned, space not permitting the full recital.

An interesting feature of the book is a chapter on "The Schools and the War," in which the record of Ontario soldiers in the war is referred to as showing that the educational system of the Province "Cannot be said to be hopelessly bad."—Here is an extract:—

The youth of Ontario enlisted voluntarily in numbers unprecedented and unequalled anywhere. They gave up profitable civilian pursuits; spent tedious hours, and days, and weeks, and months in monotonous drilling under unpleasant conditions; went to the incredible hardships of the front-line trenches with cheerful enthusiasm; fought as soldiers never fought before—and won? The individual initiative, the resourcefulness, the clear-headed personal courage and daring, the true and clean uprightness of the soldiers, the sailors, the airmen, from Ontario, from Canada, have never been surpassed in any land, at any time. Rarely, if ever, have these characteristics been found so well developed in any nation. The Old World stood amazed at their achievements. And of Canada's wonderful army, navy, and air force, almost one half was supplied by Ontario. Did they prove themselves good citizens? Were they so educated that they were prepared for effective living—and noble dying? They received their education in the schools of Ontario!

Safeguard --Your Eyesight

Do Not Let Fear Interfere With Good Vision

A common cause of neglect in having their eyes properly attended to is the fear most people have that they may have to wear glasses.

This is an injustice to the Optometrical profession and to themselves. If you do not really need glasses no responsible Optometrist will advise you to wear them, and if you do need glasses then you are cheating yourself out of a part of a valuable possession.

When you accept our invitation to a consultation regarding the condition of your eyes, you need not feel concerned about what we will tell you. You will learn only the truth and that cannot hurt you.

"YOU CAN COME HERE WITHOUT FEAR."

3-1 M'CULLOUGH DON'T HANG

Much Money Being Wagered on Event in Murderer's Life.

TORONTO, May 16.—The chances of Frank McCullough hanging on June 13th has turned into a gambling event in some quarters in the downtown section. Many business men are offering and betting three to one that he will not pay the penalty on gallows. Much money is being wagered, and those who are offering the odds are having their money covered without difficulty. It is said that over a thousand dollars has been wagered.

RESIGNATION OF CHINESE CABINET

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, May 16.—The Chinese Cabinet has resigned, but the President has refused to accept resignation, according to a telegram from Peking to the Peace Conference.

A Fine Treatment for Weak Nerves

How would you like to have a set of nerves like steel, able to stand up under any kind of a strain? Wouldn't it be great to be so chockful of ginger all the time that trouble fell off your mind like water off a duck's back, so you could go to sleep at night as soon as your head hit the feathers, and bound out again in the morning at the first tap of the bell, feeling you were able to get somewhere in your business that day.

Lots of people fuss around all day like a hen on a hot cake, but never light any place. They are nervous, flighty, fretful and can't get right down to brass tacks. There is something wrong at one time or another with almost every organ in their bodies and it's all nerves—nerves—nerves: they're keyed up like a fiddle string and, like a ship without a compass, can't make port.

If you are out of sorts, run down, losing confidence, have nervous dyspepsia, blues, can't concentrate your mind or have that "don't care a hang" feeling so common to nervous people, your nerve cells are starving, and there's a test worth trying on them. Take a little Ferro-Peptine tablet, wait ten minutes and see yourself pick up. Ferro-Peptine tablets go right to the spot, start the digestive organs to working, send the blood coursing through your veins to feed the famished nerve cells. Then you brighten up, put on a smile and feel as happy as a clam at high tide. Ferro-Peptine tablets are harmless, easy to take, inexpensive and all good druggists will supply you. Every package carries a printed guarantee of money back if not satisfied.

WILL ESTABLISH "BABY CLINIC" IN PETERBORO NEXT AUTUMN UNDER COMPETENT DIRECTION

Dr. Jessie Birnie Is an Enthusiastic Promoter of the Scheme—Aged Parents Who Are Left to Tender Mercies of the Poorhouses —Meeting of Women's Council.

Though still in its embryonic state a "Baby Clinic" for the city by September next is practically a certainty. Under the enthusiastic promotion of Dr. Jessie Birnie, the idea has gained wide popularity about the city, and all that confronts the fulfilment of her project is the matter of rooms in which to hold the clinic.

Dr. Birnie reported yesterday at the regular monthly meeting of the Local Council of Women that from the three local Chapters of the I. O. D. E. she had $300 on hand to furnish the clinic. A number of the married women, who are by profession nurses, had offered to go to the clinic and that other girls who have taken the first-aid course had generously offered to go to the homes of the parents when necessary, provided the Health Association would show them how to conduct their work. Dr. Birnie outlined the different committees which would work with her in the clinic. To offset the difficulty presented by the question of suitable rooms a committee of Mrs. S. T. Redd, Mrs. Gardiner, and Mrs. Jas. Hendry were appointed to look into the housing proposition. It was suggested that a portable house similar to those used in the Land Settlement scheme, and which costs about $300, could be purchased and placed in Central Park for the purpose of the clinic.

The Council felt confident that if the idea were once started the demonstration would soon arouse the enthusiasm of the city. The idea has already been brought before the Medcial Association, and a committee Dr. C. H. Amys, Dr. G. S. Cameron, and Dr. J. D. Mann was appointed to look into the matter.

Care of Aged.

It was brought to the Council's attention that no statute law in the country provides for the compulsory care of children of their parents, and old people are in many cases left upon the civic authorities to support, when the children might undertake the responsibility.

A resolution was passed to have the local convenor of the committee on Laws for Women and Children communicate with the national convenor of that committee, asking that the matter be brought up for discussion at the annual meeting of the Council of Women. Reports from members of the Council gave authoritative reports of cases in which parents transferring their property to their children had been subsequently left to the mercies of alms houses.

Interview Mayor.

The deplorable consequences of lack of proper laws governing rooming and boarding houses were brought to the Council's notice. The convenor of the Committee for Equal Moral Standards reported that at a recent meeting of girls it was found that only two out of thirty girls had been able to find readily a suitable boarding-house, and that three had no place other than their bedroom in which to entertain their visitors. A representative from the Local Council was appointed to confer with the Mayor in the matter of having all boarding and rooming houses licensed. It was conceded that licensing all boarding and rooming houses was the only remedy against questionable conditions in such.

Oleo Margarine.

The secretary, who was instructed to send a resolution to the Board of Trade asking their support in an effort to have the restrictions on oleo margarine removed, received a request to have further particulars sent in regarding the product, and she was instructed to write Mrs. Adam Short for particulars. Inquiries at the De Laval found that about 10 per cent. of the margarine used in Canada is made by Canadian firms, the Swift Canadian Company and the Harris Abbatoir being the principal producers.

Finances.

The financia report showed a balance of $138.04 on hand.

Lyceum Course.

The president, Mrs. R. Harstone, stated that the Local Council had decided not to take up the Lyceum Course this winter.

Committee Reports.

Reports of the different committees showed that each had been actively engaged on their special work.

If a friend comes to your office to borrow money and finds you in, you'll be out, but if he finds you out you'll be in.

30 OPPORTUNITIES

There's a big half page advertisement on page eight that contains a list of thirty bargains that are to be found at B. Chesler's store, in the Lundy Block. They represent startling values, and Mr. Chesler promises seventy more as good, a total of 100, out of which most Peterborough homes can find a number of items they need and on which they will be glad to save some money.

Bad luck in small quantities makes good luck more palatable.

The CRESSMAN Company Limited

CRESSMAN COMPANY WILL HAVE 50,000 SQUARE FEET OF SPACE WHEN NEW ADDITION IS COMPLETED

Several New Departments Will be Added to the Twenty-One Now in Existence—A Progressive Business.

STORE OF SERVICE

The new four storey addition to the store of The Cressman Company, is beginning to assume material form. A squad of bricklayers and carpenters are at work and in a few weeks time, Peterborough will have still greater cause for being proud of this ever growing business and the facilities it aims to provide for the buying public. It takes courage to build at the present time when building costs are at an almost prohibitive level. From a small store twenty years ago with a pay roll less than fifty dollars a week to the present establishment with a pay roll approximating a thousand dollars a week is an indicaton in a figurative way of the rapid growth of the Company's business. It is a growth that the management has reason to view with satisfaction and a good deal of pride. Quality and service are two essentials that have been largely responsible for this record march of progress. Now in the year 1919 with building costs higher than ever before the Company find it necessary to launch out and meet the insistent demand for increased floor area and other facilities which when complete will give Peterboro the largest Department Store between Toronto and Montreal, and the largest of any store in Ontario for a City of a similar size.

New Departments

At the rear of the Redfern and Men's Clothing Sections of the present store the new four storey addition is being constructed, that will make the entire property square out four storeys high and add fully a third to the present floor area of this store. This will give the Company a total floor area of fifty thousand square feet, and will facilitate the addition of several new departments to the twenty-one now in existence. Two of the departments that will benefit as a result of the change will be the Men's Clothing Department and the Furniture Department. Each of these departments will have double their present floor space. The present store has one elevator. The store with the addition complete will have two elevators. The second elevator will be an all steel passenger express elevator with increased speed and a larger carrying capacity.

Another feature to be included in the new improvements is the conversion of a large section of the basement into selling space. In the basement will be added several new lines and facilities for placing them before the buying public.

Sound Policy.

Few stores if any in the Province can show a wider range of stock than that of The Cressman Company. This and many other features are backed up by a sound and progressive management augmented by the loyalty and co-operation of its employees. It constitutes a combination that is hard to beat and its effect is reflected in the appreciation shown by the buying public and increasing patronage making necessary the improvements and additions noted above. This business has the distinction of having inaugurated a comprehensive profit sharing scheme with its employees by which each one shares in the success of the business and becomes a contributing factor to the increasing growth of this progressive business.

"The Unpardonable Sin" at the Grand

Rupert Hughes' Wonderful Story Re-told in Film Form in Striking Manner.

The many people who have read Major Ruperr Hughes great story, "The Unpardonable Sin", found new thrills in the screen version as presented at the Grand Opera House last night, while to those who had not had the pleasure of reading the striking story the picture was a revelation. It is one of the most impressive films the Grand has shown and one can easily understand the record crowds that have attended wherever this wonderful picture has been exhibited. It is a series of thrills from start to finish with adventure following adventure and the spectators are held entranced until the finish. Miss Blanche Sweet who has the leading role in a most clever film star whose work in this remarkable picture is better than anything she has previously done. The acting of the other principal and especially of the two youngsters whose exploits are an interesting feature is on a par with that of the star and the photography of the picture is especially clear and beautiful. It is a magnificent film production of one of the most striking novels of the year and will undoubtedly draw capacity crowds to the Grand for the balance of the week. It will be shown again to-night and to-morrow afternoon and evening and no picture fan can afford to miss this attraction which is one of the most notable screen productions of the season. The thrill engendered by this entrancing drama of love and war cannot be described; the picture must be seen to be appreciated. Good as some of the other overseas films have been "The Unpardonable Sin", in its vibrant realism and the genuis with which it has been screened surpasses all the rest. The picture of Prussian brutality that it gives, leaves the conviction that the peace terms handed the Germans were none too harsh.

FIRST COMPANY COLLEGIATE CADETS WON SILVER CUP AT INSPECTION YESTERDAY

Lieut.-Col. Gillespie Concludes His Duties in Peterboro With Inspection of Collegiate Cadet Corps—The Corps War Record.

Under smiling skies the annual inspection of the Collegiate Institute cadets took place yesterday afternoon in Central Park. Lieut.-Col. Gillespie, the cadet inspector for this district, who inspected the corps, has inspected the public school corps in the city and the Collegiate inspection is the last to be held in the city this year. The general salute was first taken, followed by the march past. The commander, Amess Conway, then put the corps through battalion drill, after which Col. Gillespie inspected the fine corps of signallers. The physical drill, consisting of twenty of the cadets under Russel Pogue, was favourably commented upon by the members of the Board of Education and others present. Company drill followed the inspection of the physical drill squad and the different platoon commanders were given a chance to exhibit their military knowledge by drilling the companies in rotation.

169 on Parade

Altogether there were 169 out on parade with 15 granted leave of absence and their fine soldierly bearing was a revelation to passers by who have some cause to mourn the passing of the 57th Militia Regiment, which however is being reorganized.

Corps War Record

Ex-cadets enlisted	292
Killed	57
Distinguished Service Order	5
Military Cross	11

This, however, is not regarded as complete but all sources of information known to Mr. Jamieson, the cade instructor, have been exhausted.

Commissions Won

Equally gratifying is the number of commissions that have been won by ex-cadets of the local Collegiate corps, numbering as it does 171, as follows: Colonel 1, lieut.-colonel 10, major 8, captain 25, lieutenant 61, cadet, R.A.F., 6.

The Officers

Captain C. E. Jamieson, commercial teacher at the Institute, is in charge of the corps and to him, together with a capable staff of officers whom he has trained, the present state of efficiency of the corps is due. The officers are as follows:

Battalion Commander—Amess Copway.
Adjutant—John Carlisle.
Quartermaster—Earl Barrie.
Bandmaster—Alvin Catchpole.
Musketry Instructor—Charles Elliott.
Ambulance Officer—Allan Lewis.
Signalling Officer—Fred Rutherford.
Physical Training Instructor—Russell Pogue.
Quartermaster Sergeant—Gordon Mein.
Sergeant Bugler—George Ross.
Sergeant Drummer—George Dunsford.
Sergeant Signallers—Fred Doupe and Fred Brooks.
Ambulance Sergt.—Graham Eastwood.

"A" Company:
Company Commander—Morgan Cottingham.
Second in Command—Donald Fitzgerald.
Platoon Commanders—Gordon Yeaman, Ralph Cowan, Allan McIntosh, Russell Pogue.

"B" Company:
Company Commander—Jack Macdonald.
Second in Command—Gordon Ego.
Platoon Commanders—Chas. Armstrong, Bernard Park, Philip Davidson, William Mowat.

Silver Cup

The silver cup which at last inspection was won by "A" Company for drill and general efficiency, was again awarded to the first company and the first platoon among all the platoons were presented with the ribbons denoting efficiency.

Col. Gillespie in addressing the boys formed in a hollow square, congratulated them on their smart appearance and stated that the Peterborough corps was among the largest in this military district, Lindsay, Kingston and Belleville, occupying first place with Peterborough in the matter of numerical size. Uniforms of khaki perhaps on the overseas pattern will be issued to the Cadet Corps very shortly and Col. Gillespie declared that the local corps would then measure up with the best in the district.

Speaking of the active militia he stated that the salvation of the militia is in the cadet movement and he hoped the cadets would identify themselves with some active militia unit, when they passed out of the Cadet Corps. He apologized for the absence of General Williams who was unable to be present, but forecasted a visit in the near future of the General to the Collegiate, when they would likely have an opportunity to hear his wonderful war experiences: how he was at Vulcartier with the first contingent and went overseas in charge of a brigade and how at the second battle of Ypres he was taken prisoner and held in Germany a prisoner until last June when he was repatriated.

Sir Sam Hughes

Col. Gillespie referred to General Sir Sam Hughes as the father of the cadet movement in Canada and the Colonel was of the opinion that now that hostilities had ceased, more money and support would be forthcoming from the Militia Department for the cadet corps.

Although there will be no cadet camp this year there will be a "bumper" one next year and he asks that as many boys as possible be there. He spoke of the good work of the battalion commander, Amess Conway, and of the adjutant, John Carlisle. At the conclusion three tigers for Colonel Gillespie, were proposed by the commander and heartily entered into by the boys who added a tiger for good measure.

Chairman R. Denne of the Board of Education who witnessed the inspection with other members of the board, gave a brief address to the boys and suggested that in future years a cadet field day be held when all the cadet corps in the city would be present and sports added to the general programme.

Mr. G. O. Cameron gave a brief and humourous speech on the A.O.S.B.—The Ancient Order of Bad Boys, which was resurrected in the mind of the telephone chief at the time of the collegiate commencement exercises some time ago.

It was perhaps the finest inspection and turn-out by the corps since the opening and hostilities and although the corps has been sadly depleted by the numerous enlistments, the high standard of efficiency has not depreciated and stands as high as those former cadets who stood in the Ypres Salient, fought at Vimy Ridge, Langemarck, St. Julien, the Somme Valley, or at the Doucourt-Queant switch where the Canadians were the mainstay and the spearhead of the Allies.

Mothers should be very careful in buying a good rubber Nipple for the baby. A cheap Nipple will do a great amount of harm to the baby. The Nobility Nipple is transparent, and being packed each one in a box separately, is prefectly sanitary. The genuine Nobility Nipple has a red band around it. Ask for the Nobility Nipple and see that Baby gets the best.

CRUDE HUMOUR OF DEFAULTER

KINGSTON, May 16.—The return of the order calling on him to report for duty to the 1st Depot Battalion here and the postal notes sent him to cover the cost of his railway fare, along with the words, "You will find enclosed postal notes sent me. I don't think I will need them. Thank you just the same," to Mr. H. P. Cooke, Registrar for the M.S.A., led to the arrest of Thos. T. Kiffingbeck, of Plevna, Clarendon Township, who was fined $300 and costs, or six months at hard labor as a defaulter by Police Magistrate Bradshaw yesterday morning.

Mr. Cooe sent Kiffingbeck an order last spring instructing him to report to the 1st Depot Battalion at Kingston on March 18th, 1919. Nothing was heard of him until Mr. Cooke received the above letter recently. The authorities had not overlooked the case, but this crude humor of his considerably speeded up the wheels of justice.

NEW SCALE OF PENSIONS.

OTTAWA, May 16.—A new scale of pensions based on total disability is being worked out by the Pensions Committee of the House, and a report will be presented shortly. Some of the members contend that the system whereby dependents are taken into consideration directly, and paid pensions is quite wrong. They hold that the whole pensions should go to the disabled man, allowing him to look after the family. The system, however, will not be changed.

In the case of a private with 100 per cent. disability, the pension is now $600. It is probable that this will be raised to $720 with $20 a month for his wife and $12 for the first, $10 for the second, and $8 for each other child per month. This point is now being considered.

There is also the proposal that regardless of rank, the maximum individual pension, apart from what is paid to the wife and family should be $1,500 a year. No final conclusion has been reached.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

TWO BIG GAMES IN THE CITY LEAGUE

All that is needed is good weather to ensure the success of the City League opening games at Riverside Park. The teams have been working hard to get into shape, and while none of them are of course in mid-season form—the weather has been none too favourable until this week for practice—still they will put up a good article of ball tomorrow and there should be two tidy arguments.

A feature of the games will be the re-appearance on the local diamond of a large number of players who have been overseas, the majority of whom have not performed here since 1915. There are returned men on every team in the League, and these boys should get a big reception from the fans. In addition to the G.W.V.A. team, who are Veterans, there are Barrie, Butcher, Hagerman and Holyman with the Matthews-Blackwell team, Soden with the Orientals, and Cavanah and Campbell with the De Laval, all of them overseas men.

There will be a parade from Central Park at 1.30 o'clock, headed by the G.W.V.A. band, and the first game will start sharp at 2 o'clock, with the Orientals and Veterans clashing, while Matthews-Blackwell and De Laval get together in the second game.

The De Laval, who have been practising at King Edward Park, were out at Riverside Park for the first time last night and showed good form. The De Laval have grabbed off a classy first baseman in Ray Rose. Cavanah, who was with the Thistles before he went overseas, is slated for an infield berth, and there is plenty of other good material. On the pitching staff are Ford Campbell, back from overseas, Prest and Lefty Galbraith, while Bergoine, who was with the Orientals last year, will likely be behind the bat.

All four managers are keeping their final line-up dark but enough has been shown in practice to guarantee two good games.

NEWS OF THE O.B.A. LEAGUE

"Cannon Ball" Scott Arrived.

Ed. (Cannon Ball) Scott, the well-known baseball heaver, arrived in Lindsay Wednesday evening on the 8.15 train and was met at the station by the members of the baseball team, as well as Mayor McLean.

Eddie has been out with the boys in Toronto, chasing around the campus, getting into practice, and is quite well prepared to slant the cowhide across the pan. He has accepted a position in town and will be here permanently, it is understood.

Diamond in Great Shape.

A transformation has taken place at the Lindsay ball grounds, with the result that the baseball diamond is in A1 shape. After the diamond had been thoroughly dug out, harrowed and raked the steam roller was run over it and salt thrown over the surface. It is now in good shape and anyone who fumbles a roller now must place the blame on poor judgment instead of rough ground.—Lindsay Post.

Mayor McLean Will Open Game.

At the opening baseball game in Lindsay on May 24th (next Saturday) Mayor B. L. McLean will open the baseball season by slanting the first ball across the rubber.

Belleville Players.

Secretary Dedman of Lindsay has received the following list of players belonging to the Belleville team: W. J. Thomson, F. Goyer, T. H. Fegg, J. Kelleher, W. J. Mills, W. Gerow, A. Nott, D. Simon, V. Weir, K. Sutherland, H. M. Pringle, J. W. Rose.

Peterborough Strong.

Mr. "Yebbie" Flaherty, of Peterborough, one of the best of pitchers in his palmy days, who also pitched for Lindsay with the Red Birds, told a Warder scribe that Peterborough would be strong in Can. Ont League, with two or three pitchers, including Huycke. Swanson will be behind the bat again and Cherrett, Hagerman and others are back on the job.—Lindsay Warder.

SEMI-READY TALK:

"Here are logical figures that no man can gainsay, and no amount of cheap advertising can overcome.

"A pure wool cloth, double width costs $4 a yard, or $14 per suit.

"Linings and trimmings in a good suit cost $7.50.

"Or $21.50, without a cent of work on the suit.

"A cheap suit must be thrown together and made from cotton fabrics with just enough shoddy wool to make it look woolly.

"Mary's little lamb would be ashamed of a cheap suit like those advertised to be as good as Semi-ready.

"A Semi-ready suit has the price in the pocket and no suit as good can be sold for less anywhere."

SPORTING COMMENT

The fast Riverdale team of Toronto would like to arrange a game with any Peterborough City League team for Dominion Day in Peterborough. Communicate with F. J. Carveth, 1511 Queen East, Toronto.
F. J. CARVETH.

Although there may be a change or two the De Laval line-up for tomorrow afternoon's game with Matthews-Blackwell will be about as follows:

Bergoine, c., Prest or Galbraith p., Rose 1b., Dugan 2b., Lipsett s.s., Cavanah 3 b., Fitzgerald r.f., Campbell m., Pollard l.f.

BASEBALL MATCH

The King Edward Juniors went down to defeat on their home grounds last evening, their opponents being the King George team. The battery of the visiting team was Legon, pitcher, and Taylor, catcher; while Morrison and Reader pitched for the home team, and King was the strong man of his team as catcher. Umpire Frank Kearns ably performed his duties to the satisfaction of all concerned.

Mr. William P. Seay, who has been in the city for some days in the interests of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, Toronto, returns to-day. Mr. Seay is very much gratified at the reception he received here. He addressed meetings in Trinity and George Street Church, and also interviewed a number of local citizens in the interest of the cause he represents. Mr. Seay's appeal for funds met with a good response, and incidentally gave Mr. Seay an opportunity of presenting the objects and aims of his organization before many local citizens.

Copper brown, a brilliant string color, dark blue with white, and the lighter pastel shades are featured in the season's silk jerseys.

SELF POISONING VERY PREVALENT

Auto-Intoxication, Or Slow Self-Poisoning, Cause of Most Ill Health and Disease.

Advanced medical authorities assert that auto-intoxication is the foundation of most of the ills and diseases to which the human flesh is heir.

This condition is nothing more nor less than the slow self-poisoning of the vital organs produced by the excessive mental and physical strain which we are forced to endure; which renders the organs lame and inactive, and permits toxins, actual poisons, to be generated within one's own body.

Usually the trouble starts in the intestines; sometimes it starts in the stomach, liver, or kidneys, but in any case the blame lies with the faulty method of living, and may be traced to over-eating, excessive nervous strain, lack of exercise, or other causes. At any rate it is the more important organs that suffer the final damage and when they falter or fail in their duties the body fills up with acids and poisons, and the victim often yields to their baneful influence. Bright's disease, heart trouble, high blood pressure, catarrhal affections, and their troubles are frequently the result of self poisoning or auto-intoxication.

A tired draggy feeling of the body a sluggish mind and dull memory, intense nervousness, headache, stomach and bowel troubles poor circulation, imperfect digestion, constipation and despondency are common symptoms of auto-intoxication; and nine out of every ten of the American people are likely to be so affected.

Tanlac, the powerful reconstructive and systemic tonic, was designed especially to overcome these very troubles. There is not a single portion of the body that is not benefited by the helpful work of this celebrated preparation, which begins its action by stimulating the digestive and assimilative organs; thereby enriching the blood and envigorating the entire system. Composed of the most beneficial roots and herbs known to science, it enables the stomach to thoroughly digest the food thereby permitting the assimilable products to be converted into blood, bone and muscle. It overcomes that great exciting cause of disease weakness. It renders the body vigorous and elastic, it keeps the mind clear and energetic, and throws off the symptoms of nervousness and indigestion. It builds up the constitution weakened by disease or mental and physical over-work, quickens convalescence of the invalid, and is sure and unfailing source of comfort to those who are suffering from the effects of nervousness and overwork.

That Tanlac does these very things is proven by the fact that it now has the largest sale of any tonic on the American market. Millions have used it with the most astonishing and gratifying results.

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co. Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co. Ltd., in Fowlers Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

The six children of Mr. Robert Glover, 4 Dumble Ave., were made wards of the Children's Aid Society by Magistrate Dumble this morning on application of Mr. G. W. Powell, the local C.A.S. Inspector.
